TRF Crime rates decline

■ Year-end police report shows decline in crime and traffic offenses

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

Last week City Council members heard the Police Department's Year-End Activity Report from Police Chief Jim Haugen.

The report reflected changes in criminal activity between 1999 and 2000. Among other crimes the Thief River Falls Police Department reports that drags and narcotics crimes, crimes against the family including child abuse and neglect, and juvenille arrests for liquor law violations were all down. Incidents such as traffic violations, criminal sexual conduct, gross DWI, and liquor law violations for adults were all up.

"The department is younger and more aggresive," Haugen said, "and there's the construction going on. It all affects the number of traffic violations for the year."

Over all, Haugen reports, calls, incidents, adult and juvenile arrests were down for 2000 from 1999 by 13 percent. Total arrests for juveniles were down 33 percent for 2000 from 1999.

Haugen said that the police department needs to draw closer to the community and increase the understanding of community policing within the city and department. He said the department will work to continue to increase their visibility and involvement in the community.

Electric utility rebate checks

The City Council approved 2000 electric utility rebate checks totaling $65,587.33 for another year. The checks will be mailed to electric heat rate customers with controlled heat. The rebate is one-half of a cent for every kilowatt hour used over 1,000 kilowatt hours for the six winter months. Checks for residential customers should be around the amount of $73.

City Hall Tug-of-War

In celebration of 100 years of the Pennington County Fair a proposal for a tug-of-war between the Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls City Councils was accepted. The event is in commemoration of similar events held 100 years ago. It will be set for Sunday, July 22 at 1 p.m. at the Grandstand.

Consent agenda

City Council approved several consent agenda items. Salary progession raises for Dustin Coauette, part-time patrol officer and Jerald Brown, public works maintenance custodian were approved. The council accepted the resignation of Kevin Wilson, off-sale clerk. The council also approved the addition of sick leave/work compensation section to the benefits for the non-union secretarial/accounting employees.

Other Items

Other items of business for the City Council included the approval of a varience request by Conrad and JoAnn Holten, 114 Kendall Avenue North, an off sale beer license for Super One Foods, the revision of a job description for the electronic technician position along with the DBM Evaluation, permit renewal application for TRFAHA at the Rusty Nail, Swedes Place, and Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, and the designation of the City Administrator as the "responsible authority" and LeAnn Engelstad as the "compliance officer" for the Minnesota "Data" Practice Compliance Regulations.

State funded placement of livescan technology in the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center means no more ink stained fingers and quicker processing time for fingerprinting. Technology such as this is evolving rapidly, both for government and private industry uses.

Statue takes center stage at local bank

Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering lines astride from land to land;
Here at our sea-washed, sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of Exiles. From her beacon-hand
Glows world-wide welcome; her mild eyes command
The air-bridged harbor that twin cities frame.
"Keep ancient lands, your storied pomp! cries she
With silent lips. "Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free.
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!

Long before it was a tourist attraction, the Statue of Liberty was a symbol of American democracy and beacon of refuge for immigrants. In 1903, "The New Colossus," a sonnet by Emma Lazareth, was inscribed on a tablet in its pedestal.

A replica of the famous statue is currently taking center stage on the table in the main lobby of Northern State Bank. The statue was purchased by bank founder George Beito in 1935 when he bought the building which housed the former First National Bank. The statue was the lobby's centerpiece from 1935 until the bank was remodeled in 1971, and it was placed on the floor in a less noticeable spot of the lobby.

Like New York's Statue of Liberty, the years took their toll on the statue at Northern State Bank, and its owners had its finish touched up by Shawn Melander in 1986, the year restoration of the Statue of Liberty was completed. It was also the year when Gretchen Beito did a little investigating as to the statue's origin.

Unlike the original, the statue at Northern State Bank is slimmer and more curved and its arm is slightly curved. Its copyright 1918, the replica is believed to be by Voight of Philadelphia, and one of only three that were known to experts when they were contacted in 1986. At that time, it was valued by Christee's of London at $2,000. In the July 1986 edition of National Geographic, a statue like the one at Northern State Bank was featured in a photograph with several other replicas and New York collectors Anne Griffiths and William M. Gaines.

Like the original, the replica is a reminder of the rich history surrounding the Statue of Liberty and all it represents.

It was French historian Édouard de Laboulaye who first suggested a monument which symbolized liberty, and his friend, Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi designed it and chose its site. Bartholdi also spent a great deal of time raising funds in France and the United States to bring the plan to completion. Alexandre Gustave Eiffel, designer of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, built the supporting framework.

Standing on Liberty Island overlooking the ship channel of New York Harbor, the statue is one of the largest ever made, and its proper name is Liberty Enlightening the World.

Lady Liberty is once again taking center stage in the main lobby of Northern State Bank, reminding bank visitors of the many freedoms we enjoy on Independence Day and every other day of the year. The replica of the famous State of Liberty was purchased by Northern State Bank founder George Beito in 1935 when he bought the building that formerly housed First National Bank. Until the bank's remodeling in the early 1970s, the statue was its lobby's centerpiece.

County fingers new technology

■ Pennington County purchases new fingerprinting machine

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

Hollywood has made the fictional notion of thumbprint scanners and retina identification devices a popular one. Though this technology, called biometrics, may seem futuristic, it's not all that far off.

Advances in biometric technology now allow those in law enforcement to scan and download fingerprint images electronically.

In 1997 the Minnesota Legislature appropriated funds for the installation of electronic fingerprint capture devices in sheriff's offices throughout the state. Minnesota's Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA) purchased a Printrak LSS 2000 fingerprint capture device for the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center and equipment training commenced on June 26, 2001.

Local law enforcement officials learned to properly acquire fingerprints and download them to the BCA. The old way of fingerprinting meant a lot of paperwork for authorities and several days of delay before the BCA and other agencies obtained them. A Pennington County official said the BCA receives between 7,000 to 8,000 fingerprints per month.

The Printrak LSS 2000 is also capable of taking mugshots, though Pennington County's machine is used solely for taking fingerprints. The machine can print out paper copies of fingerprints, as well and download them directly to the BCA.

Biometric technology

Biometric technology is defined as the measurement of unique personal characteristics. Physical biometrics involve things such as fingerprints, iris scans, and faceprints.

Using biometrics as part of the fingerprinting process is a far less complex process than implementing biometrics in more private industries or for the everyday citizen. According to Simon Liu, director of computer and communications systems at the National Library of Medicine, and Mark Silverman, technical advisor at the Center of Information Technology, National Institutes of Health, there are currently around 150 separate hardware and software vendors in the biometrics industry. Each vendor, whether agency or company, has its own proprietary interfaces, algorithms, and data structures. Standards are emerging, however, that allow for effective comparison and evaluation of different biometric technologies, making it easier to know which is the best buy and the best fit for any organization looking to implement biometrics.

Groups like the Biometric Consortium and the Microsoft Computer Corporation are developing such standards. The U.S. Department of Defense's Biometrics Management Office is also developing standard testing methodologies.

Liu and Silverman write that biometric technology is continually advancing. One of the problems with biometrics lies in the storage and security of the user's template, or biometric "signature." Storing the templates means storing someone's personal characteristics, which often stirs up debate about privacy concerns or susceptibility to identity theft. As the computer industry evolves, so do computer crimes, and no one wants their fingerprints or retina scans stolen or forged. A possible solution for this

Justice found for victims of Colorado shooting

by Kathl Carlson

> "We received the phone call no parent ever wants to get."

During the February trial of the Denver gunman who had shot her son and his friend, Deb Rogalla prayed.

She says she asked God to help everyone do their jobs right so that the trial's conclusion would bring justice for the two victims and their families.

The Thief River Falls mother's prayer was answered. The jury delivered a guilty verdict, and on June 15, a judge for the state of Colorado sentenced Atorrus "Chucky" Rainer to 224 years in prison for the February 3, 2000 shooting of Ryan Rogalla and Chris Manning, both 1998 Lincoln High School graduates, in their Denver home.

At the sentencing, the victims and their families were afforded the opportunity to make statements prior to the judge's ruling. While the young men simply asked that the judge give the defendant the maximum sentence, their parents had more to say.

Chris' dad, Rocky Manning of Fargo, who accompanied the Rogallas and his son to Denver, told the judge how the shooting would affect all of their lives forever.

Deb Rogalla went back to the evening of the shooting when, she told the judge, "We received the phone call no parent ever wants to get."

That night, Deb and Ryan's father, Jim Rogalla, flew to Denver to the bedside of their critically injured son. It was the beginning of what Deb describes as an emotional roller coaster.

Another family was at the hospital, too. Chris Manning's mother, Jody Bakke, her husband, Ryan Bakke, and their family were living in the Denver area at the time of the shootings.

While Ryan's most serious injuries tore his digestive system apart and required multiple surgeries, Chris had been shot in the face and arm.

Their attacker was a 17-year-old acquaintance who lived in the same housing complex, a fact Deb pointed out to the judge as she asked, "If the defendant could shoot someone he had watched football with and played video games with, what could he do to a stranger in a convenience store?"

When he recovered sufficiently enough to travel, Ryan returned to Thief River Falls. The Bakke family, too, moved back to Thief River Falls shortly after the shooting, and Chris returned last summer.

Ryan is currently attending Northland Community and Technical College, and Chris is working. Both continue to suffer physical effects from their injuries.

Ryan had the last bullet removed from his body in January when he had minor surgery for an infection that wouldn't heal. Currently, his injuries affect his mobility on his left side, and due to the multiple injuries he sustained, he may face more problems in the future.

Chris' injuries to his shoulder continue to affect his mobility.

Time brings emotional healing although the victims and their families continue to appreciate the safety net of their hometown.

Throughout the aftermath of the shooting, the trial and sentencing, the families were aided by Denver Crime Victim Advocate Debbie Bloch. Her help, Deb Rogalla says, was invaluable as she advised them of procedures, lined up paperwork and coordinated and explained everything. She even went so far as to subpoena Chris and Ryan for the sentencing hearing so that their mileage would be reimbursed.

The trial, which lasted four days, included the testimonies of the victims, the three young neighbors who heard the gunshots and rushed to the scene, and Officer Donahue, a law enforcement official who was a block away at the time of the shootings and was the first on the scene.

Deb Rogalla, who took in the entire trial and says it was hard to

Officers to address seat belt safety

Law enforcement officers across the state will put in overtime enforcement hours for a Safe and Sober campaign focused on seat belt safety over the Independence Day holiday travel period. During the enforcement wave, to take place between June 28 and July 7, more than 350 law enforcement agencies, including all districts of the Minnesota State Patrol, will enforce Minnesota's seat belt law in an effort to ensure that all Minnesotans are riding safely.

According to Minnesota law, officers must have stopped a vehicle for another moving violation before they can issue a belt citation. A seat belt citation will typically cost the recipient between $50 and $75 for each unbuckled occupant.

Statistics show that one person in Minnesota is killed every 13.5 hours in a motor vehicle crash, and that buckling up cuts the risk of dying in a crash by half. While seat belt use in Minnesota is currently about 73 percent, numbers vary regionally. Surveys are conducted periodically, before and after enforcement waves, to determine the change in behavior caused by enforcement. If 85 percent of drivers and passengers buckled seat belts regularly, about 50 lives would be saved, and 1,000 injuries avoided each year in Minnesota.

The Chief of Minnesota's State Patrol, Anne Beers, says that summertime is the most dangerous with regard to traffic crashes.

"In the winter months, people drive more slowly. There is a lot of property damage, but fewer lives lost," Chief Beers commented. "Then in the summertime, the mix of vehicles changes, with motorcycles, campers, and boats being trailered. Drivers speed up on dry roads, and the combination is deadly."

The Safe and Sober Program, sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, Office of Traffic Safety and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, is designed to reduce the number of traffic crashes, increase safety belt use and raise the public's awareness of risky driving behaviors.

Local teachers participate in Summer Teaching Institute

Sharon Baran and Craig Peterson recently attended Carleton College's Summer Teaching Institute in Northfield.

Baran, a teacher at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, spent the week studying techniques for teaching calculus. Peterson, a teacher at Marshall County Central High School in Newfolden, looked at methods for teaching psychology.

Designed for teachers of Advanced Placement, enriched or accelerated courses, Carleton College's 24 intensive workshops enabled teachers to focus attention on their individual teaching needs. The courses allow teachers to examine selected topics within the curriculum for their subject area. Under the direction of institute faculty members, many of whom are Carleton professors, participants have the opportunity to modify an existing course, create a new course, or develop new teaching materials.

Since 1980, more than 2,900 teachers from over 500 schools nationwide have attended these workshops, which carry three graduate quarter credits. The teachers receive a list of recommended readings and related assignments to be completed before their arrival on campus. One month after the program, they submit a final project for credit.

Ranked among the nation's top liberal arts institutions, Carleton is a private, coeducational college of 1,850 students located 40 miles south of Minneapolis and St. Paul. High academic standards, an excellent teaching faculty, and a diverse student body - contribute to Carleton's outstanding reputation.

Masonic Lodge quietly celebrates 100th

■ This traditionally secretive society is not so secretive about its support of the community

While at its roots it is a secret society, the Masons Northern Lodge 236 in Thief River Falls has made no secret about its support of the community. Its support of a scholarship program, the Adopt-A-Highway Program, and pancake breakfasts, for example, are well known. In an elaborate ceremony Saturday night in Thief River Falls, members charged their glasses and in a very specific manner, celebrated the 100th anniversary of the organization in Thief River Falls.

The order of Free and Accepted Masons is one of the largest and oldest fraternal organizations. It traces its ancestry to craft associations or lodges of stone masons. Throughout its history its members have been dedicated to promotion of brotherhood and morality.

Members of the Lodge in Thief River Falls compiled and presented information about the club's history to members attending the celebration. What follows is a brief history of the Thief River Falls lodge, as compiled by its members.

At the beginning of the last century, many members of the Masons were participating in the growth of the community. Many were leaders in civic life and industry. It wasn't until October 27, 1900, that a meeting was held in the I.O.O.F. hall to form a new lodge which later became Northern Lodge 236. The first officers were C.E. Winslow, worshipful master, C.E. Dobner, senior warden, James Rogers, junior warden, C.A. Robbecke, treasurer, L.G. Browning, secretary, W.A. Wright, senior deacon, W.B. Fuller, junior deacon, C.T. Umbreit, tyler. Those officers were installed by acting grand officers from Crookston on February 23, 1901. After installation the newly installed officers proceeded to confer the master mason degree upon Brothers Henry Grundy, Tom Newell, Harry Dobner, S.F. Staples and J.G. Ballard.

The Lodge held its meetings on Saturday evenings until late in 1901 when a resolution was adopted to meet on the first and third Mondays of each month. During the early years, the Lodge held stated communications during the entire year, with the exception of a few times during the hunting season when there was not a quorum. The Lodge prospered and degrees were conferred on many new members during the years 1902-1904. Brother Winslow served as Master of the Lodge until December 21, 1903. He evidently went on a trip as he died in the Iroquois Theater fire in Chicago, Ill., on December 30, 1903. Masonic services were conducted by Lacrosse Lodge at Milwaukee, Wisc.

Articles of incorporation governing Masonic societies were secured and completed in June of 1905. In December of that year the lodge moved from the I.O.O.F. building to their new temple which is now the Ace Hardware store. Ownership was along with Brother F.J. Stibbens.

Northern Lodge held its first joint installation of officers together with the Eastern Star in January 1908. In 1915, the lodge donated a set of Dr. Elliot's Harvard Classics and a set of books on Masonry to the public library. They also voted to spend the sum of $125 to furnish a room in the Physicians hospital.

At a meeting in 1919, a communication was read from Brother George W. Christie of Red Lake Falls requesting Northern Lodge to recommend a petition of dispensation for a new lodge in Red Lake Falls. This was acted upon and properly signed papers were returned to Brother Christie in 1921. Red Lake Falls Lodge No. 308 was chartered May 10, 1921. Their charter was issued at that time and signed by Most Worshipful Grand Master F.E. Jenkins. The first Master of Red Lake Falls Lodge was Ed Healy, with George W. Christie as senior warden and William Erickson as junior warden. Past Master of Red Lake Falls 308, George Christie, Sr., was Grand Master of Minnesota in 1952. Dr. Alan McKaig was presiding over degree work when he was called to deliver a new citizen at the local hospital. He called the craft to refreshment and upon his return to the Lodge, resumed labor and completed the degree work.

In 1930, the trustees reached an agreement to purchase the Stibbens share of the Masonic Temple. In August of 1944, the Masonic building was sold to the Ace Hardware Company. The lodge rooms were used as before until the Mercy Hospital was purchased for a new Temple and all the remodeling completed to suit the organization's purpose. It is where the organization still meets.

In 1951, a Golden Anniversary was held with a Lodge of Master Masons opened at the Lodge, called to refreshment, a banquet served at Zion Lutheran Church, and a return to the Lodge for closing. Many Grand Lodge officers and distinguished guests were present. Northern Lodge enjoyed an era of prosperity, with men seeking membership from every walk of life in the city and surrounding communities. Membership at the time was at 295 brothers.

On December 2, 1972, due to declining enrollment, Red Lake Falls Lodge No. 308 voted to surrender their charter and merge with Northern Lodge No. 236 in Thief River Falls.

In 1976, with Brother Lynn Josephson as the Master, a 75th anniversary party was held at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

For three years — 1987 with Aldon Hyland as Master, in 1988 with Rocco Wilson as Master, and in 1989 with Ed Doeling as Master — Northern Lodge received the Outstanding Lodge of the Year award from the Grand Lodge of Minnesota for lodges of its size.

The Lodge has participated in many community activities. For several years, starting in 1987, diabetic blood sugar monitors were placed in area high schools by the lodge. The organization has also given local scholarships to area high school seniors for the past 30 years and have had several area high school seniors receive Grand Lodge scholarships.

Saturday morning pancake brunches were held for many years in conjunction with the Eastern Star at the Temple and later at the Heritage Community Center. This was a fundraiser for local charities and served as a great time of fellowship among Brothers.

In 1988, Brother Rocco Wilson presented the Lodge's first Hiram Award to Brother Ernest Swanson. Since that time, Ed Doeling, Ken Shaw, Arnie Narverud, Don Walker, Alan Swanson, Lowell Swanson and Art Buringrud have been named as Hiram Award winners of the lodge. The family of departed Past Master and former secretary Irvin Wilson, donated a beautiful plaque which hangs in the lodge with the names of all of the Hiram Award winners.

In 1991, the Lodge joined the Minnesota State Highway department in the Adopt-A-Highway program in an effort to keep a portion of the roadways clean.

The Lodge continues a long standing tradition in Thief River Falls of playing whist with the Knights of Columbus twice a year. Pinochle is the game of choice after most stated communications.

Officers for 2001 are: Alan Swanson, master, Warren Torgerson, junior warden, Arnold Narverud, treasurer, Kraig Kainz, junior deacon, Jim Goldesberry, junior steward, Bloyd Ness, tyler, Lowell Swanson, marshall, Ken Shaw, senior warden, Al Walker, secretary, Wally Heaton, senior deacon, Lowell Swanson, senior steward, Ernest Swanson, chaplain, and Kent Kainz, L.E.O.

Northern Masonic Lodge 236 in Thief River Falls celebrated its 100th anniversary Saturday evening at the Heritage Community Center. Grand Master of the State of Minnesota Roger Taylor, presented local chapter Master Alan Swanson with a plaque to commemorate the occasion.

Business owners, chamber members hold policy development session

by David Hill
Editor

Business owners and representatives of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce met with a representative of the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce last week in Thief River Falls to discuss policy positions for the next legislative session.

At the time, the legislature was in the midst of wrapping up a special session to address all the funding issues that could not be settled during the regular session. Jennifer Byers of the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce explained that other representatives of the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce were at the capitol because of the special session. Nevertheless, she said they were going to make a statewide tour to visit with business owners and chamber members to listen to their concerns.

"I thought the session went well and there was a lot of input," said Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce President Julie Olson.

"I was pleased with the number of people who attended and the expertise they provided to her (Byers). You never know how much information will be taken back, but I think she was able to take back a lot of helpful information," said Olson.

Olson pointed out that there were some issues brought up that Byers was not even aware of — issues that they were not even aware of such as cheap housing coming out of Canada, for one. Myron Dargus of Northern Woodwork brought up issues of inexpensive Canadian [illegible] wood products, and noted that Northern Woodwork had been facing very stiff competition from Canadian contractors. Dargus estimated that they had lost about $1 million in business to Canadian firms.

Dargus and a couple of other individuals at the meeting also addressed concerns about the tightening labor market. Specifically, they said small companies were finding it very difficult to compete with larger companies because larger companies are able to provide better benefits. They suspect however, that with the tightening job market, even larger companies in the region will find it increasingly difficult to find labor."

Northwestern, Minnesota and Thief River Falls in particular, are better off than many areas of the country when it comes to electrical rates. City Administrator Roger DeLap expressed concerns of plans to restructure the electric industry. DeLap urged the chamber to consider the impact on smaller communities and rural customers, and to review of problems that are driving high rates in California.

Byers said she expects the legislature to proceed slowly on this issue. More emphasis will be placed on encouraging electrical generation. She added that many businesses, however, would like to have a choice and that's where it gets controversial, she said. She added that the good thing about California, other than the lessons learned about deregulation, is that people are paying attention to energy issues again.

Grant Wentz of Wells Fargo and Mike Melby of Melby Realty, noted that the public might not be aware of trends in protecting privacy. Both individuals noted that legislative mandates have become an expensive and time-consuming burden on business and private individuals. The number of forms needed to settle an estate, for example, have become exceptionally burdensome.

During the policy development session in Thief River Falls several issues were addressed, including sales tax and property tax, health care, privacy, and government mandates. Byers also provided participants with a long list that surveyed their interest in a number of issues. Categories included civil justice, education, electricity and telecommunications, environment, fiscal, health care, housing, privacy, and transportation.

Groups Visit Sanctuary

A group of students from Thief River Falls recently visited Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary for a day of outdoor fun. The children, ages 7 to 14, were chaperoned by Special Events Coordinator, Katy Olson. Sanctuary director, Blane Klemek, led the students on a delightful educational trail walk through the changing landscapes and habitats of the Sanctuary. The children learned about the many different species of wildlife that inhabit the property including moose, wood ducks, bluebirds, and tree swallows.

Other activities inside the Visitor Center included having lunch and participating in a bird study in which the children learned about owls and other resident species of birds. National Audubon Society videos about wolves and dolphins were also shown to the kids.

The day concluded with a trip to the Sanctuary pond where the students took part in a hands-on pond study. Armed with strainers attached to long handles, the kids were instructed to dip their strainers into the water to capture aquatic insects. The captured insects were then placed inside an aquarium where everyone was able to see and identify the strange and fascinating creatures. A final treat was meeting the Sanctuary's mascot, "Maggie the Magpie." Benefactor Eldor Omdahl brought the pet bird out to the children to see and enjoy.

On June 28th, ladies from the Dirt Diggers Garden Club of Warren spent the evening at the Sanctuary. Director Blane Klemek conducted a slide program about the history of the Sanctuary inside the Visitor Center for the group. Later, the club enjoyed a naturalist-led trail hike around the Sanctuary's ponds and canals. Highlights of the journey included discovering and identifying species of flowers, trees and shrubs. Red admiral butterflies were extremely abundant on the wild sumac and the source of much excitement.

The group concluded their evening with a club meeting inside the Visitor Center and a naturalist-led motorcade around the Bluebird Trail. Several stops and short walks along the route helped everyone learn about the abundant wildlife on the Sanctuary and the many past and present wildlife management projects.

MN soybean farmers encouraged by introduction of federal legislation

Don Louwagie, President of the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association praised Senator Mark Dayton of Minnesota for co-authoring and introducing the "Biodiesel Renewable Fuels Act" Tuesday, June 19, 2001.

The legislation (S. 1058) would provide a partial exemption to the diesel fuel excise tax in the amount of 3 cents for diesel fuel that contains 2% biodiesel.

"Renewable fuels need to be a key part of our national energy policy," Senator Dayton said. "With surging energy prices hitting consumers, businesses, farmers, and communities in Minnesota and across the country, we need to explore new options - such as encouraging production of biodiesel - which will help decrease U.S. dependence on foreign oil and help the farm economy," Dayton said. "In addition, biodiesel is an environmentally sound resource that will reduce emissions from motor fuels. Further, as we increase demand for soybeans, we are investing in the economic well being of farmers and rural communities across the country."

"I believe a tax incentive for soy-based biodiesel will increase domestic production and capture the agricultural, environmental and economical benefits associated with using this renewable source of energy," Louwagie said. "Everyone is a winner with this legislation - the environment, the economy and our nation's energy security. It would actually save taxpayer dollars because it would reimburse the Federal Highway Trust Fund through U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). The cost to the CCC would be offset, at least initially, by the savings from increased biodiesel sales.

This would reduce government expenditures under the soybean marketing loan program. It's estimated this proposal will save more than two dollars for each dollar in costs."

The legislation was co-authored by Senator Tim Hutchinson of Arkansas.

The Minnesota Soybean Growers Association is a non-profit, farmer-controlled membership organization established in 1962.

Its goal is to assure profitable soybean farming by monitoring government policies and supporting research and market development activities.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

Mid-summer is when they start mowing the road ditches. I guess the idea is that you don't want all those weeds and grasses to cause the roads to drift in next winter. Mowing the ditches in summer saves on the snow plow in the winter.

Few people realize that road ditches often have a greater variety of plants than can be found in most gardens. Although it always looks nice and neat after they mow, I sometimes wish they'd let the ditches be for as long as possible so we can enjoy the flora.

Just today, I saw a pink wild rose, a white wild rose, some yarrow, Queen Anne's lace, and many other wild plants I can't name, all in a single ditch.

If you get real lucky, you can find a lady slipper plant in the ditch. The lady slipper is the state flower, so if you touch one a beeper goes off somewhere in St. Paul and they send out somebody to arrest you right away. But they are beautiful.

However, the man who mows for the county is immune from prosecution, and he mows down everything--from roses to lady slippers--without fear of punishment.

During the countless thousands of hours I spent on a school bus as a child, I often looked out the window and watched the road ditches go by. I imagined that the bus had a sickle mower attached to it, and that the grass fell nicely to the ground as the bus passed.

They don't use sickle mowers anymore. They have those grinders which do a better job, but which aren't nearly as mesmerizing to watch. There's nothing like an old sickle mower slicing through the grass and laying it neatly down.

You know, not everywhere do they have road ditches. In Arizona, they just pave the desert without building up the road. No ditches there. When it rains, the water just runs over the road.

In Georgia, some of the old roads have actually sunk below the level of the surrounding fields. The road itself is the only ditch.

Ditches aren't all good. The biggest fear I had when I was learning to drive was that I would go in the ditch. That was the ultimate driving failure, ending up in the ditch.

When I got home way too late in high school, Dad would be waiting up. His main worry? That I was upside down in the ditch. As long as I wasn't in the ditch, all was okay.

But ditches were a blast as a child. The ditch banks made for great climbing on my little motorcycle. Popping out of the ditch onto the highway on the Honda 50 was as thrilling as it was stupid.

In sixth grade, I found a full beer can in the ditch. What a thrill! I didn't dare drink it, but I did pour it out and drink in the smell, which reminded me of going to a Twins game.

I must be getting old. I drive too slowly to worry about going in the ditch. My motorcycle days are over. The enjoyment I get out of ditches nowadays comes when I find a wild rose growing there.

NATURE NOTES

by Wayne Goeken
Rydell National Wildlife Refuge

Skeeters in Society.

Nothing like going to bed on a warm summer evening, lying under a light sheet as a welcome light breeze wafts through the screened window. Just as you're comfortably dozing off you are abruptly brought to your senses by the sound of an intruder, a faint whine that progressively gets louder as it zeros in on your location. The whine of an intruder you know that if not dealt with will likely help itself to a meal of your blood before the night is out. Yes, a mosquito has made it past your defenses and is homing in on you. Lights on, time to take the offensive if you want a restful, bite-free night of sleep.

Yes, mosquitoes. A fact of life to be dealt with in these parts. Looking beyond the nuisance factor for a moment mosquitoes do have an interesting life cycle. Considering that mosquito eggs can dry out and lay dormant for seven or eight years and still hatch when they get wet again we might as well resign ourselves to their presence. As for their eggs, they are roughly 1/40th of an inch long and often laid in batches of 50 to 200 with females often laying more than one batch during her life cycle which may be from 14 to 40 days depending on species and environmental conditions. On an acre of good breeding habitat, mosquitoes may number between one and nine million individuals!

As for their life cycle, eggs normally hatch in two to three days, producing aquatic larvae, which can mature to adults in a little over a week. Females are ready to bite one to two days after emerging as an adult. Only the female bites humans as our blood donations provide the needed protein for developing eggs. Males feed on the nectar of flowers and do not bite. The female is also the one to produce the high-pitched whine we hear as she homes in on us. Male's wings emit a lower hum that we don't hear.

Though we curse the hordes of mosquitoes that are part of our summer season, it is interesting to note that the significance of mosquitoes in American history. The following are excerpts from the journals of Lewis and Clark as they made their trek across the Western U.S. in the early 1800's; "Musquetoes uncommonly large and reather troublesome." -Lewis, July 29, 1806. "Musquitors excessively troublesome." -Clark, Aug. 2, 1806. "Musquitors excessively tormenting." -Clark, Sept. 7, 1806.

And more of mosquitoes in history from A Northwoods Companion-Spring and Summer by John Bates, a good book given to me by a good friend. In 1802 Napoleon sent 33,000 troops to New Orleans to reinforce his claim to Louisiana but mosquito-borne yellow fever decimated the French battalions, killing 29,000 of the troops. While other factors certainly came into play, the deadly mosquito's impact had some bearing on convincing Napoleon to sell 828,000 square miles of land to the United States for a paltry $15 million, or four cents an acre-doubling the size of the United States.

Mosquitoes also drove the French from their attempt to build the Panama Canal in the 1800s, after losing 23,000 men to yellow fever. But with the discovery of quinine tonic to cure yellow fever, the U.S. was able to complete the canal in 1914. Incidentally, the tonic cure was so bitter that the men learned to cut the taste with gin-creating the gin and tonic.

For all their nastiness, mosquitoes do play an important part in the food chain for many birds, bats, frogs, fish, and other species. Mosquitoes also assist with pollination of many plants. So, they're not all bad, but I'll still be dispatching them with efficiency and diligence-part of the checks and balance in my corner of the world anyway.

Live Eagle and Owl Program at Rydell Refuge on Sunday, July 8

A symbol of strength and courage or a "bird of bad moral character" as noted by Benjamin Franklin-whatever your opinion, the white head and tail of an American Bald Eagle soaring through the air is a thrilling sight to behold. Seeing an eagle up close is also a magnificent opportunity-one that all can enjoy at a special program to be presented by Greg Brooks on Sunday, July 8th at 2 p.m. at the Rydell Refuge Visitors Center. Greg will be assisted by a beautiful, 7 year old mature bald eagle that he successfully raised after rescuing it from a crash landing. Also featured will be Solly, a live one-year-old great horned owl with some amazing features of its own.

The bald eagle was chosen as the bird emblem for the United States in 1782. It is truly "American" as it occurs nowhere else in the world except in the United States and Canada. The Chippewa National Forest in northern Minnesota supports the highest concentration of nesting eagles in North America, except in Alaska. Closer to home, increasing numbers of eagles are being seen around the Refuge and along river corridors of the region.

Greg will share highlights of the natural history and biology of bald eagles at this program including the drastic decline of eagle populations largely due to the use of DDT and their comeback since DDT was banned in the U.S. in 1972. Demonstrating with his live eagle Greg will point out its many special adaptations such as its sharp talons and beak, six foot plus wingspan and "eagle" eyes which are six to eight times sharper than humans and can spot a rabbit in a field over a mile away.

Also to be featured is Solly, Greg's great horned owl, an injured bird that was treated but was not able to be returned to the wild. Also sometimes referred to as the "cat owl" for its eyes, the great horned owl is a very large owl-as large as our largest hawks in flight. It is also one of the fiercest avian predators known, eating any small animal that crosses its' path: rodents, rabbits, pheasants, songbirds, reptiles, amphibians, scorpions, and even their bigger cousins: the great gray and snowy owls! Learn more about this amazing silent flier and see it up close at Sunday's program.

This program is free and open to the public. program cosponsors are the Maple Lake Improvement District and the Union Lake Sarah Improvement District. To get to the Rydell Refuge go 3 miles east of Mentor or 3 miles west of Erskine on U.S. Hwy. 2 and turn south on Polk Co. 210 about 2.5 miles to the Refuge entrance sign and main gate. If arriving from the south, turn north off of Polk Co. 41 onto Polk Co. 210 and go about 3.5 miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign. ...Downhill After the Fourth of July.

I am beginning to remember why I dislike the months of July and August. Last week reminded me of the miserable humid heat of these months and the moths are reminding me of the other reason I dislike these months - the bugs.

I hate bugs, especially those that bite and bother me. Frankly, I don't even like the looks of the bugs that leave me alone. I just don't like bugs.

I don't like the looks of them. When you really look at most bugs, many of them have little faces that are downright ugly - and some of them have very pointed little snoots that look mighty dangerous to me - as if they could take a bite out of me. I don't like the fact that they are so tiny that they fit into my ears, nose and mouth - and sometimes enter those orifices. I don't like it that bugs can move so fast - they can fly and run and jump so fast that one can hardly keep track of them - and where they are or where they are going next - like onto me.

I don't like spiders either, even though I know that they are beneficial bugs, eating mosquitoes and other nasty creepy crawlies. I have really tried to appreciate the spider. Once I sat down next to one and tried to be very friendly and sensible about it, thinking of it like a little pet. I watched it doing its thing, toddling along on its long legs, all the while telling myself that this was just a nice bug that was merely walking along, minding its own business, and it wasn't the least bit interested in me.

I looked into its little face, telling myself that it was a friend, there wasn't a thing to be afraid of and that it couldn't help looking the way it did because that is the way God made it. I saw its creepy-crawly legs walking along, then walking faster and faster, albeit away from me, and I couldn't help myself - friend or not - I stepped on it. I just didn't want to take the chance that it would turn around and run at me on those creepy-crawly legs.

The bugs on my most-hated list of the present time and the ones that remind me of why I hate August are those little, bitty flies that cluster around me, especially my head and face. Are they called gnats? I thought they used to be called fruit flies.

Whatever they are called, they are the most irritating things I have ever seen.

No matter how carefully I check the door before I go out, peeking first in one direction and then the other to make sure I don't see any bunches of the buggers, it doesn't matter. The minute I set foot outside the door they are right there.

They swarm around my head and get into my hair, all over my face, under my glasses, into my ears and nose. If I open my mouth (just to mutter a few profanities at them, perhaps), they fly into it, too, and then I find myself standing outside in full view of the neighbors shouting profanities and spitting.

It does no earthly good to try to ignore them because they just don't care. It does no good to swat at them and kill a bunch, because they just don't care about their dead comrades either. In fact, it seems as if killing a few of them has the effect of making them increase. Perhaps they have little intercom systems on which they call for the reserve bugs once I am nasty to them.

One of the worst things about them is that they are so little they can sneak into the house through cracks and crevices, and even through the screens, and they do. I usually realize they have come after me inside the house when I try to read a little before going to sleep. There I am in my bed, trying to calm myself after my altercation with the bugs, reading peacefully, and they just seem to magically appear, fluttering and flitting around my head, drawn, no doubt, by my reading light.

The only way to get rid of them is to turn off my reading lamp and get them away from me by turning on some other light upstairs, like the hall or the bathroom, to draw them to that. Then, of course, I am not properly relaxed because I haven't read my allotted number of pages of my book and, besides, the light in the other room bothers me and I can't get to sleep.

So if I look particularly horrible and am extremely crabby from a lack of sleep all through the rest of the summer; it's the bugs, and that is why I dislike July and August.

(Never mind the moths - that is a whole, 'nother story!)

PARENTING TIPS
Family Travel

There is nothing like planning to make a nice vacation GREAT. Once you have decided where you are going, you want to make traveling there as much fun as being there. Here are a few ways to make this happen.

Do not make driving there a marathon event. Plan to stop at least every two hours. The stops should be at areas that allow children to use up some of their energy, so rest areas with a picnic lunch are better than sit down restaurants. It is best to avoid rush hours near large cities. Reservations for each night's lodging are a must to avoid having to go further because motels are filled.

Activities that allow your children to use their imagination and problem-solve will hold their interest. Some games that you remember from childhood still work the best, such as: counting games using different types of animals, road signs, colored cars or license plates.

I SPY - Object in distance, ask questions till guess correctly.

STORYTELLING - Start with one sentence and everyone builds on it and see how many different directions it can go.

SAY THE SECRET WORD - Each person writes down a word and listens for it to come on the radio.

A toy bag should include washable markers, plain paper, tablet, sticker book, magic slate, playing cards, books (unless a person tends to get car sick). Also a tape recorder with earphone and story tapes can provide many moments of peaceful pleasure for the driver as well.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about what you see out the window as you travel: colors, sizes, shapes, numbers, etc.

Location more important in farm real estate prices

Farm real estate prices are still rising in Minnesota, and location of the land is a large factor. "We can't explain current price levels on the basis of income potential and speculation potential alone," says Steve Taff, an applied economist at the University of Minnesota.

Where the land parcel sits with respect to job centers is one of the location factors influencing what buyers will pay, Taff writes in the "Minnesota Agricultural Economist," published by the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Average Minnesota farm real estate sales prices just keep on climbing," Taff says in the article. "This is despite low output prices, rising input costs and continued uncertainty about the future of federal subsidies. Sales price increases were seen in all parts of the state except the northwest."

In his study, the Minnesota average price for the 2000 record year was $1,222 for 2,258 sales of land, with a total of just over 250,000 acres sold. The average he used was a location- and size-weighted mean. This average has steadily climbed from $936 in 1996 to $1,039 in 1997, $1,113 in 1998 and $1,196 in 1999.

Taff says other reasons for continuing upward movement of farm real estate include:

- Perennial farmer optimism about future prices.
- Expected extensians of federal farm subsidies.
- Continued favorable local property tax treatment for farmland.
- The desire of same farmers to increase the size af their current operation by buying adjacent farmland.
- The desire of some non-farm buyers to use land as a hedge against inflation.
- Inflation itself.

"As always, I caution potential land buyers and sellers about reading too much into the average land prices reported here and elsewhere," Taff writes. "If you've got land to sell or if you have a hankering to buy land look before you leap.

"The financial stakes are high. Hire an appraiser, talk with your spouse and children and check your finances," he says. "Think about the children and be careful out there."

His complete article, including sales data by districts in the state, can be found on the Internet at http://agecon.lib.umn.edu/mn/mae703.pdf.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Question: I heard that the waiting period for Medicare changed. What is that about?

Answer: You likely heard only part of a recently announced change. People receiving Social Security disability benefits usually become eligible for Medicare coverage after two years. This waiting period was recently removed for individuals diagnosed with ALS, often referred to as "Lou Gehrig's disease". Except for this one disease, the waiting period for disability based Medicare remains at two years.

Question: I receive disability Social Security. If I get married will my benefits change?

Answer: Maybe. It really depends on exactly what type of benefits you receive since there are different types of disability benefits. For example, if you receive disability through your own work record it is unlikely that getting married would change your benefits. However, if you receive disability as a widow(er) or through the record of a parent then getting married would most likely end your entitlement to benefits although exceptions do apply. Of course, if your disability is paid through the need based Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program then it is very likely that benefits would change. When calling to ask about, or report, a change such as marriage be sure that both you and the representative are clear on exactly what type of benefits are being discussed.

Question: How can a person find out about a career with Social Security?

Answer: Social Security job opportunities exist across the country but specific vacancy openings are usually not known far in advance. Positions in local offices and national telephone centers work directly with the public while others do not. For detailed employment information go to the SSA webpage at www.ssa.gov and click on the link labeled employment opportunities. This will bring you to the SSA Employment Opportunities Page for position information, material for college graduates, pay scales, and other topics. Of major value here is a link for current job openings that connects you to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) website www.ssa.jobs.opm.gov. OPM maintains the U.S. Government's official job site for jobs, employment information, and applications.

Renowned artist aspires to share talent with others

by Becky Mattson
Reporter

Born an the Red Lake Indian Reservation, Gordon Van Wert is proud of his rich Red Lake Chippewa heritage. This internationally renowned artist has two works of art on display at the Seven Clans Casino, Hotel, and Indoor Water Park in Thief River Falls.

Van Wert's art, a stone carved eagle sculpture and a historical display, fill the hotel's lobby entrance.

The eagle sculpture–standing nine foot tall and weighing over 2,000 pounds–took three months to carve and represents one of the seven clan symbols. An eagle symbolizes power and energy to Native Americans. The base of the sculpture is made of limestone and the eagle is made of alabaster.

The historical display case consists of a pictorial timeline and meaningful artifacts. This display case was put together by Van Wert with the help of his Albuquerque friend, Robert Benjamin.

Gordon Van Wert was born in 1952 on the Red Lake Indian Reservation. He attended the Red Lake Public School from 1958 to 1966. A representative from the Institute of American Indian Art in Sante Fe, N.M., recruited Gordon to study art in 1966.

After his high school graduation from the Institute in 1970, Gordon joined the United States Army for two years. He was trained in air born artillery in Oklahoma, Missouri, and Georgia during this time.

Van Wert then decided to try his hand as a tribal police officer on the Red Lake Indian Reservation. This only lasted for six months as Gordon found it difficult to enforce the law upon friends, family, and others.

In 1973 Gordon moved back to Santa Fe and a year later he attained his post graduate degree from the Institute of American Indian Art.

Gordon mostly enjoys stone carving, steel fabrication, and bronze casting, but these are only a few of his many talents.

Two galleries–Linda McAdoo Gallery in Sante Fe and Bahti Gallery in Tucson, Ariz.–have sold Gordon's artwork for over 25 years. In addition to these galleries, he also deals with private collectors and museums. Van Wert has sold over 4,000 sculptures in all, ranging in size from two inches to 27 feet tall.

Gordon's amazing artwork has been on display and sold worldwide to a variety of collectors, museums, and art enthusiasts.

Albuquerque, N.M., is where Gordon now makes his home with his finance, Elizabeth Abeyta. His three children include two daughters - Jumper, 24 and Channisa, 18 - and his son, Sequoia, 11. All three children have attended the Institute of American Indian Art in Santa Fe, N.M.

Van Wert's newest aspiration is to eventually recruit young students to become involved in art. He plans to fulfill his dream by selling a sculpture to the Red Lake Tribal Council and put the proceeds towards the opening of a cultural museum on the reservation. He feels strongly about young Indian students becoming more familiar with their heritage. He will also do art demonstrations at the schools on the Red Lake Indian Reservation to spark interest in students this upcoming fall.

Currently, Gordon is looking at possibly doing some artwork for the Leach Lake Indian Band in Walker and Fon Daulac Indian Band in Duluth for their casinos.

First case of encephalitis reported in MN

The season's first probable case of mosquito-borne LaCrosse encephalitis has been reported to the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), prompting a reminder from MDH officials about the need to protect yourself from the LaCrosse virus.

What appears to be the year's first laboratory-confirmed case of the illness was reported in a one-year-old boy from the southwestern Twin Cities area. The child had been hospitalized, but has since been released and is now recovering.

A possible case had also been reported earlier in the Winona area, but it was later determined that the illness wasn't actually mosquito-borne encephalitis.

Minnesota doesn't usually record its first cases of LaCrosse encephalitis until later in the summer, according to Dr. Harry Hull, Minnesota State Epidemiologist. But while officials are concerned that the illness may be making an early appearance this year, Dr. Hull emphasized that it's too early to predict whether this will be a "bad year" for LaCrosse.

Every summer, MDH officials routinely recommend a number of preventive measures for people who live in parts of the state where the LaCrosse virus is commonly found. Those recommendations include eliminating mosquito habitat, and protecting children from mosquito bites.

Like many other states, Minnesota is also on the alert for a possible appearance by the West Nile encephalitis virus. But as of last year, West Nile had only been found in 12 northeastern states and the District of Columbia. So far this year, evidence of the virus has only been found in Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island, and no human cases of illness have been reported.

But MDH officials say the most immediate health threat here is from the LaCrosse strain, which has been a fixture of life in the upper Midwest for many years. LaCrosse also remains the most common form of mosquito-borne encephalitis nationwide.

Minnesota's experience with LaCrosse may help it cope with any potential threat from West Nile, according to David Neitzel of the MDH Acute Disease Investigations and Control Section.

Minnesota's ongoing surveillance for the LaCrosse encephalitis virus should help state officials detect any West Nile activity, Neitzel noted. Minnesota officials already monitor for possible cases of mosquito-borne encephalitis in humans, as well as virus activity in mosquitoes and other animals.

The main addition to the state's encephalitis surveillance has been the collection and examination of dead birds that may have been infected with West Nile. Crows and Jays, in particular, tend to be very vulnerable to West Nile, and die very quickly once they become infected.

MDH has been working with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to collect and test birds that may have died under unusual circumstances.

"It's very possible that West Nile will eventually make its way to Minnesota," Dr. Hull said. "But the question is when. And in the meantime, the ongoing effort to prevent LaCrosse encephalitis is still at the top of our agenda."

Like all forms of the illness - including West Nile - LaCrosse encephalitis affects the brain and central nervous system. Severe cases of LaCrosse, which occur primarily in children and adolescents under the age of 16, are characterized by symptoms like high fever, headache, confusion and other neurological symptoms.

Since 1985, 89 cases of LaCrosse have been reported to MDH, including eight cases last year. Half of the 89 reported cases occurred in children six years of age or younger. Almost all of the cases occurred in a relatively small area of the state, stretching from just west of Lake Minnetonka in the Twin Cities through the hardwood forests of southeastern Minnesota, along the Mississippi River.

Most cases of LaCrosse, like most cases of West Nile, tend to be mild, and may have no symptoms at all. However, severe cases of West Nile tend to occur in older people, rather than children or adolescents.

The "high risk" areas for LaCrosse activity in Minnesota include portions of 16 different counties, including Anoka, Blue Earth, Carver, Dakota, Dodge, Fillmore, Goodhue, Hennepin, Houston, Olmsted, Ramsey, Rice, Wabasha, Washington, Winona and Wright. For people who visit or live in these areas, there are two major strategies for preventing LaCrosse encephalitis, according to Neitzel:

Eliminating potential breeding sites. Ochlerotatus triseriatus, the mosquito that carries LaCrosse, breeds in wooded or shaded areas, in locations where small amounts of water and debris can collect. That can include natural features like a hole in a hollow tree, but it can also include a variety of "artificial" items - old tires, buckets, clogged rain gutters, birdbaths, cans, or anything else that will hold a small pool of water. Because this particular mosquito doesn't tend to travel very far, eliminating these potential breeding sites from your own property or your immediate neighborhood can greatly reduce the risk of exposing children to this illness. People living in high risk areas of the state are advised to get rid of potential breeding sites immediately, so they will be ready well ahead of the peak season for LaCrosse, which usually begins in late July and extends through the month of August.

Protecting your children from bites. Appropriate protective clothing and use of mosquito repellents will help protect children against exposure to the LaCrosse virus. Health officials recommend using a product that contains no more than 30 percent DEET - the active ingredient in most insect repellents.

Location more important in farm real estate prices

Farm real estate prices are still rising in Minnesota, and location of the land is a large factor. "We can't explain current price levels on the basis of income potential and speculation potential alone," says Steve Taff, an applied economist at the University of Minnesota.

Where the land parcel sits with respect to job centers is one of the location factors influencing what buyers will pay, Taff writes in the "Minnesota Agricultural Economist," published by the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Average Minnesota farm real estate sales prices just keep on climbing," Taff says in the article. "This is despite low output prices, rising input costs and continued uncertainty about the future of federal subsidies. Sales price increases were seen in all parts of the state except the northwest."

In his study, the Minnesota average price for the 2000 record year was $1,222 for 2,258 sales of land, with a total of just over 250,000 acres sold. The average he used was a location- and size-weighted mean. This average has steadily climbed from $936 in 1996 to $1,039 in 1997, $1,113 in 1998 and $1,196 in 1999.

Taff says other reasons for continuing upward movement of farm real estate include:

- Perennial farmer optimism about future prices.
- Expected extensions of federal farm subsidies.
- Continued favorable local property tax treatment for farmland.
- The desire of some farmers to increase the size of their current operation by buying adjacent farmland.
- The desire of some non-farm buyers to use land as a hedge against inflation.
- Inflation itself.

"As always, I caution potential land buyers and sellers about reading too much into the average land prices reported here and elsewhere," Taff writes. "If you've got land to sell or if you have a hankering to buy land-look before you leap.

"The financial stakes are high. Hire an appraiser, talk with your spouse and children and check your finances," he says. "Think about the children and be careful out there."

His complete article, including sales data by districts in the state, can be found on the Internet at http://agecon.lib.umn.edu/mn/mae 703.pdf.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Question: I heard that the waiting period for Medicare changed. What is that about?

Answer: You likely heard only part of a recently announced change. People receiving Social Security disability benefits usually become eligible for Medicare coverage after two years. This waiting period was recently removed for individuals diagnosed with ALS, often referred to as "Lou Gehrig's disease". Except for this one disease, the waiting period for disability based-Medicare remains at two years.

Question: I receive disability Social Security. If I get married will my benefits change?

Answer: Maybe. It really depends on exactly what type of benefits you receive since there are different types of disability benefits. For example, if you receive disability through your own work record it is unlikely that getting married would change your benefits. However, if you receive disability as a widow(er) or through the record of a parent then getting married would most likely end your entitlement to benefits although exceptions do apply. Of course, if your disability is paid through the need based Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program then it is very likely that benefits would change. When calling to ask about, or report, a change such as marriage be sure that both you and the representative are clear on exactly what type of benefits are being discussed.

Question: How can a person find out about a career with Social Security?

Answer: Social Security job opportunities exist across the country but specific vacancy openings are usually not known far in advance. Positions in local offices and national telephone centers work directly with the public while others do not. For detailed employment information go to the SSA webpage at www.ssa.gov and click on the link labeled employment opportunities. This will bring you to the SSA Employment Opportunities Page for position information, material for college graduates, pay scales, and other topics. Of major value here is a link for current job openings that connects you to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) website www.ssa.jobs.opm.gov. OPM maintains the U.S. Government's official job site for jobs, employment information, and applications.

Renowned artist aspires to share talent with others

by Becky Mattson
Reporter

Born on the Red Lake Indian Reservation, Gordon Van Wert is proud of his rich Red Lake Chippewa heritage. This internationally renowned artist has two works of art on display at the Seven Clans Casino, Hotel, and Indoor Water Park in Thief River Falls.

Van Wert's art, a stone carved eagle sculpture and a historical display, fill the hotel's lobby entrance.

The eagle sculpture-standing nine foot tall and weighing over 2,000 pounds-took three months to carve and represents one of the seven clan symbols. An eagle symbolizes power and energy to Native Americans. The base of the sculpture is made of limestone and the eagle is made of alabaster.

The historical display case consists of a pictorial timeline and meaningful artifacts. This display case was put together by Van Wert with the help of his Albuquerque friend, Robert Benjamin.

Gordon Van Wert was born in 1952 on the Red Lake Indian Reservation. He attended the Red Lake Public School from 1958 to 1966. A representative from the Institute of American Indian Art in Sante Fe., N.M., recruited Gordon to study art in 1966.

After his high school graduation from the Institute in 1970, Gordon joined the United States Army for two years. He was trained in air born artillery in Oklahoma, Missouri, and Georgia during this time.

Van Wert then decided to try his hand as a tribal police officer on the Red Lake Indian Reservation. This only lasted for six months as Gordon found it difficult to enforce the law upon friends, family, and others.

In 1973 Gordon moved back to Santa Fe and a year later he attained his post graduate degree from the Institute of American Indian Art.

Gordon mostly enjoys stone carving, steel fabrication, and bronze casting, but these are only a few of his many talents.

Two galleries-Linda McAdoo Gallery in Sante Fe and Bahti Gallery in Tucson, Ariz.-have sold Gordon's artwork for over 25 years. In addition to these galleries, he also deals with private collectors and museums. Van Wert has sold over 4,000 sculptures in all, ranging in size from two inches to 27 feet tall.

Gordon's amazing artwork has been on display and sold worldwide to a variety of collectors, museums, and art enthusiasts.

Albuquerque, N.M., is where Gordon now makes his home with his finance, Elizabeth Abeyta. His three children include two daughters - Juniper, 24 and Chamisa, 18 - and his son, Sequoia, 11. All three children have attended the Institute of American Indian Art in Santa Fe, N.M.

Van Wert's newest aspiration is to eventually recruit young students to become involved in art. He plans to fulfill his dream by selling a sculpture to the Red Lake Tribal Council and put the proceeds towards the opening of a cultural museum on the reservation. He feels strongly about young Indian students becoming more familiar with their heritage. He will also do art demonstrations at the schools on the Red Lake Indian Reservation to spark interest in students this upcoming fall.

Currently, Gordon is looking at possibly doing some artwork for the Leach Lake Indian Band in Walker and Fon Dulac Indian Band in Duluth for their casinos.

First case of encephalitis reported in MN

The season's first probable case of mosquito-borne LaCrosse encephalitis has been reported to the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), prompting a reminder from MDH officials about the need to protect yourself from the LaCrosse virus.

What appears to be the year's first laboratory-confirmed case of the illness was reported in a one-year-old boy from the southwestern Twin Cities area. The child had been hospitalized, but has since been released and is now recovering.

A possible case had also been reported earlier in the Winona area, but it was later determined that the illness wasn't actually mosquito-borne encephalitis.

Minnesota doesn't usually record its first cases of LaCrosse encephalitis until later in the summer, according to Dr. Harry Hull, Minnesota State Epidemiologist. But while officials are concerned that the illness may be making an early appearance this year, Dr. Hull emphasized that it's too early to predict whether this will be a "bad year" for LaCrosse.

Every summer, MDH officials routinely recommend a number of preventive measures for people who live in parts of the state where the LaCrosse virus is commonly found. Those recommendations include eliminating mosquito habitat, and protecting children from mosquito bites.

Like many other states, Minnesota is also on the alert for a possible appearance by the West Nile encephalitis virus. But as of last year, West Nile had only been found in 12 northeastern states and the District of Columbia. So far this year, evidence of the virus has only been found in Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island, and no human cases of illness have been reported.

But MDH officials say the most immediate health threat here is from the LaCrosse strain, which has been a fixture of life in the upper Midwest for many years. LaCrosse also remains the most common form of mosquito-borne encephalitis nationwide.

Minnesota's experience with LaCrosse may help it cope with any potential threat from West Nile, according to David Neitzel of the MDH Acute Disease Investigations and Control Section.

Minnesota's ongoing surveillance for the LaCrosse encephalitis virus should help state officials detect any West Nile activity, Neitzel noted. Minnesota officials already monitor for possible cases of mosquito-borne encephalitis in humans, as well as virus activity in mosquitoes and other animals.

The main addition to the state's encephalitis surveillance has been the collection and examination of dead birds that may have been infected with West Nile. Crows and Jays, in particular, tend to be very vulnerable to West Nile, and die very quickly once they become infected.

MDH has been working with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to collect and test birds that may have died under unusual circumstances.

"It's very possible that West Nile will eventually make its way to Minnesota," Dr. Hull said, "But the question is when. And in the meantime, the ongoing effort to prevent LaCrosse encephalitis is still at the top of our agenda."

Like all forms of the illness - including West Nile - LaCrosse encephalitis affects the brain and central nervous system. Severe cases of LaCrosse, which occur primarily in children and adolescents under the age of 16, are characterized by symptoms like high fever, headache, confusion and other neurological symptoms.

Since 1985, 89 cases of LaCrosse have been reported to MDH, including eight cases last year. Half of the 89 reported cases occurred in children six years of age or younger. Almost all of the cases occurred in a relatively small area of the state, stretching from just west of Lake Minnetonka in the Twin Cities through the hardwood forests of southeastern Minnesota, along the Mississippi River.

Most cases of LaCrosse, like most cases of West Nile, tend to be mild, and may have no symptoms at all. However, severe cases of West Nile tend to occur in older people, rather than children or adolescents.

The "high risk" areas for LaCrosse activity in Minnesota include portions of 16 different counties, including Anoka, Blue Earth, Carver, Dakota, Dodge, Fillmore, Goodhue, Hennepin, Houston, Olmsted, Ramsey, Rice, Wabasha, Washington, Winona and Wright. For people who visit or live in these areas, there are two major strategies for preventing LaCrosse encephalitis, according to Neitzel:

Eliminating potential breeding sites. Ochlerotatus triseriatus, the mosquito that carries LaCrosse, breeds in wooded or shaded areas, in locations where small amounts of water and debris can collect. That can include natural features like a hole in a hollow tree, but it can also include a variety of "artificial" items - old tires, buckets, clogged rain gutters, birdbaths, cans, or anything else that will hold a small pool of water. Because this particular mosquito doesn't tend to travel very far, eliminating these potential breeding sites from your own property or your immediate neighborhood can greatly reduce the risk of exposing children to this illness. People living in high risk areas of the state are advised to get rid of potential breeding sites immediately, so they will be ready well ahead of the peak season for LaCrosse, which usually begins in late July and extends through the month of August.

Protecting your children from bites. Appropriate protective clothing and use of mosquito repellents will help protect children against exposure to the LaCrosse virus. Health officials recommend using a product that contains no more than 30 percent DEET - the active ingredient in most insect repellents.

If I were a raindrop, I would fall to the ground. Then I would gather with my friends and flow to a river and the river would carry me to a lake. After that, I would evaporate on a hot, sunny day. Then, I would fall again to the ground. Maybe, I would soak into the ground. Next, a tree's roots would carry me up into the tree. Again I would escape through the leaves of the tree. This process is called transpiration. The water cycle would continue, and round and round I would go! During these cycles, unfortunately, I could get polluted!

One type of pollution is caused by the careless use of chemicals. People can accidentally, or even sometimes on purpose, spill chemicals on me or on the ground. This could affect more raindrops, people and the environment. The chemicals people use should not be put down the drain after they are used. Harmful chemicals should be stored safely, away from children and to avoid accidental spills. Otherwise the water would taste bad and could poison plants, animals, and even people.

Another type of pollution is silt. Silt from construction sites along with dirt eroded from farms can, believe it or not, pollute water. If dirt gets into me, I will look black and murky and probably will taste gross! Now, who wants to drink dirty, polluted water? Not me!!! Plus, it can clog pipes to make it hard for me to get out of the faucets.

Leaves can cause water problems for me too. First, the dead leaves fall into your yard and end up in the drain. Then, they clog the storm sewer. Finally, the storm sewer is not able to work properly. If the storm sewer is not able to work properly, then the waste can get into me, the water, that you use. A better way of getting rid of leaves is to compost them. Not only does it get rid of leaves, it also provides fertilizer for your lawn and garden. The same way I provide nutrients for your plants.

Oil, gas, and antifreeze are very toxic substances. If they get into me, people could get very sick. These products can even be deadly! If your vehicle has a leak, FIX IT! You should never directly drain these substances on the ground. Don't let these toxic materials get into me!

Another way I can be polluted is by animal waste. Please clean up after your animals. I don't want that gross stuff in me. If disposed of properly, animal wastes can be used as fertilizer. That way your plants can be healthier. Large farms also have to dispose of their animal wastes carefully. They are not allowed to spread manure unless they have enough acres to spread it across. That way it is not to concentrated and is less likely to contaminate me.

To keep these pollutants out of me, everyone must clean up spills, compost leaves, and properly dispose of wastes. Remember the three R's we have learned in the past: Reduce, Recycle, and Reuse. SWCD's help people use conservation practices that can keep me clean. But, we must all work together to clean up pollution. Remember we only have one percent of the Earth's water to use, so let's try to conserve our community waters!

by Otto Rubischko
Grade 5

Hi, my name is Otto Rubischko. Water is a very important resource. Water is something we need to survive. There is only one percent of all the water in the world that we can drink. Most of the water is salt water. Another reason there is not a lot of drinkable water is because our nation's rivers and streams are on the receiving end of a wide variety of different types of pollutions by sewage facilities and factories.

One thing we can do to protect our environment in the water is don't dump anything in the water that you would not drink yourself. Don't throw grass and leaves in the sewer system because water, like lakes and rivers, get drained in the Mississippi and some water is polluted and people have to drink water out of the Mississippi and could get sick from polluted water. Signs of water pollution are when a large amount of fish are dying in one area. Water and melting snow flow down from higher areas to lower areas carrying pollutants to the bottom of the watershed. The quantity of surface and ground water in your town reflects what you and others who live in your town do to the land, but you and others use the water and the amount of precipitation in your watershed.

Water can be polluted by erosion when it contains chemicals which are attached to the eroding soil. For example, as the water moves over the watershed's surface, it becomes contaminated from fertilizers and pesticides from lawns, golf courses, and farms, and animal wastes, silt from building and highway construction sites, or logging operations. Oil and gasoline from improper disposal spills or oil leaks from vehicles, road salt could poison animals. Runoff from streets and parking lots carrying pollutants such as antifreeze, oil, gas, garbage, and other junk. As the water soaks into the ground it becomes contaminated before reaching the rivers and lakes by leaking septic tanks and sewage treatment plants, leaking underground oil or fuel storage tanks, and leaking landfills and illegal dumps. Water usually moves very slowly; therefore, the pollution is also slow and spreads unpredictably. If we pollute the Mississippi River it could pollute many thousand miles of water. That could make that area a terrible place for animals to live.

Other ways we can protect bodies of water and animal habitats and areas where people live, and lakes and beaches is don't run your wash water onto the ground, use biodegradable soaps and shampoos, don't pour grease, oil, or other hazardous wastes down a sink, drain or down the storm sewer or street gutter. Make sure your septic system is working properly.

Don't throw garbage out your car windows, because the garbage pollutes ditches and could end up in the river. Animals could get sick from the paper or plastic you throw out. The paper could get in their natural drinking water, like ditches and rivers. Remember that wildlife need clean water to drink from this could be the ditches that you are poisoning. You should treat the environment and water where animals and other people live like you would like your home treated. Someday you could end up living there. The End.

When I hear "Community Waters," I think of houses in a neighborhood using water, or farms near each other using water. Community Waters is much more than that. It is everyone working together to conserve and restore the water around us.

Many people take advantage of the clean water supply around our area, but many people have dirty and polluted water. That water is unhealthy for them. So we need to try and help change that polluted water into clean water.

Where I live my water is nice and clean. I get my water from the ground. I use lots of water each day. As much water as I use, I try to conserve it too. Some ways I try to conserve water is I take short showers, when I brush my teeth I shut off the water when I am not using it.

Ground water is stored beneath the earth's surface. The water goes through pores, cracks, crevices, and rocks. Water is only called ground water after it percolates through the ground. In discharge areas, ground water reappears at the surface of the ground. Then it flows to lower surface areas like lakes, streams, and rivers. In the United States 80 to 90 percent of the total water comes from the ground. That's why it is very important to clean up our environment. Like when you change the oil on your car, you should clean up the oil. You shouldn't let the oil drain into the ground. Many people let the oil just run wherever they want it to. Another example is if your dog goes to the bathroom you should pick it up.

Many people think water is just always going to be clean. So that's why some people have to work extra hard to keep our water clean.

When I think of watersheds I think they are big sheds of water. Watersheds are much more than that. One way to think of a watershed is as a bowl. The high areas are the rim of the bowl and water flows down from these high areas to rivers and streams. Those rivers and streams empty into lakes, or oceans that would be the bottom of the bowl.

This is why I think it is so important to keep our water clean, because it is something we will be using forever. So if we all do our part by conserving water, and by also trying to keep our lakes and rivers clean, this is a natural resource that will be enjoyed by everyone for years to come.

All of a sudden, Fabric the Fish jerked. She was surprised because she was overcome by a school of fish. When she looked at them she could tell they were swimming away from danger. She instantly joined them by swimming her heart out to keep up with them. Fabric the Fish found out that they were swimming away from a huge whale. After about two seconds, she saw the shadow of the whale right above her. She saw most of the school being swallowed with one gulp. Luckily, Fabric the Fish dove down and the whale missed her.

Fabric the Fish is a very kind different fish. Awhile back an extremely smart and talented scientist caught Fabric the Fish and did something very advanced on her. You see, Fabric the Fish can talk to humans so she tells people about the dangers of polluting the waters. She tells them these things: Don't litter the water (or anything else for that matter). Plant some trees; they will keep the soil from eroding and going into the water. Build terraces around gardens and lawns so that when you water it, the water won't run all over. Building terraces saves our water, also. Fabric the Fish reminds them to check to make sure there are no leaky faucets.

Fabric the Fish tells people to make sure they keep oil, grease, fertilizers, pesticides, road salt, antifreeze, transmission fluid, silt from construction sites, and other leaks from motor vehicles away from the water. He tells them that leaking septic tanks, sewage, leaking landfills, and leaking fuel storage tanks that are underground contaminate the water.

Fabric the Fish tells them they can help by making sure their septic system is working well. He tells them to run full dish and laundry loads to save water (and money). You can also save water by turning off the faucet when you brush your teeth, wash your hands, and by not taking long showers. He tells them to use biodegradable shampoo and soap, and natural fertilizers. Fabric the Fish tells the people not to mow the lawn when the sun is high, but mow it when it's low so it won't evaporate quickly. He tells them to keep their water in the refrigerator instead of putting the glass under the faucet and letting it run while you fill it up and drink it.

Fabric the Fish also tells people he comes in contact with how to control solid wastes, also. This is what he tells them: "Don't hurt my friends, family and me by throwing trash in the water. Instead, recycle your papers, oil, cans, and bottles. Then, buy things that are recycled instead of things that are made out of wasteful material."

Fabric the Fish has, of course, never driven and has never even been in a car before, but he is a pretty good reader and he does have a lot of common sense. He tells adults not to drive their cars unless it's absolutely necessary, and to keep their car tuned. Then the gas exhaust won't pollute the air and water.

Even if we've never met Fabric the Fish or any other talking fish, we can still learn a lot from this story. Our community waters are VERY precious and we need to take extra good care of it so we will still have good water when we get older and for many more generations to come.

Grade 7

Do you know some background on community waters? If you do, I will refresh your memory. If you don't, I will tell you some information on this subject.

Do you know where our water goes? It goes into the Thief River, then into the Red River of the North, then it goes into Lake Winnipeg, next into the Hudson Bay, finally into the Atlantic Ocean. Wow! Think of all the people and animals that drink and use the same water.

How do we use water? We use it to drink, to bathe in, and to prevent ourselves from being dehydrated. We need water to live.

Do we really want to harm this water? I don't and I know most of you don't, so let's do ourselves and our children a favor and do simple things to prevent our water from going bad.

First of all, save the water. No use using more than needed. Second, watch what you put into any kind of water that is thrown out (lakes, ponds, streams, etc.). Chemicals can really harm any water. Not only chemicals, but leaves and litter, also. Leaves have phosphorus in them; phosphorus is a chemical. Litter may be made up of or contain harmful things, so best not to put any litter in the water. Third, clean up after yourselves. When some liquid (other than water) or solid things that can move around, spill on the ground, clean it up the best you can, so none of it gets washed away by the rain and goes into the sewer. Fourth, watch yourself. Watch yourself so that you won't make silly mistakes that could hurt yourself, people, animals, or the waters. Most of these accidents that happen could have been prevented, but the person wasn't paying attention to what he/she was doing. Fifth, care. Care about what you are doing. If you don't care; somebody else or you will get punished for your careless move.

Do you know what a watershed is? It is like a gigantic bowl that water systems drain into. This is the place where different cities' water supplies meet.

What do community waters affect? Community waters affect people, animals, and nature. Community waters affect everything. It affects life, because it is essential for life. People cannot live without it. Animals and plants cannot either. When someone spills some liquid that is not water or puts something in the sewers or any water, it goes further than that. The "harmful thing" will go wherever the water goes and it will contaminate the water. Then it will flow into a bigger body of water where other people, plants, and animals will get their water. If the animals use this water, they will be strongly affected by it, so much that they might even die. The communities that are nearby will use this water that is contaminated. I know that the city gets the water disinfected, but sometimes that isn't enough. Just do yourself, the animals, and the plants a favor. Watch, and clean up after yourselves.

Now I want you to tell everyone about community waters and what they should do about this environmental issue. Thank you.

It started out as a normal day. I had no idea what would happen today. All I knew was that it was Saturday, and I was going to sleep as long as I could. I only slept until 11 o'clock, which was early for Saturday, at least for me. I mean, come on, we have to get up way early in the morning everyday except Saturday. Why not get a few hours of extra sleep? Anyway, it was a nice day when I finally got out of bed. The sun was shining and there were only a few wispy white clouds in the sky. I called my friend Kim, and we planned to meet at McDonalds and go rollerblading together.

She was two minutes and 27 seconds late. I can't stand late people, but Kim was always late so I was used to it by now. Especially since I had known her since I was four. We decided because it was so hot that we would treat ourselves to ice cream cones.

By the time we were done ordering it was two o'clock. "We better get going," I said. "My mom wants me home at 5:30."

We had done this so many times before the route seemed quite boring, but we always had new things to talk about. We went through the downtown area, past the beauty parlor, past the hardware store, and down two more blocks until we got to the lake. By this time we had almost finished our cones. We would always take a break, sit on a bench and watch the geese swim by. On this particular day the geese weren't swimming; they were sunbathing. As I had done all my life I finished the cone and threw the paper wrapper into the lake. Kim did the same. We had always done that, but today a goose honked at us and waddled over to our bench. He said, I repeat HE SAID, "Don't do that. It hurts the water. You can kill birds; and if enough people do it, it can contaminate the water."

Can you believe it a goose actually talked to me? I turned to Kim and said, "Am I mistaken or did that goose just talk?" Her eyes were glued on the goose as she nodded and replied, "That goose just talked!"

The goose continued, "My mother died from contaminated water, and my sister choked on a piece of plastic. I sure wish you humans wouldn't litter and demolish our water supply. I am totally sick of all the bad stuff you humans do. I mean there are a lot of things that you can do to save the water. You could turn off the water instead of letting it run while you are brushing your teeth. You can pick up lawn clippings, and even rake leaves. You may not believe it but those two are the biggest contributors to water contamination. I have only one thing to say. We are important, too."

Kim and I sat there with our mouths hanging open. We could not believe that a goose had just talked to us.

After about five minutes we regained our senses. "I think Mr. Goose is right, don't you? Animals are important," Kim said. "We should really try more to protect them and their habitats." I had to agree with her. I think I am going to try my best to help preserve our community waters by doing all that I can.

MDA accepting applications for Value-Added Cooperative Grant Program

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) announced today the application deadlines for the Value-Added Cooperative Grant Program. The application deadlines are: August 1, 2001, December 15, 2001, March 15, 2002 and May 15, 2002. Applications received after these dates will not be reviewed until the next meeting of the review committee.

Since its inception in 1997, the MDA has assisted 32 new and existing cooperatives in efforts to increase producer members' profitability by adding value to raw commodities. The grant program has awarded over $700,000 for market research and feasibility studies, product development and testing, technical assistance in cooperative formation, development of business plans, and predesign of facilities.

The farmer owned "new generation cooperative" model is becoming increasingly popular because the emergence of ethnic markets, changing patterns of international trade, increasing demand for organic food, and the advent of biotechnology are all creating new market opportunities.

Groups interested in exploring new cooperative ventures can contact Terry Dalbec at 651-215-0368 to obtain an application and information on the Cooperative Development Grant Program or go to the MDA website at www.mda.state.mn.us.

Old Mill State Park activities set for July 8

Kids activities, a trail hike and open doors at the Larson Mill have been scheduled for Sunday, July 8, at Old Mill State Park.

At 11 a.m. Amazing Cattails will be presented for children. Discover how native people used this plant and why the cattail is called "Nature's Supermarket". Participants will also make a small souvenir they can take home. Meet at the beach at 11 a.m. for this program, which is about 45 minutes in length.

At 1 p.m. join a naturalist on a trail hike through the big pines. Discover some of the flowers in bloom, the towering pines planted by the Larson family, and look for animal signs. Meet at the beach at 1 p.m. for this program, which lasts about one hour.

Between 3 and 4 p.m. on July 8, the Larson Mill and Cabin will be open. Step back in time and learn what life was like around the turn of the century, and about the steam-powered mill for which Old Mill State Park is named. The Park Naturalist will be on hand to answer questions.

Housing needed by NCTC students due to increased applications

Applications are reaching record levels according to Dean of Students, Dennis Bendickson and fall registration is expected to be high at Northland Community and Technical College.

One setback, however, is a familiar limit in available housing. College officials report that the "Housing List" provided to incoming students is extremely short of rental opportunities. New students are already having difficulty securing living arrangements for the upcoming academic year.

Area landlords and home owners are asked to notify Receptionist Harriet Kezar at Northland of any rental units that may be available. The college is looking for apartments, houses, mobile homes and sleeping rooms in Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and the surrounding area. Those who can assist in providing housing for students are urged to call (218) 681-0701.

Northland Community and Technical College is a comprehensive college offering a quality technical and liberal arts education since 1949. One- and two-year degrees, transfer programs and diploma certification are available in 75 majors; as well as workforce training and continuing education programs.

Visit the college at www.northland.cc.mn.us. NCTC is an equal opportunity educator and employer.

Young receives speech and debate scholarship

Heidi Young, daughter of Stephen and Pavi Young of Thief River Falls, has been selected to receive a speech and debate scholarship from Concordia College in Moorhead. The scholarship is worth $10,000 and is distributed over four years.

Concordia is committed to excellence in forensics and has consistently had high rankings at the national level of forensic competition. A Concordia student received first place at nationals this year in after-dinner speaking.

Scholarship applicants are required to have at least a 3.0 grade point average, be in the top quarter of their class and be accepted for admission at Concordia. The speech and debate award is not based on financial need, but on the student's potential to be a good collegiate competitor.

Concordia College is a four-year liberal arts institution of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America offering 82 majors in 40 academic areas and course work in 16 pre-professional programs.

Rubischko attends Camp Courage

Do fishing, boating, campfires, camp outs, crafts, swimming and making new friends sound like fun? Ask Sarah, daughter of Tony and Laura Rubischko of Goodridge, because she had a great time at Camp Courage this summer doing all of those things and more.

Creating opportunities is what the camp is all about. Camp Courage, in Maple Lake, Minn., is a barrier free residential facility serving people of all ages with physical disabilities and kids with speech/language/hearing impairments. The camp offers a safe, accessible natural environment where campers discover abilities they never knew they had or thought they had lost.

Campers are often introduced to hobbies or sports they can continue after camp. During the school year, the residential Environmental Education program gives first through eighth grade students a chance to get close to nature. Camp facilities are also available for group rental. September through May. There are also many volunteer opportunities throughout the year.

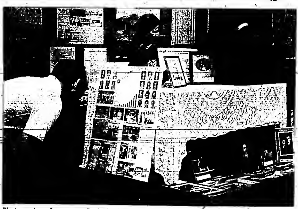
The children and grandchildren of Gene and Gretchen Beito joined them Saturday as they were honored as Pennington County Historical Society's Pioneer Family for 2001 Saturday at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village. Seated are (from left) Kimberly Beito, Joseph Sutherland, Gene and Gretchen, Benjamin Beito and Rebecca Sutherland, and (back, from left) David Beito and his wife, Miraille Genedry; Kathryn Beito Sutherland and her husband, John; and Laure Beito and her friend, Yele Wong.

Surrounded by family and friends, Gretchen and Gene Beito listened as their long-time friend Orin Green spoke at a program honoring them as Pennington County Historical Society's Pioneer Family for 2001 Saturday at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.



Photographs, newspaper clippings, the trunk that Ama Beito brought from Norway and even Gene Beito's Navy uniform were part of a display Saturday at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village when the Beito family was honored, as Pennington County Historical Society's Pioneer Family for 2001.

Face painting (and in this case, hand painting) by Smiley 4-H Club members was among the activities at Family Festival at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village Saturday.

MN farm records show high level of federal payments

The average net income for a representative group of Minnesota farms was $56,083 last year, according to financial records of the farms. The records also show that government payments accounted for 85 percent of the total net income. The figures underscore the importance of federal dollars to supplement farm income, says Blue Earth County educator Kent Thiesse of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

The income figures are from the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities (MNSCU) Farm Business Management Program. They represent the financial records of nearly 2,300 farms. The figures are fairly typical of farm operations throughout southern and western Minnesota and other upper Midwestern states, according to Thiesse.

The farms in the MNSCU program averaged $47,651 in government payments in 2000, or 85 percent of total net income. An average of $21,808 came from the scheduled Agricultural—Market Transition Act (AMTA) payments that are part of the seven-year federal Farm Bill. The other $25,843 came primarily from extra AMTA payments and oilseed payments that were part of the Market Loss Assistance Program, and other federal programs for selected farmers such as the Conservation Reserve Program and disaster programs.

The percentage of net farm income from government payments was highest in the Red River Valley at nearly 96 percent, and lowest in east central and northeast Minnesota at 62.5 percent. South central Minnesota was at just over 88 percent of net farm income from government payments, while southwest Minnesota was at 81 percent and west Central Minnesota at 84.5 percent.

It's important to keep in mind that not all farmers receive a high level of government payments, Thiesse points out. Livestock producers with limited crop acreage and farmers producing specialty crops derive far less of their income from government payments.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture paid out record levels of federal farm payments in 1998, 1999 and 2000 to offset low crop prices and minimize the effects of low farm profitability. Without the federal dollars, there would probably have been an economic disaster for farm businesses in many areas of Minnesota, says Thiesse.

Federal government figures show direct payments to farmers totaled nearly $30 billion in 2000. This compares with about $23 billion in 1999, slightly over $12 billion in 1998 and $7.5 billion in 1997.

Producers have marketing loan settlement options

Producers with outstanding Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) nonrecourse loans have various settlement options. All of the options must be carefully considered before making a final selection.

Nonrecourse loans can be repaid at the lesser of principal plus interest or the market repayment rate. If the market repayment rate option is used, it must be completed prior to the loan maturity date.

After maturity, the loan must be repaid at principal plus interest, or the commodity can be delivered to CCC. State Executive Director John Monson reminds producers that when quality of the commodity is a problem, the delivery option must be compared to the local cash price. CCC discounts on poor quality can reduce the loan settlement rate to less than feed value. Any reduction in settlement rate requires that the difference between the loan rate and the settlement rate be repaid to CCC with interest. Depending on the discounts, it may be to the producer's advantage to sell the commodity and pay off the loan instead of delivering to CCC.

Many loans mature during the summer months. Producers must review their settlement options before maturity to determine which option will provide them with a better return for the commodity. Producers should contact their County FSA Office to discuss their CCC loan settlement options. Any movement of loan collateral requires prior authorization from CCC.

Attendees are asked to park in the northeast parking lot (Lot A) of the University of Minnesota Crookston campus. Directions to the parking lot will be clearly marked from Highway 2 as well as Highway 75. Tours will start at 8:30 in the plot area directly north of the Northwest Research and Outreach Center and east of the Valley Technology Park. Tours will be repeated at 9:45. Following the tours will be a question and answer session from 11:00 until lunch is served at 12:30. This Q & A session will allow you to roam the plots and will give you a chance to talk with the University of Minnesota researchers and extension specialists and ask them questions one-on-one. Speakers include Drs. James Anderson, Deon Stuthman, Kevin Smith, Ian MacRae, Hala Toubia-Rahme, Dean Reynolds, Bev Durgan, Carlyle Holen, Alan Dexter and Rich van den Heuvel.

The morning program will have a strong educational emphasis. The research and demonstration plots not only include small grains variety demonstration plots, but also herbicide mode of action and disease and insect identification plots. For soybean production, specific topics include control of kochia, the soybean aphid, the soybean cyst nematode, white mold in soybeans and the need for nitrogen fertilization in northwest Minnesota. For small grains production, specific topics that will be presented are armyworms, septoria leaf spotting diseases and fungicide use in small grains.

Lunch will be served at 12:30. Starting at 1:30 there will be an opportunity to review the small grain and sugar beet weed control research at the Center of Drs Beverly Durgan and Alan Dexter. These tours will start at the North Farm of the Northwest Research and Outreach Center. The North Farm is located 1/5 miles north of the University of Minnesota Crookston campus on Highway 75. Mark your calendars and plan to attend this exciting and educational program.

County fingers new technology

problem could be in using hybrid technology: combining biometrics with smart cards or other such security technology.

One thing is sure, the introduction of biometrics into everyday life is happening. The Pennington County Law Enforcement Center has begun with small, yet significant, changes to the fingerprinting process. Tomorrow, law enforcement officers may be entering secure areas of their facility using the same kind of technology, just like in the spy movies.

The Printrak LSS 2000, priced at around $55,000, was purchased by the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension for the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center. The machine scans and captures fingerprints electronically, as well as having the capability to take mugshots.

sit and listen, noted that at that time the defendant seemed to have more rights than the victims who were only allowed in the courtroom during their testimony and closing statements. She knew also that, in order for justice to be served, it was important that everyone do his or her job just right. The defense attorney did everything he could to discredit the witnesses.

After one woman was let go, the jury included eight men and four women, a group of people Deb described as a mix of ages and races although most, she says, were middle-aged.

The very emotional trial affected others besides the victims and their families, including the court reporter who cried as the guilty verdict was read.

It affected the members of the jury, too, as one man, who is of the same race as the defendant, assured the victims and their families, "We're not all like that."

One of the jurors, a female instructional designer who works for a Denver firm, attended the sentencing hearing, following through in her conviction that she did the right thing. She also told the Mannings and Rogallas of how, at the end of deliberations on the first day, nine jurors had doubts. However, after being sent home for the night and having the opportunity to think about everything they had heard, 11 returned the next day believing that the defendant was guilty. They then spent time going back through the evidence which convinced the twelfth juror before the jury rendered its guilty verdict.

The young neighbors, who were the first on the scene and are credited with saving Ryan's life, attended the sentencing hearing also. Two of the three young people who Deb Rogalla has labeled as "the three angels" continue to reside in the Denver area, and the third attended college this past year in Spearfish, S.D.

Following the sentencing, those involved learned that the judge who heard the case tends to crack down particularly hard on crimes that involve home invasion.

Deb Rogulla feels, too, that the judge, in giving the defendant the maximum sentence, spoke to the fact that Rainer never named his accomplice..

Deb mentioned that fact in her impact statement too. ". . . He (Rainer) also continues to make choices that affect Ryan and Chris. Because he has chosen not to speak, they will have to live the rest of their lives not knowing why he wanted them dead. It's hard to get back your sense of security — the feeling of being safe. . ."

While she said she was so focused on the judge when the verdict was read that she did not notice the reaction of the defendant at the end of the trial, Deb says that she did watch him as the sentence was delivered. His face, she says, was void of emotion, further confirming her belief that he has little regard for life, his own or the lives of others.

In sentencing Rainer to 224 years, the judge delivered justice to Ryan, Chris and the many others who are victims of Rainer's crime. And while the judge also answered a mother's courtroom prayer for justice, Deb knows that she'll need to forgive the defendant before she can get on with her life. "And I'm not ready to do that yet," she says.

In the meanwhile, the families are ready for a little joy.

Two weeks ago, Deb, Ryan and Ryan's brother, Carter, experienced joy when they traveled to Wisconsin where they enjoyed and participated in the wedding of their nephew and cousin, Rick Donarski. And there's more joy to come. In August, Ryan will be an uncle and the Rogallas will be grandparents when Carter and his wife, Leslie, have their first child.

With time as the great healer, the crime that has inevitably changed their lives will hopefully become nothing more than a memory — a chapter when justice was served for Ryan Rogalla, Chris Manning and those who love them.

Arctic Cat's four-stroke receives honors

Manufacturers of the first modern four-stroke powered snowmobile were recently honored at the International Snowmobile Congress (ISC) in recognition of work done on developing new environmentally-friendly engine technology for snowmobiles.

The special 2001 BLIZZ'OR environmental award was presented by Yves Watier of the Quebec Federation of Snowmobile Clubs (FCMQ). Each year, the award is presented to one of the four manufacturers who display extraordinary action within the snowmobile industry.

"We all saw the prototype a year ago in Manchester, New Hampshire, and since then Arctic Cat has led the way to meet two of our biggest environmental challenges – snowmobile emission and noise," stated Yves Watier of FCMQ. "Arctic Cat became the flag bearer for our industry, demonstrating in a very tangible way that the snowmobile, snowmobile manufacturers and snowmobilers themselves are committed to protecting and improving our environment."

In use in limited numbers for the past two seasons as both rental sleds in West Yellowstone, Mont., and at many Arctic Cat events, the C TECH 4 engine showed fuel economy in the 20-25 mpg range. And its weight compares favorably to other sleds in its class. Along with their clean and quiet demeanor, the new Arctic Cat four-strokes are proving themselves ultra durable as well.

"The durability of these new machines is outstanding," states Arctic Cat's Snowmobile Product Manager, Joel Hallstrom. "The West Yellowstone rental fleet logged 250,000 miles with 'not a single engine failure.'"

For the upcoming 2001-2002 snowmobiling season, Arctic Cat remains the only manufacturer to offer a four-stroke snowmobile commercially available throughout its network of dealerships. Also, in response to requests from its customers for quieter, cleaner machines the company continues hard at work to improve the emissions and sound level performance of traditional two-stroke engine technology.

Arctic Cat Inc. designs, engineers, manufactures and markets snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) under the Arctic Cat brand name, as well as related parts, garments and accessories.

Seasonal weather influences energy from sun, wind, waves

Future renewable energy generation from the sun, wind and ocean waves is likely to be closely tied to seasonal weather patterns in different parts of the world. Scientists are studying ways to make better use of seasonal weather changes to produce alternative energy, says climatologist Mark Seeley of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Seeley cites recent articles in "Science" magazine concerning increasing efficiencies in harnessing ocean wave motions to produce electricity. "Some estimate that improved technology may allow up to 16 percent of the world's electricity output to be generated by wave motions," he notes.

Coastal areas are rated for energy production based on the waves' average energy production in kilowatts per meter of shoreline, says Seeley. Coastal areas of Scotland, northern Canada, the northwest and northeastern United States, southern Africa and Australia are rated as having the most potential for wave-generated power production.

"Seasonally, the maximum power production by waves occurs during the winter," Seeley points out. "That's when atmospheric pressure differences produce a magnitude and constancy of waves due to winds."

On the other hand, the maximum opportunity to produce power from solar energy occurs during the summer, says Seeley. That's when higher sun angles and longer days increase the efficiency and storage of solar cells that can recharge batteries, heat water or store electricity. Latitude, elevation and frequency of clear days are important climate features in locating solar collectors.

Wind-generated power depends on wind speed and wind constancy. Seeley cites a study by Donald Baker of wind in Minnesota. "He showed that the maximum power output from wind generally occurs in the transition months of April and November," says Seeley. "Therefore, generation of wind from electricity is likely to be highest during the spring and fall."

Seeley is hopeful that energy storage and transmission technology will evolve to make better use of the seasonal variability in the earth's natural energy-producing systems.

Participating in the Miss Thief River Falls Scholarship Pageant program this year were Rachel Mathson, outgoing Miss Thief River Falls, and second runner up in the Miss Minnesota Pageant, and the reigning Miss Minnesota, Kari Knuttila of Detroit Lakes. Both provided entertainment numbers for the program.

The people of France presented the Statue of Liberty to the Minister of the United States in Paris on July 4, 1884, and it was shipped to the United States in 214 cases aboard the French ship Isére in June 1885.

The site chosen for the statue was the center of old Fort Wood, built in the shape of an 11-point star during the early 1800s, on what was formerly named Bedloe Island in New York Harbor.

President Grover Cleveland dedicated the monument on October 28, 1886, and it was unveiled before representatives of both countries. The people of France had donated about $250,000 for the statue's construction, and the people of the United States gave about $280,000 for its pedestal. A model of the statue stands on a bridge over the Seine River in Paris.

Floodlights were added to the statue's base in 1916; and it became a national monument in 1924. Throughout 1937, it was repaired and strengthened.

In 1956, Congress changed the name of the island from Bedloe Island to Liberty Island, and Ellis Island, an immigration station until 1954, was added to the national monument in 1965. In 1972, the National Museum of Immigration, built inside the statue's base, opened.

In 1984, the National Park Service, which maintains the Statue of Liberty National Monument, embarked on a three-and-a-half-year, $31 million restoration project of the Statue of Liberty. The repairs, which were necessitated by damage caused by wear, included strengthening connections between the arm, head and remainder of the statue.

The Statue of Liberty represents a proud woman, dressed in a loose robe that falls in graceful folds to the top of the pedestal on which the statue stands. Its right arm holds a torch raised high in the air, and the left arm holds a tablet on which the date of the Declaration of Independence is inscribed. A crown of huge spikes, resembling the rays of the sun, rests on its head, and at its feet, a broken shackle symbolizes the overthrow of tyranny.

The Statue of Liberty is one of the most celebrated examples of repoussé work, the process of hammering metal over a mold in order to shape it. This statue is made of more than 300 thin sheets of copper with a total weight of about 100 short tons. The outer layer of copper is supported by an iron framework resembling an oil derrick. The statue stands 151 feet, 1 inch high and weighs 450,000 pounds.

Floodlights from its 150-foot base shine on the statue, and the torch, which rises 305 feet, 1 inch above the base of the pedestal, gleams at night with powerful incandescence.

According the the 1986 National Geographic article, replicas of the statue have been sold continually from the statue's inception. While some have been commissioned by the official committees who sought to raise money first for the statue's construction and later for its restoration, others have been sold by private companies seeking personal profit.

Many owners of statues such as the one at Northern State Bank deem them a reminder of Statue of Liberty on Liberty Island— a symbol of hope and freedom lighting the world.

Steven Waskul joins the Army

Steven A. Waskul has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Entry Program. The program gives young men and women the opportunity to delay entering active duty for up to one year.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $50,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic military training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career job specialty.

Waskul, a 2001 graduate of Roseau High School, Minn., will report to Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla., for basic training. He is the son of Susan K. Hemp of Roseau, Minn.

Post 117 sweeps Crookston

John Marben was the winning pitcher in both games Sunday as Thief River Falls swept a Ninth District American Legion baseball doubleheader from Crookston at Irv Wilson Field.

Marben worked the final two innings in relief as Post 117 scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning to win a wild 12-11 first-game shoot-out.

Thief River Falls continued its offensive assault in Game 2, but Crookston's bats were silenced as Marben threw a five-inning no-hitter in a 10-0 blow-out.

Marben struck out four and did not walk a batter in the nightcap. A second inning infield error kept him from pitching a perfect game.

"It was a nice evening for us," said Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen. "We were down 7-2 in the first game and came back. The kids never gave up. The second game, we hit the ball hard, and John pitched a excellent ball game. He wasn't overpowering, but he had them (Crookston) hitting the ball on the ground, and we usually make those plays."

Batters benefitted from a strong wind in the first game when seven home runs were hit. The last fence-clearing shot was a game-winner off the bat of Caleb Crapeau in the seventh.

Thief River Falls had rallied from the early five-run Game 1 deficit to take a 10-8 lead, only to see Crookston tie it in the top of the seventh.

But in the bottom of the inning, Dane Jensen drew a lead-off walk and Crapeau hit the second pitch he saw out of the park for the win.

The sweep gave Thief River Falls seven wins in the past nine games.

"We've been playing pretty good baseball lately," said Wienen, after beating a Crookston team that won just one of its first 12 games.

Behind Marben (6-1) and Justin Skjerven (4-1), pitching has been a Thief River Falls strong suit, according to Wienen. Marben, Crapeau, Steve Wiseth and Garrett Hoglo have been the team's top hitters.

The defense, while usually solid, has been a little more up and down than Wienen would like to see. He watched his team commit four first-game errors that allowed Crookston to stay in the game.

"Our pitching has really come around, and we've been hitting the ball pretty well," said Wienen. "Defensively, we just need to start making the plays."

East Grand Forks remains the top team in the Ninth District North Half, pointed out Wienen. His team lost title game match-ups with East Grand Forks in back-to-back tournaments, at Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks, and the two teams split a recent regularly scheduled doubleheader match-up at Irv Wilson Field.

"I feel they (East Grand Forks) are the team to beat," said Wienen. "They've got a deep pitching staff, they play good defense, and they hit the ball awfully hard." Thief River Falls, Crookston and Roseau round out the North grouping that will be used to determine first-round post-season seeding positions.

Tigersharks season under way

Thief River Falls Swim Club Tigersharks program participants opened the summer season by competing in the I-29 International meet June 9-10, then played host to the Thief River Falls non-sanctioned meet June 21.

In the I-29 event, the Tigersharks faced swimmers from the Breckenridge-Wahpeton Swim Team, Crookston Crocodile Swim Team, Dickinson Dolphins Swim Team, Fergus Falls Flyers, FMY Gator Swim Team, Forks Area Swim Team, Grand Forks YMCA Barracudas, Helena Lions Swim Team, Minot Swim Club, Moorhead Marlins, Roseau Area Youth Swimming, Warroad, West Fargo Flyers, and other unattached swimmers.

"It was our first meet of the year, and the swimmers swam great," reported Tigersharks swim coach Kristin Naplin.

Four Thief River Falls swimmers turned in state-qualifying times in their summer debut. That group included Cole Bylander, male 11-12-year-olds 100 backstroke, 50 butterfly, and 50 breaststroke; Carli Cota, female 13-18-year-olds 50 butterfly, 200 individual medley; Matt Langevin, male 13-18-year-olds 50 butterfly, 200 individual medley; and Casey Engelstad, female 13-18-year-olds 100 breaststroke.

Warroad, Lake of the Woods and the Roseau Rays, along with unattached swimmers joined the Tigersharks for the Thief River Falls meet in the Franklin Middle School pool.

"We had a great turnout of swimmers, and they all swam fast and had fun," reported Naplin. "I was impressed with their enthusiasm and times."

Legion baseball doubleheader...

Detroit Lakes takes pair from TRF team

Detroit Lakes banged out 22 hits and scored 19 runs in a Monday night American Legion baseball doubleheader sweep over visiting Thief River Falls.

The 10-1, 9-1 setbacks dropped Post 117 to 11-9 for the year. It was the second match-up of the summer between the two Ninth District rivals, who split an earlier twinbill at Irv Wilson Field.

"Detroit Lakes hit the ball," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen. "Defensively we were okay, and our pitchers threw strikes. But they hit the ball all over the place."

Thief River Falls had that kind of offensive production in a Sunday sweep at home against Crookston, but the Post 117 bats were quiet on the road. "We didn't hit the ball well enough to give ourselves a chance to win," explained Wienen. "We couldn't string any hits together. That was the most disappointing thing; we just didn't hit the ball like we have been."

Only Thief River Falls run in the first game came in the third inning when Jon Forney came up with a two-out double and crossed the plate on a single by John Marben.

It was another single-run outing for Thief River Falls in Game 2 when Justin Skjerven singled in the second inning, advanced on a sacrifice bunt and scored on an error off a ball hit back to the mound.

The Thief River Falls 17-18-year-olds will be idle until a Tuesday, July 10, doubleheader at East Grand Forks. Post 117 will host the annual Tony Sipe League all-star game Wednesday, July 11, beginning at 5:30 p.m. at Irv Wilson Field.

GREENBUSH RACE PARK

from Bob Hullgren

Greenbush Race Park held its Mid-Season Championships Friday night, and the action was anything but boring as drivers in five classes ran for the titles and trophies.

The 14-car Mini-Sprints feature had fans on the edge of their seats. The 15-lap final included two rollovers – the first on Lap 2 when Cory Olson took his car over the top of Turn 1; the second on Lap 8 when Brian Burkel ended upside down in the middle of Turn 2. Neither driver was injured. Both Dennis Rantanen and Clay Sorteberg led early in this one, but it was Rick Bates (Badger) who picked up the win. Rantanen (Thief River Falls) finished second and Robbi Peterson (Middle River) was third.

Jim Hilman (Lancaster) continues to dominate the Pure Stocks. Hilman lapped the field Friday on his way to the Mid-Season title. Bill Timm (Greenbush) had his best race of the year with a second place finish and Cliff Dahl (Salol) was third.

Rod Peterson (Thief River Falls) led the final 10 laps of the NDPA Streets feature to pick up the Mid-Season trophy. Peterson took the lead from Dave Meyer (Thief River Falls), who would chase the rest of the way to finish second. David Hangsleben (Bemidji), making his first appearance at the track this season, finished third after starting tenth.

Super Stocks and Modifieds feature races were caution-plagued, but no less exciting.

The Super Stocks feature started with pole sitter Bryon Berger getting a flat on the opening lap, bringing out the yellow flag, and taking him out of the action. Gordie Lancaster (Bemidji) would then lead the field to the finish line. Dean Wensloff (Roseau) finished second, with Brent Olson (Lancaster) riding out the storm in third.

Dave Riopelle (Argyle) made it two-in-a-row Friday, when he raced to the Modifieds Mid-Season title. Riopelle trailed Dean Forst through the first three laps, before Forst skidded in Turn 3. Riopelle took the lead and held off the field through several caution flags for the win. Art Linert (Badger) finished second. Linert, who retired from racing after the 1998 season, was substitute driving Todd Erickson's car for the night. He started last in the 10-car line-up, raced competitively and stayed out of trouble to find himself in second when the checkered flag waved. Dale Holtan (Newfolden) finished third.

Greenbush Race Park will host its only scheduled Late Model show of the season Saturday, July 7, at 6:30 p.m. Mini-Sprints, Pure Stocks, Street Stocks, and Super Stocks will join the NLRA Late-Models on the program.

The Race Park is located just north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

Twins baseball clinic schedule to include Karlstad on July 13

Minnesota Twins will continue their 41st season of free youth baseball clinics Saturday, July 13, in Karlstad.

The Twins, along with Touchstone Energy and Broadway Pizza, are sponsoring 28 clinics this summer and Karlstad is the 21st stop on the 2001 schedule. The clinic is scheduled for a 9 a.m. start at the John Oistad Fields. The clinic will move indoors to the Tri-County School gym in the case of inclement weather.

The three-hour clinic is free, requires no registration, and is open to boys and girls ages 6 to 16. The clinic will be broken into two 90-minute sessions, the first for kids ages 6 to 8 starts at 9 a.m. and the second for ages 9 to 16 begins at 10:30. Twins baseball instructors will teach hitting, fielding, and pitching at each session.

Created in 1961 by longtime Twins scout Angelo Guiliani, the clinics serve as a way for the ball club to promote the game with youngsters throughout the region. Since the program began 41 years ago, more than 800,000 boys and girls have taken part in the Twins clinics. All boys and girls attending the clinic will receive a participation certificate, as well as a coupon redeemable for free Twins tickets.

The clinics, which are Minnesota State High School League-sanctioned, provide quality hands-on instruction. The Twins supply equipment that is designed to promote safety first (i.e. soft-cushioned balls and rubber bats).

For additional information on the Twins clinic programs, call 1-800-33-TWINS

COLORED INK

MARSHALL CO. SPEEDWAY

from Carl Rieke

Second night of the 2001 season at the Marshall County Speedway featured nice weather and a good crowd for the June 23 races in Warren.

First feature of the night was the NOPA Street Stocks, led on to the track by pole-sitter Stan Olson and first-race winner Aaron Holton. The race was exciting. Olson led from the green flag. He was challenged late by Sheldon Peterson, but held on for the checkered flag.

Next feature on the program was the Wissota Super Stocks. Ryan Fike of Fargo, N.D., and hometown boy John Halverson of Warren led the eight-car field on to the track. Fike jumped to the lead at the start. A battle for second developed between Bryan Berger, Halverson and Joey Pederson. The race slowed twice for yellow flags before Fike picked up the win. Berger was second.

Five-car Can-Am Outlaw Mini-Sprints feature was led on to the track by the previous night winner LeMar Rantanen and Robbie Peterson. With no caution flags, the race was fast. Peterson grabbed an early lead and went on for the win. Rantanen was second, and Shawn Bugge got by Clay Sorteberg in a battle for third.

Wissota Modifieds feature saw first-race winner Brian Wilde on the pole and Kevin Sexton on the outside. Wilde jumped to the lead at the start, but was challenged by Rick Delaine for most of the race. However, Wilde emerged with his second straight win at the track and Richie Berger caught Delaine at the flag for second place.

Last race of the night was the NOPA Pure Stocks. The 11-car event was a cash-fest as drivers either spun out and hit each other, or went off the track and hit trees off the back straightaway. In the end, a battle was waged between Lance Hopka and Ryan Scott before Hopka spun out and wound up fifth as Scott took the checkered flag ahead of Bill Timm and first-race winner Phillip Klopp.

Next action at the track will take place Thursday, July 12, as part of the Marshall County Fair.

ROCKET SPEEDWAY

-- from Bob Hultgren

Wissota Super Stocks highlighted the fifth race of the 2001 Rocket Speedway season Saturday. A good field of Supers were at the track and ready to run, and the feature was a crowd-pleaser as they watched Joey Pederson (Grand Forks, N.D.) go from worst to first for the win.

Pederson, starting from the third row, was tagged with causing a caution on the opening lap of the race. He was sent to the tail of the 16-car field and then proceeded to race his way back to the front. Using great passing moves, and a number of caution flags, the veteran racer took the lead with just two laps to go in the 20-lap final. Tom Balcaen (Winnipeg, Man.) finished second, with Ryan Fyke (Fargo, N.D.) third. A great run was turned in by Scott Jacobson (Fargo, N.D.), who came through the B-Main to finish fourth.

The Super feature was plagued by caution flags, but provided fans with a lot of three-wide, side-by-side racing fun on the track.

Dave Riopelle (Argyle) made it two-in-a-row by winning the Mid-Season title Friday in Greenbush, then picking up the Wissota Modifieds feature win Saturday night in Hallock. Kevin Sexton (Winnipeg, Man.), who leads the points chase, finished second with Gary Johnson (Karlstad) posting another good run and finishing third.

NOPA Street Stocks had a small, but competitive field. Richard Jones (Cass Lake) would lead flag-to-flag for his first feature win at the Rocket Speedway. Points leader Rod Peterson (Thief River Falls) was second, followed by Jamen Foss (Greenbush). Throughout the race, no more than a couple of car lengths separated the three drivers.

It was a double feature night for the NOPA Pure Stocks, who opened the evening with the completion of a rained out June 2 race.

The regular June 30 race featured five different lead changes, and when the checkered flag dropped it was Casey Faken (Lancaster) with the win. Faken started 13th in the 16-car line-up and skillfully picked his way to the front. Jim Hilman (Lancaster) finished second, with Derrek Pollack (Winnipeg, Man.) third.

The second Pure Stocks feature of the night was the first Rocket feature win for Steffen Snare. The Hallock teenager quickly took the lead, then worked through lapped traffic and held off the hard charging Hilman and Pollack for the win.

NOPA Pure Stocks have been an absolute pleasure to watch this season. The racing has been very competitive and clean.

Next race card at the Rocket Speedway will be part of the Kittson County Fair Thursday, July 5. The NLRA Late Models Special will begin at 7 p.m. Other classes running that night will be the Pure Stocks and the Street Stocks.

There will be no track membership required to race that night, and no Rocket Speedway points will be awarded. Winner in the Pure Stocks will receive $200; winner in the Street Stocks will earn $300. Trophies will go to the first and second place finishers in each class.

The Rocket Speedway is located at the Kittson County Fairgrounds in Hallock.

Second all-time highest number of antlerless deer permits available for 2001

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is offering an additional 51,915 antlerless permits this fall over last year. The total of 284,210 permits is an increase of 22.3 percent from 2000, and is the second highest number of antlerless permits ever offered by the DNR. The DNR offered 322,030 permits in 1992.

"These are impressive numbers, and they demonstrate how productive our deer herd is," said Steve Merchant, who coordinates the DNR Forest Wildlife Program. "It also shows how resilient deer populations are, even after a good old-fashioned Minnesota winter like last year's."

The winter of 2000-2001 was slightly more severe than average, but came on the heels of three consecutive mild winters.

Antlerless permits, which allow hunters the opportunity to harvest either an adult buck or an antlerless deer (doe or fawn), are the primary tool DNR wildlife managers use to manage deer numbers throughout the state.

Permit increases were greatest in northern Minnesota. In Deer Zone 1, which comprises the northeastern forested part of the state, quotas increased from 50,070 in 2000 to 71,850 in 2001 (+ 43 percent). In addition, permit numbers increased 27 percent in Zone 2, which consists of east-central and north-central Minnesota. Intensive harvest permits, which combined with regular and management tags authorize hunters to take up to a total of five deer per year, are available in permit areas 225, 227, 228 and 236.

Only one permit area in the state remains restricted to bucks-only hunting, permit area 116 in the Arrowhead Region. In Zone 2, the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge (permit area 203) will be restricted to a limited number of antlerless permits available only to youth under age 16 during the firearms season; all other hunters in this permit area will be restricted to bucks.

In agricultural areas of Minnesota, permit quotas increased slightly overall. There were some small decreases in quotas in parts of south-central and southwestern Minnesota, where deer populations were affected by last winter's deep snow and cold temperatures.

In Zone 3 (southeastern Minnesota), antlerless quotas increased by almost 12 percent. Most permit areas will continue to have intensive harvest permits available in the late 3B (either-sex) season.

Quotas in Zone 4, which includes the extreme western and southwestern parts of the state, increased 9.5 percent. Intensive harvest permits will be available in seven permit areas during both the Zone 4A and 4B hunt, primarily in northwestern and west-central Minnesota.

Hunting and trapping regulations and deer licenses will be available in early August. Applications for antlerless permits and deer licenses will again be made through the state's Electronic Licensing System (ELS) at one of the 1,700 ELS-Point of Sale agents throughout the state, or through the ELS-Telephone or ELS-Internet (after Sept. 1). Hunters can begin applying for antlerless permits in August. The application deadline for antlerless permits will be Thursday, Sept. 6 (the first Thursday after Labor Day).

Bears are most active in spring

When we get careless about a routine chore, it can develop into a big problem -- what people sometimes refer to as "a real bear."

Neglect outdoor sanitation at this time of year and you may find the metaphor turned on its head, making a real bear into a big problem, according to officials with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Bears are naturally shy of humans, so sightings are relatively rare. Each year, the DNR receives numerous calls from people who are delighted, astonished, alarmed and occasionally inconvenienced by a visit from these large mammals. Most problematic bear encounters take place in the late spring and early summer.

"This is a very difficult time for bears," said Bill Bernhjelm, DNR Enforcement Division director. "They are inactive and don't eat much during the coldest months of winter. When it warms up and they become active again, they are hungry. They can subsist on vegetation and berries until more substantial wild foods come on, but throughout June they are on the move and alert for any source of food."

Imagine a ravenous bear getting a whiff of dog food in a back yard, livestock feeding in an open shed, or tangy barbecue leftovers sitting in a trash can. Lured by the scent of such bruin-ambrosia, a few bears ignore their natural fear of humans each year and are found pillaging places they normally would avoid.

Compounding this temptation is the fact that female bears with 16-month-old cubs chase away their offspring at this time of year. Inexperienced at finding food and searching for territories of their own, young bears are the most likely to show up in places where they aren't welcome. Furthermore, said Bernhjelm, people sometimes make matters worse by encouraging bears that forage near human habitations.

"Bears are still enough of a novelty in that most people are excited when they see one rummaging around in their back yard," Bernhjelm said. "But unless they are discouraged early, bears can develop unhealthy habits. By the time people's excitement wears off, the bear's natural fear of humans may have been reduced to the point where the animal is a danger to property or, in rare cases, even to people. At that point, the bear is definitely in danger itself. The old saying that 'a fed bear is a dead bear' is true in many instances."

Bear sightings are most prevalent in northern Minnesota, but they've also been spotted in inhabited areas as well. Bernhjelm said Minnesotans need to be aware of the potential for unintentionally attracting bears.

To prevent bear visits, pet and livestock food, garbage and even bird seed should be kept inside. Bears are likely to pay return visits to places where they get even a small meal. A few stray kibbles not eaten by the family dog or the waste seed that accumulates beneath a bird feeder can be enough to put property on a bear's foraging itinerary. Bernhjelm cautions that bears are active at night, so putting out garbage the night before it is to be picked up can be an invitation to bears.

Bernhjelm said campers should be watchful this time of year because bears sometimes learn to associate campgrounds with an easy meal. Rules for bear-safe camping include never cooking or storing food in tents or sleeping areas and keeping food locked inside vehicles when not in use. If a bear enters your camp site, get inside your vehicle and stay there.

"If a bear wanders into the yard while you are outside, make your presence known by making lots of noise and get inside as quickly as possible," Bernhjelm said. "Black bears look big, but they are usually timid and can be scared off. Once you're safely inside, call the nearest conservation officer or wildlife specialist."

Starting in July, bears find an increasingly abundant supply of wild foods, and their tendency to visit inhabited areas decreases.

"Bears are wonderful creatures," Bernhjelm said. "They seldom cause problems unless they are encouraged. When they do get into trouble, the DNR is available to help solve the problem."

Hunter safety education course offered for women

Due to the popularity of the first women's Department of Natural Resources (DNR) hunter safety education course, the Minnesota Becoming an Outdoors Woman (BOW) program and the Minnesota Shooting Sports Education Center have teamed-up to host a women's course in the northland.

"The BOW program offered a similar program in the Twin Cities and registration filled quickly," said Jean Bergerson, Minnesota BOW program coordinator. "Women who wish to hunt, participate in shooting sports, or have guns in their home should learn gun safety."

All women 16 years and older are invited to attend this informative, hands-on course Saturday, Aug. 25, and Sunday, Aug. 26, from 9-5 p.m. Both days of instruction will be held at the Shooting Sports Education Center in Grand Rapids.

The course will provide hands-on safety instruction with various types of firearms. There will be an opportunity to try shooting a black powder gun, handgun, rifle and bow. Additional topics are survival, and map and compass navigation. This course satisfies requirements necessary for certification through the DNR. It also is a requirement for any additional shooting sports courses offered through the BOW Program.

Class size is limited to 24. The cost for the two days of instruction is $10. Lodging and meal packages are available for traveling participants. Women can register at the Shooting Education Center by calling (218) 327-0583 or via e-mail at www.mssec@uslink.net.

Canoes involved in half of 2001 boating deaths so far

Eight people have died in Minnesota boating accidents thus far this year and four of the victims have been canoeists, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The most recent occurred June 16 on Knife Lake in Lake County when a 32-year-old man from Iowa drowned after his canoe capsized under very windy conditions. It appears that he was not wearing a life jacket.

Other 2001 canoe deaths include two men, ages 26 and 28, who drowned May 31 when their canoe capsized on a small lake on the campus of St. John's University. They were not wearing life jackets. June 2, a 32-year-old woman collapsed on shore and died after she and two companions swam from their capsized canoe on Sylvan Lake in Wright County. Several non-fatal canoe accidents related to recent high water levels in Minnesota rivers have also been reported.

"This gives lie to the myth that boating deaths only occur in fiery collisions of high-powered motorboats," said Tim Smalley, the DNR's boating safety specialist. "A mistake in any kind of watercraft, including canoes, kayaks or other manually-propelled boats, can cost you your life."

DNR records show that most boating fatalities are simple capsizings and falls overboard from small boats, many of them unpowered or with smaller motors. "Statistics, even nationwide, show that most boating deaths are single-boat accidents," Smalley said. "The victim falls out of the boat or the boat tips over and the person drowns because no life jacket is being worn."

Smalley said that some people may not sense any danger because their canoe isn't motorized, so it appears harmless. Also, many people assume that since they are good swimmers, they can swim back to shore if something happens.

"What some don't understand," Smalley said, "is that factors such as cold water, alcohol and the physical condition of the victim may make a swim back to shore that's more than a few yards a near impossibility.

"Just about any outdoor recreational activity has inherent risks," Smalley said. "The canoeist has to accept responsibility to minimize risks to ensure their own safety and the safety of the others in their craft."

The DNR recommends these safety tips for canoeists: wear a life jacket; even good swimmers need to wear one. Don't overload beyond the labeled capacity of a canoe and keep the weight low. Keep an eye on the weather and head in if the wind picks up. Don't go out in a canoe or any other boat after drinking alcohol; beer and booze affect balance in a boat more that a person may be aware of. On dry land test new or unfamiliar boats and equipment in calm water near shore; take a canoeing safety course from the American Canoe Association, American Red Cross, or and other public service groups that offer beginning paddling courses at certain times of the year; stay with the canoe if possible and await rescue; even after capsizing and full of water, most boats and canoes will stay afloat. Many drownings happen when the victim tries to swim to shore rather than face the embarrassment of being rescued.

For more boating safety information, contact the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-888-MINNDNR or in the Twin Cities metro area call (651) 296-6157. Computer users can e-mail the DNR at info@dnr.state.mn.us or log onto the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us and click on "boating safety."

Deadline for state grants to improve safety and facilities at shooting ranges extended

Earlier this year the DNR set a May 15 deadline to apply for approximately $900,000 in Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR) funds for range improvements to be conducted by 2003. However, the deadline has been changed to an "open-ended" sign-up period this year.

"The LCMR has approved about $500,000 in range improvement projects, with $360,000 still available," said Chuck Niska, DNR shooting range coordinator. "By extending the deadline, we hope to have enough new applications to allocate the remaining LCMR funds by the fall of 2001."

Funds are available for rifle and pistol range construction or rehabilitation, trap and skeet range construction or rehabilitation, environmental safeguards, compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, and utility enhancements. Ineligible projects include operational and maintenance costs, new clubhouses, land acquisitions, and in-kind contributions of labor and materials. The applicant must finance 50 percent of the entire project with non-state funds.

"We want to focus on the safe operation of shooting ranges along with providing the public with additional places to conduct safe shooting," Niska said.

"With the types of projects funded, other aspects of DNR Hunter Education, such as Firearms Safety, would also benefit."

Shooting organizations interested in applying for grants should contact Shooting Range Coordinator Chuck Niska at (651) 776-3966 or e-mail him at chuck.niska@dnr.state.mn.us. Applications are also available through the DNR's Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us/enforcement/ranges.

DNR fills open Wildlife Division job

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has filled another high-profile wildlife position. Conrad Christianson, a DNR employee for 33 years, has been named furbearer and wildlife depredation program leader. He will be in charge of programs managing furbearers and wildlife damage.

Christianson, who holds a degree in wildlife from the University of Minnesota, had most recently worked as the environmental review program supervisor in the DNR Division of Ecological Services. Prior to that, he was assistant wildlife area manager at the Carlos Avery Wildlife Management Area for 14 years, and was an assistant area wildlife manager at Buffalo for nearly four years.

The furbearer and wildlife depredation program leader position became vacant last December when Mike DonCarlos, who was formerly in the position, took a promotion to manage the Wildlife Division's Wildlife Populations and Research Unit.

Christianson's new duties will include overseeing programs and activities that affect furbearer populations, managing wildlife damage issues, and helping establish furbearer hunting and trapping seasons and regulations.

"Conrad has a wealth of experience both within and outside of the DNR Wildlife Division," said Ed Boggess, DNR wildlife program manager. "He has a long-standing interest in furbearers and a solid background of work on wildlife management and complex natural resource issues."

Christianson begins his new duties June 27.

Road checks found many boats and trailers clean

State conservation officers recently conducted exotic species/aquatic plant transportation road checks near Baudette, checking 85 vehicles during a two-day period. Algae was discovered on two trailers, but no exotic species were detected and no aquatic plants were confirmed. An exotic species road check of 187 vehicles near Anoka resulted in only 16 warnings issued for small amounts of vegetation on boats and trailers.

Minnesota is currently home to numerous exotic plants and animals. Some of these have been determined to be detrimental to native flora and fauna. In an effort to control these species, state law prohibits the transportation of selected species of plants and animals. State conservation officers believe the road checks help protect and preserve waterways from harmful species.

"Road checks are an important tool in raising awareness of the laws and preventing the spread of harmful exotic species in Minnesota," said Lt. Jim Dunn, DNR Enforcement Division district supervisor in Baudette. "We were pleased to see such strong compliance and encourage boaters to keep up the good work."

Harmful exotics pose a threat to Minnesota waters, native aquatic plants and animals, and water-based recreation, including fishing.

Currently, these harmful exotics are living in relatively few Minnesota lakes and rivers, but they could easily spread and new species could enter from other states if citizens who use state waters don't take the necessary steps to prevent the spread of harmful exotic species.

Minnesotans can take steps to help stop the spread of exotics: remove any visible plants and animals from boats, trailers and other boating equipment before leaving any water body; drain water from the motor, livewell, bilge and transom wells at the ramp or access before leaving any water body; dispose of unwanted minnows and leeches on shore; never release live bait into a water body or release aquatic animals from one water body into another; wash and dry boats and other boating equipment that normally get wet in order to kill exotic animal species that were not visible at the boat launch before transporting to another water body, either rinse watercraft with hot tap water, spray with high-pressure water such as a car wash, or dry for at least five days.

The DNR will be conducting more road checks in the future to prevent the inadvertent transportation of aquatic species in Minnesota.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in Northwest Minnesota brought us over 4 inches of rain last week, adding many more lakes to Minnesota's 10,000. Between showers, the sun gave us time to keep trying to exterminate the cocoons, the tent worms that had escaped our wrath, had built to change into moths. If there were any leaves left on the oak trees, they would pull them together to keep the rain from making them get wet. The peony beds were loaded with cocoons, only until we discovered their hiding place and picked them and incinerated them. Roy sprayed all around the eaves of the house with Sevin, but the next day, he made sure they wouldn't escape and cleaned them down and they too, ended on the burn pile. Now we have to wash the whole house to get rid of the Sevin, but it is goodbye to the tent worms for this year.

Salem Lutheran Church had their Midsummer Fest on Saturday. Happy to say that the weather was nice and it was a success. Irene Nelson had a bake sale and also a rummage sale at the Strandquist City Hall.

Those from the Bethesda Lutheran Church who have their birthdays this week are Shelly Lafrooth, Elmer Holmstrom, Julie Ann Nelson, Dionne Lindstrom, John Cloom and Austin Watz. Happy Birthday to you all!!!

The Strandquist Seniors who went on Sunday afternoon to Thief River Falls to see the play "Annie" at the college were Evelyn Kujava, Iris Berggren, Evelyn Kline, Delphine Braff, Helen Jacobson, and the proud grandmother of five of the actors in the play, namely Elphie Adils. The five were Alan, Kelly, Alissa, Lauren and Robert Rogalla and their dog. Next month they will have a play at Northland called "Social Security," and in August, one called "Charley Brown," which we don't wish to miss. That's a good way to raise money for the college–so thanks to all the cast members for donating their time and talents.

LeRoy and Pearl Lundell of Minnetonka and Isaac and Betsy Thompson returned home from a 3-week tour of Norway on Thursday. They flew by way of Amsterdam to Oslo, and spent 10 days on tour as far north as Bergen. The rest of the time they drove to Christiansund, where they visited with all the relatives of the Thompsons. They saw all the places our forefathers had lived and are living this very day, a history of about 400 years. They told of the days when Hitler tried to subdue them and it almost made him lose the war. They took a trip to the very top of the mountains, which made Isaac wonder at the efforts that were made to get around in that terrain. He was glad that Grandpa came to Minnesota–at least the roads are better. They have been so busy since their return that we haven't been able to talk to them very much.

Morris and Hazel Anderson went to Grand Forks on Friday to greet Vinka and her daughter who arrived from Norway, then to visit Jim, Cindy and Christy Wetterlund there.

Sherril, Stefanie and Seth Stewart of Burnsville came last weekend to help Elsie Lafrooth celebrate her 90th birthday, and to visit with Peter and Pearl Thompson.

Marie Steffen, June Kasprowicz and Chris Steck of Mahnomen visited at Judy Kleinwachter's, and enjoyed the fine hospitality shown around there.

Jeremy Johnson joined a group who flew to Mexico City to assist the people there who have suffered from earthquake and weather conditions this year. They will return the first week in July. Jeremy is a caring man.

In between writing thank-you's, Elsie had time to visit with Robert and Cathy on Monday, to go for lunch at Otto and Doris Seng's home on Tuesday. On Saturday, Peter and Pearl Thompson and I were there in the evening. Rick and Karen Zimmerman visited her.

It looks like another storm is blowing in to set this week for another wet time. The wind is putting on a good showing also. Hope it will calm down soon.

The weather in Northwest Minnesota is ending the month of June with normal behavior for this time of the year. After over four inches of rain last week, so far this week it has only threatened us with "severe" storms which, if any came near us, it would have been when we were sleeping, and each day has been nice and very warm. We are hoping this weather will hold the same until after the fairs are over. There is so much planning and work to put them on successfully.

The Strandquist seniors met at Irene's Cafe for dinner on Thursday and, after having a delicious dinner, went to the community center to hold their meeting. Those attending were Elphie Adils, Winfred and Helen Jacobson, Evelyn Kujava, Iris Berggren, Delphine Breh, and Evelyn Kline. After the meeting they visited and enjoyed coffee time. There will be no Thursday meeting next week, so all can spend the holidays with friends.

Bethesda Lutheran Church will have their Midsummer Fest on Sunday, July 1. It is difficult to think that the days begin to lose a few minutes each day when we have only begun to appreciate the long days.

K.R. Thompson, who has returned to make new atlases of Kittson County, visited Elsie Lafrooth on Wednesday. Years ago, Elsie's husband, Edwin Lafrooth, worked with him making and selling atlases. Mr. Thompson also visited Vance Lafrooth and Isaac Thompson. We used to laugh at all the funny experiences the guys had while collecting their data for it.

Morris and Hazel Anderson drove to Grand Forks on Monday and stayed the night with Jim and Cindy Wetterlund. The next day Paul Anderson took them to Fargo to see the doctors. They visited Chona Chaffee while there. On Wednesday they returned to Grand Forks, where they celebrated Morris' 84th birthday with a lovely dinner prepared by Cindy. Other guests at the party were Chona Chaffee of Fargo, Paul Anderson and sons Christopher and Ken, and Wencho and daughter Rebecca Andersen of Savanger, Norway who is visiting Jim and Cindy. Last week I thought Wencho's name was spelled with a "V" like it sounds, I forgot the Norwegians have 'v' and 'w' turned around, so they say 'vater' for water and 'vinter' for winter and Vinca for Wencho. Sorry for the mistake.

Debbie, Erica and Ryan Evans of Lone Lakes and Lisa Bruggerman and Kali from the Twin Cities, came to visit a few days with LaVenne Johnson to help her celebrate her birthday. Pearl Thompson, LaVenne's mom, and LaVenne went with all of them to Grand Forks. There they were met by Becky Johnson and Michelle and Jake. They spent the day shopping and dining out. All have been having breakfasts at Pearl's famous pancakes each morning, a real treat, but Eric stayed with Jake at the Danny Johnson home.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson returned home June 21 from a three-week trip to Norway. They were guests of LeRoy and Pearl Lundell of Minnetonka. The first 10 days, with a bus tour starting and ending in Oslo, and including Lillehammer, Olden, Stalheim, Bergen and Telemark, Norway. Norway is a country of fjords, lakes and glaciers, so the scenery is breathtaking. Their tour guide, Rine and bus driver Ola, could not have been better. Ole handled the big bus well on the hairpin curves all the way to the snow-topped mountain. It gets little scary when there is no shoulder on the road and there is a 1,500-foot drop along your side.

The second half of the three weeks was spent at Kristiansund where they enjoyed visiting and getting acquainted with second cousins of Pearl and Isaac. They are all so hospitable. Betsy was the non-Scandinavian of four and had to ask for interpretation quite often but they all really enjoyed the trip. This was LeRoy and Pearl's eighth trip to Norway.

Now Roy is busy spraying the moths that have hatched from these cocoons. If a prize were given for the most worm destruction, he would be the winner. Now we hear that Army worms are making their appearance in Roseau County. This is becoming to be a real plague.

Welcome to the Frontier

America's frontier is not disappearing, it's just moving around.

While looking for ideas about editorials, I like to look at area and regional newspapers. Dave Jameson of the Warren Sheaf, had what I thought was an interesting column last week about the Census. In his column called "Screenings" he explained that his idea for the column came from Cal Melgard and a story Melgard noticed in the USA Today newspaper.

America's frontier is not disappearing, it's just moving around so why not use it to our benefit. That was the gist of the story and column.

Jameson pointed out that the Census Bureau defines "frontier" as any county that has a population density with fewer than six people per square mile. According to this definition, there are 400 counties with 4.7 million residents, and more than 1.4 million square miles that are still "frontier" as of the 2000 Census. Of course much of the "frontier" is located in Alaska, but 900,000 square miles of "frontier" remain in the 48 contiguous states. And guess where most of that "frontier" space is located? That's right, the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, and Nevada.

The "frontier" has been disappearing, but it isn't exactly gone nor is it disappearing at the rate we've heard. According to the U.S. Census, the U.S. lost only four percent of its territory designated as "frontier," while the population in the United States has increased by 32.7 million people.

The Census Bureau defines "frontier" as any county that has a population density with fewer than six people per square mile.

Jameson said in his column that Cal suggested putting up signs on the border coming in to Mashall County saying "Welcome to the Frontier." He added that while he thought Cal was pulling his leg about the sign idea, he may have a good idea.

Apparently others, though they may not realize it, are thinking along the same lines. Jameson noted that Ethel Thorlacius is toiling to promote the idea of developing what she calls heritage tourism in this part of Minnesota.

I would like to add that our area Chamber of Commerce agencies have been actively promoting birding tours, snowmobiling and other activities found only in less populated areas for years. And, Norma Hanson recently promoted a bus tour called "Tours through the Countryside." Thursday, I received a news release from Friends of the Prairie, Milbank, S.D., which was promoting a bus tour called "Passport to Prairie". The bus tour will focus on national wildlife refuges. I'm sure there are many more examples as well.

I don't want to leave anyone with the impression that we live in a void, or in an area devoid of human habitation, or that human habitation should be restricted from the area. Living here does have its hardships, but it's not without its comforts. One of the hardships might well be having to put up with folks who would like to kick out all human inhabitants, and those who would rather see fewer tax dollars spent in the "frontier". I can think of an advantage too — peace and quiet.

But I and, I suspect, many others like Cal's idea. Let's just put out a sign that says "Welcome to the Frontier".

Why is Miss TRF Scholarship Pageant so successful?

Congratulations are in order to Kelsi Holland, the new Miss Thief River Falls, and to all of the participants of the Miss Thief River Falls Scholarship Pageant. It takes a great deal of hard work and dedication to perform on stage in front of a large crowd, and years of work to develop the musical talent I witnessed Saturday night.

Congratulations are in order to the former Miss Thief River Falls Rachel Mathson, who won second runner-up in the state pageant and who tied for Miss Congeniality. We owe you our thanks for representing Thief River Falls so well.

Having attended numerous pageants in the past and having witnessed the work involved in such a production, I can appreciate the effort and dedication of the individuals responsible for the Miss Thief River Falls Scholarship Pageant. That Saturday night's production was once again a success is due to the dedication of people like Stacy Myhrer, Sue Dondelinger, Tammy Sparby, Kari Jesme, Mya Zutz, and Carla Sparby. Special thanks to all the judges and stage personnel too.

Celebrate the Fourth of July from one end of the continent to the other

by Mary Kiffmeyer
MN Secretary of State

July 4th marks the 225th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. We have a great history to celebrate!

The signing, and the patriots' acts leading up to it, are legendary: From Samuel Adams and other Bostonians who dumped crates of tea into Massachusetts Bay in protest of 'taxation without representation'; to Paul Revere, who rode horseback to warn Samuel Adams and John Hancock that British soldiers were coming to arrest them; to Hancock and 56 others who signed the Declaration of Independence at the risk of being executed.

John Adams, a signer of the Declaration, and later President of the United States, wrote that their actions "ought to be celebrated by pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other. . . ." Adams probably would be pleased that, just as the nation has expanded from the east coast across the continent, the celebration has expanded to include all that he envisioned, and more.

Independence Day has been observed every year since 1777, when Americans celebrated the freedom and promise offered by the Declaration of Independence. Today, we can revel in the founders' acts, and we can rally in commitment to making America's future even greater through our own acts of good citizenship.

We have the privilege of being able to look back and celebrate our founders' heroic acts; I hope our actions today will give future generations even more to celebrate on Independence Days yet to come!

Penas points out session highlights

Minnesota Legislators stayed up late this week to wrap up the 2001 legislative session and adopt a $27.3 billion two-year budget. With the pressure of a possible government shutdown just hours away, Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger) said the House passed landmark tax and spending bills that will have an impact for years to come not only for families in northwestern Minnesota, but for families throughout the state.

"Most significant is the $900 million tax bill," Penas said. "We'll get another rebate check sometime later this summer but more important, the tax bill will substantially reduce property taxes on all types of property."

On homes, farms and apartments, property tax bills will drop, on average, about 25 percent. For businesses, the savings will average about 10 percent. Penas said property owners probably won't see the reductions for months, but the long-term implications for rural Minnesota are very beneficial — more housing, expanded businesses and jobs, and more profitable farms.

"The impact will be state-wide and will directly affect almost every resident," Penas said. "This is historic legislation."

The other significant piece of legislation this session is the K-12 education bill, Penas said. There is $381 million in additional funding for Minnesota schools (three times more than what was sought by the Governor). When combined with property tax levies, there will be a total of $12.7 billion for K-12 schools in 2002-2003. As part of the tax reform, the state will assume the cost of the state-mandated local general education levies.

"In addition, many schools, especially in rural areas, will see added funding because the K-12 bill contains provisions to increase equity between schools in the metro area and greater Minnesota," Penas said. "The bill also provides extra money for school districts that don't have voter-approved excess levies and money to buy-down the existing levies for those districts that do."

Also Penas said the K-12 education bill is significant because of some of the accountability measures included in the bill which encourage schools to look at new ways to pay and reward teachers.

"Long-term, these changes will have what I hope will be a significant and beneficial effect on schools — better compensated teachers, increased student achievement and greater accountability to taxpayers and parents," Penas said.

Legislators urge comment on DNR plan

Representatives Tim Finseth and Maxine Penas want to make sure residents are aware of an opportunity for them to weigh-in on the DNR's proposed Off-Highway Vehicle (OHV) System Plan. The DNR has announced a series of several meetings they are holding around the state to gain public input on the plan. One of these meetings will be held in Thief River Falls on July 26 at Northland Community and Technical College from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

"Off-highway vehicles are a big part of our way of life in this part of the state," Finseth said. "I would encourage everyone to take a look at the DNR's proposed plan and see what impact it's going to have on the way we use our four-wheelers and ATVs."

The DNR will be taking comments until August 15 and will make copies of the plan available on their website at www.dnr.state.mn.us, in local libraries and DNR field offices. If you are unable to attend any of the public meetings, you can submit comments in writing by e-mail to www.jeff.asfoor@dnr.state.mn.us.

"To be quite honest, I'm not sure if our public comments will make any difference," Penas said. "But I would still encourage anyone who feels strongly about the issue to make sure and let the DNR know how they feel."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Close Up Program thanks community

To the Editor:

Democracy is more than a spectator sport. For it to survive and flourish, we all must become active, engaged citizens. This is the message I heard from 828 students representing 75 Minnesota high schools, who recently participated in the Close Up Foundation government studies program in Washington, D.C.

For a full week these youth had unique opportunities to develop a better understanding of our democratic process. History, government, and current issues came alive for them through meetings with congressional leaders, political advisors, and journalists. In addition, they learned from other Close Up participants from across the nation through daily debates and discussions.

Most important, they returned home with a deeper awareness of their responsibilities as citizens and the realization that a single individual can make a difference. Their newfound enthusiasm for involvement in our system of democracy is to be admired.

The Close Up experience was made possible through the efforts of local educators and parents, and the financial support of General Mills, Inc.; The Jostens Foundation, Inc.; Russell T. Lund Charitable Trust; Lutheran Brotherhood; USX Foundation, Inc.; and Wal-Mart Foundation. On behalf of Close Up, I commend the dedication of the Thief River Falls community, and look forward to working with you for many years to come.

Sincerely,
Alvin Keller
Minnesota Coordinator

Understand the patients' bill of rights

by Jack Faris
President NFIB

"Patients' rights" legislation is once again taking center stage in Washington, D.C. The new leadership in the Senate is making the curbing of the HMO industry a priority and the nature of the subject overall is making it news.

Health care affects everyone, so when our elected officials talk (or event just posture) about it, most Americans do, indeed, listen. In that way, it is unlike so many other issues that are debated in our nation's capital; it is truly important to one and all. Unfortunately, it is also one of the more complicated policy issues that legislators can grapple with. Not to mention one of the most financially significant. Whether you purchase health insurance on your own, sell health insurance to others or provide it to employees, the cost is critical. There are billions of dollars involved — the health-care industry as a whole (including not just insurance, but the care itself — doctors, nurses, hospitals, pharmaceuticals, medical supply companies, and on and on) makes up one-seventh of our overall economy. There is much money to be made, and to be lost.

And if the money alone didn't make this thing huge, the level of passion surrounding an issue as important as our health has helped turn it into one of the media's favorite issues.

So we read about it in the paper. We see it on TV. And it is still difficult to decipher the "truth" about the "patients' bill of rights."

Is it good for patients or not worth the cost? Is the insurance industry telling the truth? Or are they protecting their enormous assets? Are so-called consumer groups telling the truth? Or are they fronting for fat-cat personal injury lawyers? The forest and the trees become one.

There is one group in the lobbying-fray who, I promise you, is not interested in whether they make or lose money. They are only interested in being able to afford health insurance for themselves, their families and, hopefully, for their employees. And they are interested in protecting themselves from being sued for decisions they weren't involved in. Period. Who are these people? They are America's little economic-engine-that-could: small-business owners.

They, their families, their employees and their employees' families represent three-fifths of the nation's 43 million uninsured lives. To them, the so-called "rights" in this legislation are meaningless. Having health insurance is the only thing with real meaning to them, and the "bill of rights" does nothing to help them achieve that dream.

Those in the small-business community who are insured are struggling each year to afford the cost of increasing premiums. The Congressional Budget Office has determined that the "rights" bill will increase premiums an average of 4.2 percent. That number will mean the difference between "insured" and "uninsured" for thousands of these people.

There is legislation in Congress that would address the problem of the uninsured. A new law allowing the creation of Association Health Plans, for example, would help the small-business community in particular. It is therefore disappointing to me that "patients' rights" takes up so many headlines when it really only addresses such a small aspect of our overall health-care troubles.

If you, like so many Americans, are passionate about improving health care in this country, please take a few moments to look at the big picture, to think about whether "patients' rights" legislation is anything more than just a band-aid that would give a temporary sense of justice and a political feather to some groups. Think about how we can get this phenomenal free market of ours the chance to lift the quality of the system up while bringing the prices down. And if you need to sort out the forest from the trees after watching the evening news. . . just ask your favorite small-business owner what the biggest challenges are, and what they think ought to be done. They are the real experts.

For the entire month of June only .89 inch of rain was recorded on the KTRF gauge, of which .62 inch arrived June 2."

CITY COUNCIL

"The city council held a meeting Monday evening, but transacted very little business of importance.

"A numbers of bills were allowed and a sidewalk was ordered built on the west side of Main avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets.

"The matter of building a ditch on the line between the city and the town of Rocksbury on the east side of the river, to drain what is known as the Connelly slough, was discussed, but no action will be taken until it is found what amount of the expense the town authorities will pay. It requires a ditch 2,000 feet long and the estimated cost is $225.

"While no action was taken in regard to the proposed improvements to the city hall, the work will undoubtedly be done. The improvements proposed are the building of a thirty-foot addition to the rear end of the building and the re-modeling of the rooms."

Greetings to you, the week of our Red Lake County Fair. Please get out and support your local community. The kids also like to go and look around there. See you at the fair June 28-30.

On Saturday, June 23, the annual Setesdals Laget of America was held in Oklee with a nice crowd attending. There was plenty of food and the band entertainment was great.

The Goodridge TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) Club will be offering an open meeting on Saturday, July 7, at the Senior Center in Goodridge. Coffee begins at 9 a.m., with the meeting at 9:30. Gwenn-Smith will talk about the ways to get motivated and lose weight sensibly. Come and invite your friends. This is open to any TOPS members, former TOPS members, or to anyone interested in joining, to begin a sensible way of weight loss. There also will be door prizes. See you there.

Saturday, June 16, there were two weddings in the area, and families from the area attended. Weddings were for Roxanne Flaten and Roger Coen, as well as Sunny Carlson and Ryan Wilde. Congratulations to both couples.

June 17, Galen and Jodi Peters hosted a 4th Birthday party for Chelsea, and Father's Day supper. Those in attendance were Galen, Jodi and family, Orlan and Clarice Stolaas, Mary Olson, Vincent and Galene Lundeen and family, and Joel and LoAnn Stolaas.

On Saturday June 23, Kyle Lundeen and Jennifer Merrit were married. Kyle is the son of Dave and Judy Lundeen, and Jennifer is the daughter of Robert and Marilyn Laronson. The wedding was in Red Lake Falls and the reception and dance were in Thief River Falls. Congratulations to you two. Attending from the area were Darrow and Shirley Lundeen, Gloria Rustan, Lyle and Muriel Mandt, and Galene and Vincent Lundeen.

Ernie and Sammie Mostrom, and grandkids Randy and Dawn, are visiting in the area, and staying at the RV park in Thief River Falls. They plan to be in the area until after Deer Park class reunion.

Sunday June 24, the bridesmaids held a bridal shower for Sarah O'Neill in the cafe in Oklee. Sarah received nice gifts, and treats were served. Sarah will become the bride of Nate Lundeen on August 11.

One final thought to all: Happy Fourth of July to you and yours.

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Board Room in Thief River Falls, Minn., Tuesday, June 12th, 2001 at 10:00 a.m. Members present: Charles Naplin, Don Jensen, Arden "Bud" Comstock, Bob Carlson, and Oliver "Skip" Swanson. There were no members absent at this time.

County Engineer Delton Schulz, Assistant County Engineer George Broadwell and Maintenance Foremen Godfred Svir met with the County Board regarding issues with the County Highway Department. Godfred Svir presented an additional quote for a new mower tractor from Anderson Power and Equipment. A quote from Evergreen Implement had been received previously. The County Board asked that both be given the opportunity to quote a new tractor less the trade-in.

Delton then reported that they had tested the soil at the bare spot along C.S.A.H. #17 and found no salt. The Highway Department did excavate the area, refill with black dirt and planted new grass. The test was to be sent to the adjoining owners.

The County Board was informed that the new grandstand site at the Fairgrounds would require 2,000 cubic yards of gravel.

The County Engineer noted that the M&J Construction contract for crushing gravel has been completed with the final contract amount of $46,748.23. M&J crushed 3,000 cubic yards more than contracted for resulting in an overrun of $4,255.73. The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Naplin, seconded by Commissioner Jensen and upon vote was unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION, WHEREAS, the gravel crushing contract with M&J Construction has in all things been completed, and the County Board being fully advised in the premises,

NOW THEN BE IT RESOLVED, that we do hereby accept said completed project for and in behalf of the County of Pennington and authorize final payment as specified herein.

RESOLUTION, WHEREAS, Pennington County received funds for County State Aid Highway Maintenance each year that is administered by State Aid for Local Transportation Division, and

WHEREAS, in 2000 the amount expended on maintenance of the local County Road System, the cost of right-of-way acquired for several projects, snow removal, spring flooding and change orders have exceeded the estimate of costs, and

WHEREAS, the excess expenditure had to be financed from the County Road and Bridge general account which has created a hardship condition regarding funds available for use on local roads, and

WHEREAS, Minnesota Rules Chapter 8820.0016 subpart 1, allows, in the event of a hardship condition, a transfer from the state-aid allocation to the County local fund to be used off the approved state-aid system; and

WHEREAS, the County Road and Bridge budget is greater than or equal to the budget for previous years.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners hereby requests a transfer of funds from the State Aid Construction Regular and Municipal Accounts for Pennington County in the amount of $296,000.00 to be used on local roads and streets.

WHEREAS, The trust fund is a vital source of funding for Minnesota roads and bridges.

WHEREAS, There is an $8 billion backlog in deferred projects for Minnesota roads and bridges over the next decade.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD OF EQUALIZATION
JUNE 18, 2001 • 10:00 A.M.

Pursuant to law, the Pennington County Board of Equalization met in the County Board Room in The Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Monday June 18, 2001 at 10:00 a.m.

Members present: Donald Jensen, Bob Carlson, Oliver Swanson, Arden Comstock, and Charles Naplin and County Auditor Kenneth Olson. There were no members absent.

Also present were County Assessor Adeline Olson, Ken Szymanski, and Oliver Skadsem.

The members of the Board of Equalization signed the Official Oath of Office, which is on file in the County Auditor's Office.

Chairman Comstock called the meeting to order. Ken Szymanski presented his request to reduce the value of his property described as the NW1/4 of Section 20 Kratka Township Parcel #08.20.104.00. The value of the land was currently assessed at $50,400.00 and the building value was assessed at $73,300.00 for a total value of $123,700.00. Mr. Szymanski felt the building value was too high because of the property location to the flood plain and distance from a paved road. The County Assessor noted that the value had been increased because of a new garage being built in 2000.

Orville Skadsem presented his request to reduce the value of his property described as Kleinvachters Subd. Lots 11, 12, and 13 parcel #16.44.008.00. The value of this property is currently assessed at $82,700.00 and Mr. Skadsem felt the value should be no more than $70,000.00. The County Assessor noted that the value had been increased $11,200.00 over the last year's value because of the improvements made to the exterior of the home and because of the sales history of similar homes.

The County Board of Equalization returned to the Ken Szymanski property. After further discussion Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to reduce the building value of parcel #08.20.104.00 to $68,300, setting a total value of land and building to $118,700.00. Motion unanimously carried.

The Board then discussed Mr. Skadsem's request further. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to set the value of parcel #16.44.008.00 at $79,000.00. Motion unanimously carried.

With no other individuals present the County Assessor then reviewed the Township and City Board of Review meetings.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin that the real and personal property values as returned by the Local Boards of Review and submitted by the County Assessor be accepted and approved. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson to adjourn the County Board of Equalization. Motion unanimously carried.

'31 LHS grad inspires winning essay

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

While some find glory in youth, others wait a lifetime.

Peter Poppenhagen waited a long time for his spot in the limelight, and as it turned out, his moment of glory was the result of a chance meeting.

Poppenhagen was one of six Lincoln High School graduates who gathered for the reunion of the Class of 1931 at the Best Western Inn on Saturday.

In May, he was the subject of a feature story that appeared in The Forum in Fargo where he resides, and a copy of it was posted on an easeled bulletin board at Saturday's event.

Prior to The Forum story, Peter had been the inspiration for an essay by West Fargo junior Dan Grunewald. The title was "What Price Freedom?"

As the story goes, young Grunewald and 87-year-old Poppenhagen had met in Larson's Super Valu where the youth works and a question about grapes led to the conversation that would inspire Grunewald's essay.

". . . (H)e told me that when he was young he worked in a grocery store too. He did everything in the store and worked close to 10 hours a day, 6 or 7 days a week for 10 dollars a week. I knew things had been rough in the 1930s, but this still shocked me.

"I asked about the war and what that was like. . . Somehow he was sent to France to fight. It was Christmas Eve and he was outside in the cold. He told me they had promised the men turkey dinner for the holiday. When the meal got to him, he had a cold turkey drumstick and got coffee. He dipped the turkey in the coffee to warm it up and then drank the cold coffee. He told me this with a chuckle, but I imagined he was not exactly laughing back then.

"He went on to tell me about the Battle of the Bulge and his life now. How his wife had died, and where he lived now. How he had family in the area. How he just bought a new Oldsmobile. Bright red, he told me. He said it really goes. He added a youthful verrummmm . .

"This man did what he did. It was tough. It did change him. He remembers what he thought, felt and saw during the war. But to him, his family, his living, golfing regularly, his brand-new bright Oldsmobile was what put the sparkle in his eye. I see this as why he went to war. To protect the freedoms of this nation, so this nation could live.

"This man just personified my thoughts on freedom and what price some pay for it. . ."

At school, Grunewald's teacher selected three of the best essays and had the students who wrote them read them to the class. When Dan read his, another student, Megan Robley, recognized his source of inspiration and identified him as her grandfather, Peter Poppenhagen.

After the class voted to send Grunewald's essay to the Veterans of Foreign Wars' Voice of Democracy contest, it won the local post contest and then the district and then the North Dakota state competition.

In April, the West Fargo youth traveled to Washington, D.C. where his essay placed ninth in the national competition. Grunewald had the opportunity to attend a reception with President George W. Bush in the Rose Garden at the White House. He also won several thousand dollars in scholarships and attended an all-expense-paid leadership camp at Valley Forge, Pa. last month.

When district winners and their teachers were honored at a banquet in April, Grunewald's teacher, Marti Simmons brought Poppenhagen, and it was the second time he and Grunewald met.

"As a teacher, I get so tired about hearing all the terrible things kids get into," Simmons told Forum reporter Sarah Coomber. "When I saw the two of them together, it was just kind of touching."

Peter also had the opportunity to talk to the reporter, filling her in on the details of his war experience.

During World War II, Poppenhagen was a member of the 391st military police battalion, and in France, he was first assigned to make sure soldiers were not patronizing houses of prostitution, which, he told the reporter, he remembers "being as plentiful as grocery stores." Later assignments included escorting supplies, and after the war ended, he resided in a tent outside the stockades which held German prisoners of war.

As a military policeman, Poppenhagen also tried to help other soldiers and in cases of desertion, counseled them to return to their posts. "I felt it was more my duty to help them," he told The Forum. During the war, it was tough for the younger fellows — they were scared, cold, hungry." He also said that he was glad that he served because one feels a little more pride if he feels he's done his part.

When Peter returned from the war, he and his wife, Isabel, opened a dry cleaning business in Larimore, N.D. After Isabel's death in 1998, Peter moved to Riverview Place in Fargo where he lives a few miles from his son, Byron, and his family.

The chance meeting between the elderly veteran and the young student brought moments of much-deserved glory.

For Peter, it was the story "A lesson in freedom," which appeared in the "Accent" section of The Forum on Tuesday, May 8. "It was one of the biggest moments of my life," he said Saturday, and he talked about how The Forum photographer spent a half-hour getting just the right shot of him and the student. The large four-column photograph of Peter and his young friend which accompanied the story reveals the reflective profiles of the two men, the 87-year-old veteran in the forefront and the 16-year-old student, seated in a school desk, to his right.

Like Poppenhagen, each of the other classmates who attended Saturday's reunion probably had stories of their own to tell, too.

Clarence Offerdahl of Fosston, whose nickname, this reporter's been told, is "Poop," was a member of a trophy-winning basketball team at Lincoln High School.

In addition to Poppenhagen and Offerdahl, the early afternoon reunion was attended by classmates Eleanor (Carlson) Christofferson and Walter Steinhauer of Thief River Falls, Beatrice (Wedul) Wilson of Goodridge and Stella (VeVes) Sande of Grand Forks.

The classmates aren't sure just how many other surviving classmates there are. "There's a few scattered around the country," one commented.

With twinkles in their eyes, those in attendance, however, busied themselves, telling the usual "Remember when?" stories, and as they posed for a photograph for their hometown newspaper, shared the sentiments of one of the ladies who said, "I just feel so lucky to be here today."

Keep grilling fun and safe this summer

It's no wonder that grilling is a favorite way to cook this summer. It enables you to enjoy the outdoors, and at the same time is an easy and delicious way to cook. From burgers to steaks, ribs to roasts, for most backyard chefs, beef is the undisputed favorite choice for grilling.

The Minnesota Beef Council reminds you to follow these food safety guidelines when grilling during the summer:

- Purchase meats just before checking out at the supermarket and refrigerate immediately at home in the meat compartment or coldest part of the refrigerator.
- When using frozen beef, defrost overnight in the refrigerator, never at room temperature.
- Wash hands well with hot soapy water before and after handling raw meat and poultry.
- Keep raw meat and poultry from coming into contact with other foods during preparation.
- Wash all utensils, cutting surfaces and counters with hot soapy water after contact with raw meat and poultry.
- Keep carving boards separate from other cutting boards.
- Keep beef (and all meats) refrigerated until grilling time.
- Never take beef off the grill and return it to the same platter that held raw beef unless the platter has been washed in hot soapy water.
- Refrigerate leftovers promptly after serving (within 2 hours after cooking; 1 hour if in a warm place). Use refrigerated leftovers within 3 to 4 days.
- Irradiated (electronically pasteurized) beef patties are now available in the frozen meat case of most grocery stores.

A new brochure is available which will make grilling extra fun and delicious this summer. Some of the highlights include: beef recipes, grilling timetables, marinating tips, food safety information, tips for successful grilling, and guidelines for determining doneness. To order, send a self-addressed, stamped (34 cents), #10 business-size envelope to: Minnesota Beef Council Grilling Brochure, 2850 Metro Drive, Suite 426, Minneapolis, MN 55425.

School board considers hiring options

■ Resignation results in talk of hiring a media specialist

Reporter

Discussion about whether to reinstate the media generalist position or hire an assistant principal at Challenger Middle School highlighted the meeting of Independent School District 564's board of education Monday evening.

In April, the school board accepted the recommendation of Principal Patrick Marolt to eliminate the media generalist position at Challenger in a budget cutting move. Longtime librarian Jane Oberg retired at the end of the school year, and Marolt suggested that the position be eliminated for the upcoming school year. Marolt told the board that another longtime school employee, Dean of Students Howard Thorson, had indicated his intention to retire at the end of the 2001-2002 school year and that the school board could eliminate the dean of students position and reinstate the media generalist position at that time.

The recent resignation of Challenger Assistant Principal John Rutten, however, has left the board with options, and it discussed at length whether it should hire another assistant principal or reinstate the media generalist position.

All members agreed that they had accepted Marolt's April recommendation with hesitancy, and that the media generalist position would be eliminated for a period of one school year only. Many board members, too, felt that the resignation of Rutten had provided the board with a window of opportunity.

While one board member offered reasons why he felt the assistant principal position should be filled, others countered his reasons with why they felt the media generalist position should be reinstated.

A couple of board members stated that they had discussed the issue with Marolt and that he felt the library position should be reinstated. However, because Marolt has been on vacation, Superintendent Peterson had not had the opportunity to speak with him about the issue and expressed his desire to do so.

Eventually, the board of education reached a consensus about reinstating the media generalist position, pending Superintendent Peterson's discussion with Marolt.

It was agreed that Superintendent Peterson would act on the matter following his discussion with the Challenger principal and post for a position and that the board of education would act on his recommendation at its next meeting on August 13.

• The board of education recognized the Thief River Falls Band Boosters for the $297 it provided to Franklin Middle School for instruments.

• The school board heard reports from the following: district Business Manager Harry Nelson and Superintendent Irv Peterson.

• The board of education approved the following personnel items in its Consent Agenda: the resignation of Roger Hinden as cleaner effective June 27, 2001; the family/medical leave of absence without pay for Elise Row effective approximately September 4, 2001 through December 10, 2001; the transfer of Paula Prasko from .5 FTE 5th grade teacher to 1 FTE 4th grade teacher at Challenger Elementary School effective for the 2001-2002 school year; the employment (one-year assignment) of Dawn Couette as a reading teacher at Challenger Elementary School effective August 27, 2001 with salary and benefits per negotiated contract; the employment of Jean Craigmile as an educational interpreter effective August 27, 2001 with salary and benefits per negoti-

Michael Feeney, of Bismarck, N.D., enjoyed LaFave Park Beach with his family Monday afternoon while they visited friends in town. Feeney and many other children took advantage of the hot summer weather and a carefree day at the beach.

New school Supt. takes over duties in S.D. 564

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

On July 1, 2001, Irving Peterson became School District 564's new superintendent.

Peterson, a native of Frost, was previously superintendent at Blooming Prairie, and before that, at Comfrey. It was in Comfrey that he got his start as superintendent and as a K-12 principal, after having returned to school for his certification.

Peterson said he enjoys having an impact on kids by way of making policy and procedural decisions that directly impact them. In this way he's able to work with both teachers and students.

His philosophy of education is simple: preparation for life.

"Preparation for life means the three 'Rs', preparation for further education through 4-year or vocational schools, and all other aspects of maturing," Peterson said.

Peterson also said he sees his role to be the one of a facilitator who coordinates the various aspects that go into making the K-12 school system effective for children. He also sees himself as a liaison between the school district and the community.

"I'm an employee of the community," Peterson said.

Peterson got his start as an educator working for seven years as a physical education/health teacher. While teaching he received many recommendations from administrators, urging him to pursue an administrative career, but the timing wasn't right, Peterson said.

The opportunity to move home and take over the family farm took him from behind the teacher's desk to a much different farm life. But, as he watched his children grow and get more involved in school the desire to get back into teaching grew. After a couple of years on the farm he went back to school at Mankato State for his Masters degree, which lead to an internship and the full-time position as principal at Comfrey.

Today, Peterson is certified as an elementary and secondary level principal, a community education director, and superintendent. As he reflects over the varying roles he's filled he has firm understanding of the state of education and its importance in a community.

It is Peterson's hope that young people will choose education as a career. He said that as the "baby boomers," who are now finishing their careers, retire there will be a even greater need for new teachers.

"There's going to be a shortage – we already have a shortage," Peterson said, "and we need good young people with a passion to teach."

Andrea Olin and one of the dolphins at Dolphins Plus practice tricks with a hulahoop. During her six-week internship at Dolphins Plus in Key Largo, Fla., Andrea learned of the numerous talents the dolphins possessed.

Andrea Olin dives in with dolphins

■ Local girl interns with Dolphins Plus in Key Largo, Florida

by Becky Mattson
Reporter

Remembering back to seventh grade, Andrea Olin knew what she wanted to be when she grew up–a dolphin trainer.

Andrea's story begins with a short story she read called "Swimming with Dolphins" in seventh grade. The story told of a hemiplegic - someone without the use of one arm and leg - who learned to reach beyond her normal limits with the help of a dolphin named Fonzie.

Over time Andrea's curiousity about dolphins grew and in April of 1998 Andrea and her family visited Dolphins Plus. Dolphins Plus is a marine mammal research and education center located in Key Largo, Fla. The facility houses 12 Atlantic Bottlenose Dolphins and two California Sea Lions.

After this exciting eye-opener into the dolphins' world, Andrea applied for an internship in November of 2000 at Dolphins Plus. She was accepted in February of 2001 and began her six-week internship on May 9. Along with her internship also came a research project Andrea has to complete on "How enthusiasm affects dolphins' behavior."

During Andrea's six-week internship, she took notes on different activities that occurred, followed a dolphin trainer around daily, and was able to swim alone with the dolphins.

"Each dolphin responded differently to each one of the trainers at Dolphins Plus," said Andrea.

She also helped feed each dolphin an average of 20 pounds of fresh fish four times a day. The fresh fish consisted of four species including herring, caplin, sardines, and silversides. Pills were inserted into each dolphin's serving of fish one time daily to allow the dolphins to attain all of their necessary vitamins.

Dolphins Plus operates a marine mammal facility involved in environmental education programs, in-water therapy with disabled children, and the study of inter-species interaction between dolphins and humans. The facility also works closely with non-profit organizations such as the Marine Mammal Rescue Foundation and the in-water therapy programs offered by Island Dolphin Care.

Visitors to Dolphins Plus can enjoy either a Natural Swim session or a Structured Swim session. The Natural Swim session includes an informational briefing and a natural swim in snorkeling equipment with the dolphins. The Structured Swim session includes an educational briefing, guaranteed contact with the dolphins, and use of flotation vests instead of snorkeling equipment. Participants in the Structured Swim session may also enjoy feeding the dolphins.

Island Dolphin Care is a non-profit organization at Dolphins Plus developed to help children and their families who are dealing with various developmental, physical, and/or emotional difficulties. Their philosophy is to provide a recreational program which focuses on the emotional and physical well-being of the participant and his/her family. The program features educational, recreational, and motivational activities to assist participants in reaching their fullest potential. At Island Dolphin Care, they believe that through specifically designed recreational experiences, families share a unique bond which might otherwise be overlooked in having a special needs family member.

"The dolphins are used as a motivational tool instead of a cure. There is a special program, called Fonzie Camp, designed especially for children with special needs. The children are able to work with two therapy dolphins during the two-week

A BOLD LOOK AT BEDTIME.
The day ends with a ritual. You wash. You brush. You reflect on the ability of some things to get better with age. Like the beautifully sculpted lines of Kohler's Revival faucet, with a style as graceful as the turn-of-the-century era that inspired it. If bedtime doesn't look inspired, if bedtime doesn't look this timeless in your bathroom, look to our Kohler Registered Show room and expert design staff, before another evening goes by.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: What constitutes official verification of a person's Social Security Number (SSN)?

A: The only official document issued by Social Security that verifies an individual's Social Security Number if the SSN card. There is no charge for replacing or changing the name on a Social Security card. Sometimes people applying to replace a lost Social Security card have an immediate need for some type of SSA supplied document showing their SSN and we have supplied an unofficial document showing their number. One example of this is for people applying for a North Dakota driver's license. Effective with July, 2001, SSA offices are instructed to charge $16 for this unofficial document in almost all cases, although a few very limited exceptions apply. Again, no charge exists to replace or change the name on a Social Security card. Once processed, a replaced Social Security card takes about 15 days to be received from a central mailing site and it is expected that this will continue to suffice for most people. For the few that it doesn't, expect a charge as outlined above.

Q: My new boss said I have to get a new Social Security card because my old one was plastic coated. Why should that matter?

A: Social Security cards have security features intended to prevent counterfeiting and tampering. When you cover the card with plastic you can obscure some of those security features and void it for your employer's use.

Alumni Honored as "Top Aggies" at NWSA Reunion

Four alumni of the Northwest School of Agriculture (NWSA) were recognized as "Top Aggies" for the year 2001 at the annual reunion held recently at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC).

Receiving the honors were Raymond K. Johnson ('46) of Cincinnati, Ohio; Evangeline Anderson Myhre ('46) of Warren, Minn.; Roger J. Kasprick ('51) of Collegeville, Minn.; and JoAnne Straus Carlson ('61) of Brainerd, Minn.

The Top Aggie Awards were established in 1970 to honor Northwest School of Agriculture alumni, faculty, and staff who, in the eyes of the NWSA Alumni Association, have had a significant impact on the lives of their fellow citizens through professional and service contributions in their occupations, community, church, education, and other service and non-profit organizations.

The Northwest School of Agriculture (NWSA) was a residential high school that operated from 1905 through 1968 on the campus that is now UMC. There have been a total of 5,433 NWSA alumni.

Raymond K. Johnson

Dealing with people and recognizing his skills as a "people person" are things Raymond Johnson credits to the time he spent at the NWSA. After graduation, he spent four years in the Air Force during the Korean Conflict, primarily as an instructor.

Following the service, Raymond attended the University of North Dakota and earned his BS in Engineering. It was there that he became involved with Toastmasters, participating and winning several speaking contests. Upon graduation from UND, he worked as a Sales Engineer for the Sangamo Electric Company. He was selected as the company's Salesman of the Year for the North American and International operation along with other awards during his 34-year career with the company.

Raymond has held church offices and was committee chairman of the Boy Scouts of America Troop 284 for five years. He is a member of the Honorable Order of the Kentucky Colonels, a charitable organization. Currently he is working as a volunteer at the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History and Science in the education department and at the City of Montgomery to establish an inventory control system for the service department.

Evangeline Anderson Myhre

Evangeline Anderson Myhre is known for volunteerism. She has served as leader of both Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops, co-founded and led the Warren Community Arts Board, and initiated the beautification and design of a park in her hometown. She has also been involved with Habitat for Humanity where she has worked on homes on the Eagle Butte Indian Reserve, a site in Portugal, and soon at a site in Hungary this year. She feels that this affords her cross-cultural experiences in a productive way.

Evangeline has served as a tour guide to Scandinavian countries, and she has great interest in the arts and music. After her five children were grown, she took courses at the University of North Dakota and credits her time at NWSA with her continued desire to learn. She has attended seminars on leadership which have proven to be helpful when working on programs and projects within and outside of her community.

According to Evangeline, all of these activities were just a continuation of her involvement at the NWSA, where she was a member of the choir and Glee Club and director for the annual Song Contest. Evangeline also participated in intramural sports, which taught her the benefits of being a team player in every avenue of life. Along with this, she also served on the NWSA student council, which may have been a foreshadowing of her interest in politics including 15 years as Republican Party chairperson of Marshall County and a number of years as senate district chairperson.

Roger J. Kasprick

The education that began with the NWSA has continued throughout life for Roger Kasprick. His involvement at the NWSA included serving as editor of the Aggie and the school newspaper, captain of the track team, and participating in school plays, debate and many other activities. He was also named Valedictorian of the Class of 1951.

Graduating from St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., Roger was accepted as a Benedictine Monk. He earned his Master of Divinity, was ordained to the priesthood, and over the course of life studied at seven or eight other universities. He has taught student groups in many countries.

Besides teaching at St. John's University, Roger has served in numerous parishes and has ministered as chaplain in hospitals, nursing homes, and other service institutions. He has also worked in Clinical Pastoral Education at Stanford University and at the University of California/San Francisco. In 1998-99, he was named a Stanford University Visiting Scholar, and he served on the Stanford University Hospital Ethics Board.

JoAnne Straus Carlson

While attending the NWSA, JoAnne Straus Carlson was involved in the yearbook staff, newspaper staff, Girl's Athletic Association, Newman Club, school plays, and student council. She says she especially enjoyed the classes she took in horticulture and living in the home management house.

Following graduation from the NWSA, JoAnne attended North Dakota State University. She worked at First National Bank in Grand Forks and Fargo, ND. When she married in 1964, her focus shifted to the production of grains and potato products. JoAnne and her husband, Ron, received the NDSU Outstanding Agriculturalist Award and was the first woman named to the Minnesota Area I Potato Council, a board on which she is still active. She also took the opportunity to earn her private pilot's license.

JoAnne has spent time as part of the Stephen Volunteer Ambulance Corps, has been active in her church, and has served on the NWSA Alumni Board. She now lives in Brainerd, where she helps her husband renovate and redecorate homes for resale and works at Cynthia Cook, Inc., and Happy Sleeper.

MARL Program session scheduled for Bemidji area - July 18-20

The Minnesota Agriculture and Rural Leadership (MARL) Program will be holding a session in the Bemidji area from Wednesday, July 18 - Friday, July 20.

The MARL Program is a dynamic leadership education experience established for current agricultural and rural leaders in Minnesota. The MARL Program mission is to develop the skills of Minnesota agricultural and rural leaders so they may maximize their impact and effectiveness in local, state, national, and international arenas. Two-thirds of the MARL class members are involved in production agriculture, and one-third are other types of rural leaders (ag lenders, agribusinesspeople, educators, etc.).

The 30-member group of participants is the charter class. Participants work as a cohort group through the entire two-year class cycle. MARL Class I began in November, 2001. The MARL Program curriculum consists of a series of nine two-day in state sessions, a one-week national study tour to Washington, D.C., and a two-week international study tour. Four in state sessions were conducted from November, 2000 - February, 2001 (St. Cloud, Mankato, St. Paul, and Marshall). The national study tour to Washington, D.C. was held in March. The Bemidji session is the only summer session. In November, monthly in state sessions will begin again. Sessions will be held in Faribault, Moorhead, Rochester, and Duluth. The international tour will be held in March, 2002. Class I will conclude with an in state session in April, 2002.

Each in state session focuses on different aspects of leadership development and skill building. In addition, the group receives exposure to the unique attributes, successes, challenges, and current issues in the area where sessions are held.

The seminar portions of the session in July will be held on the Bemidji State University campus. It begins with Dr. Robert Terry, leadership author and educator. Terry's presentation will be based on one of his books, The 7 Views of Leadership. Bob Bergland, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture and current U of M regent from Roseau, will address the group, and the participants will learn the destination of the Class I international study tour. Participants will take to the road for the second day of the session. They will travel to a wild rice production location, the Red Lake Indian Reservation, and logging sites. Participants return to the BSU campus the final morning for a verbal communication training.

The MARL Program is a public/private partnership. The program is privately funded, with a 15-member board of directors providing oversight. Southwest State University administers the program, and the University of Minnesota Cooperative Extension Service develops and coordinates the delivery of the curriculum. Class members applied, were interviewed, and selected by the board of directors. Tuition is $2,000 per participant. Donations from individuals, business, and foundations cover the remaining costs of the program.

Applications for MARL Class II will be available later this summer. For more information about the MARL Program, visit the website: www.marlprogram.org or call Tim Alcorn, MARL Program Executive Director, at (507) 537-6280.

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain
OCALA, FL – An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.
Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more. Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8448. ©2000 PGC

Images of Faith

Local preacher re-evaluates faith after preaching Gospel in India

Preaching the Gospel can take you places. Sometimes, as Rev. George Bunnell of Thief River Falls can attest, these trips can be humbling.

The Rev. George Bunnell of Thief River Falls participated in a mission of faith in India February 11 through March 3. The purpose of the mission was to preach the Bible at schools and witness to God's work by evangelizing from village to village. "It was a life-changing experience," said Rev. Bunnell.

"The people are happy though they suffer great poverty," said Rev. Bunnell.

Structured by a caste system that leaves individuals unable to improve upon their status, and a religious fervor that excommunicates and persecutes Christians, belief and happiness shows great dedication to faith.

Rev. Bunnell witnessed this faith. Lines of people, he said, would form wherever they went. All they wanted, he explained, was for someone to pray for them.

He also witnessed this faith in the voices of children at a Children's Home where the children would rise at 4 a.m. every day and sing. He witnessed this faith in Christians who would pray for America because America seems to worship materialism.

Rev. Bunnell said he had to re-evaluate his faith because he saw how strong their faith was. He said he returned to the United States with the feeling that we have a lot to be thankful for.

Everywhere he went in India he said there were beggars. In many instances children were being used to beg. In one instance Rev. Bunnell said he really wanted to give a young girl something but suddenly seven men were right there ready to take it from her. Poverty, Rev. Bunnell said, is so bad that children are being deliberately maimed in order to act as beggars on the street.

While there, Bunnell said he witnessed the baptism of seven people. He explained that when an individual is converted to Christianity he or she is excommunicated. Frequently these people are persecuted by friends and family as well.

"Being a Christian in India," Bunnell said, "means you must be willing to give your life."

Bunnell went to India with the "Love and Care Ministries in India." This organization is led by Yesupadam (Jesus' Foot), who Bunnell said before his conversion in 1976, was a communist and a murderer. Since Yesupadam's conversion, Bunnell said he has planted over 140 churches, established five Children's Homes, an Old People's Home and a Bible College. Now, Bunnell said, they are planning to raise $160,000 to build a hospital.

While in India, Rev. Bunnell said Yesupadam's life and the life of his wife and children were threatened. They did not carry through with their threat, though.

Rev. Bunnell was on the trip with seven other people from the United States. This group went from village to village to sing and preach the Gospel. It was an event, which he would like to repeat some day.

Rev. George Bunnell of Thief River Falls spent about one month preaching the Gospel in India. The images of faith he witnessed forced him to re-evaluate his own faith.

A person born into a caste in India remains in that caste his or her entire life. This man is breaking rocks for a road and that is what he has done and what he will do throughout his life.

Gates help MN libraries get more computers

Minnesota public libraries will receive donated computer hardware, software, and training worth about $5.2 million from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, according to the Department of Children, Families & Learning (CFL).

The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation has given preliminary approval to provide 451 computers to 209 public library buildings in Minnesota. Additionally, the Foundation will provide 11 computer training labs, each with 11 computers, which will be located throughout the state for staff training and public use. CFL's Library Development and Services office served as the liaison between the foundation and the public libraries. "Though almost all our public libraries offer Internet access, most currently limit the amount of time customers are allowed to use computers due to high demand," said CFL commissioner Christine Jax, Ph.D. "Thanks to the hard work of CFL's Joyce C. Swonger and her staff who help support Minnesota's public libraries, and the generosity of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, more Minnesotans will have access to the information they need."

The grants went to libraries in communities with at least a 10 percent poverty level. The number of computers each library building will receive will depend on the population served at each library. Twenty-eight libraries chose to obtain Spanish- as well as English-language computer systems.

Each library will send one or more staff members to one of seven computer instruction and maintenance workshops offered at locations around the state July 19 – 27. These workshops will instruct library staff and the public to effectively identify and use electronic resources. The 12 regional public library systems that receive CFL assistance will spearhead the training initiatives. Other organizations and government agencies will also be able to attend the free training. Libraries will then receive their computers and additional training between October 2001 and April 2002.

Also, as a result of this year's legislation signed by Governor Jesse Ventura, Minnesota libraries can draw on $400,000 in each of the next two years for online and other databases that will give state residents even greater access to information.

As of May 2001, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation U.S. Library Program has completed funding to 6,442 public library buildings, with the installation of computers with Internet access completed in 18 states and Washington D.C.

Library Dares Kids to Seek Adventure

Discovery Club, a special opportunity exclusively for nine-to-11 year olds, will get underway at Challenger Elementary School on Monday, July 23. To be held every Monday from 10 a.m. to noon through August 20 in the media center, the club will give kids the chance to explore their individual special interests through hands-on activities and electronic and print resources.

Northwest Regional Library, sponsor of the club, will encourage "reluctant readers" to become turned on to the vast amounts of information on subjects that may seem far out but catch the fancy of this age group. The club will "dare" kids to discover such topics as "shocking moments," "real life adventures," "awesome explorations," "amazing inventions," "outdoor life," or any subject of their choice.

"We are targeting kids who read well enough to be ineligible for Title I programs, but don't enjoy reading enough to read for pleasure during their free times," said library director Barbara Jauquet-Kalinoski. "We still have our regular summer reading program at the library, but I've realized that the summer reading program, popular as it is, isn't reaching the kids who need it most – the reluctant readers."

The library has received a grant for this pilot project from the Minnesota Office of Library Development to help combat the widening gap between the worst and best readers among grade schoolers. According to U.S.A. Today, only 32 percent of the nation's fourth graders read at grade level. The consequence of reading failure in a technology-dependent world is a host of social and economic ills.

With the grant money, the library has purchased a special collection of materials containing everything from comic books to non-fiction titles on such subjects as dirt bikes.

To register for the Discovery Club, call Barbara Jauquet-Kalinoski at Northwest Regional Library, 681-1066.

...He's Guilty of Something

Frankly, I don't care that Representative Gary Condin had an affair with his intern, Chandra Levy. I don't care if he has had several affairs with women. I figure things like that are only the business of Condin, the woman, and the wife. They are certainly none of my business, since he isn't my representative. If he were, it might be a different story.

Chandra Levy has been missing for over two months. Representative Condin has been anything but helpful in aiding her family in their search for her. We first heard that he considered her a good friend and were told that he would help to find her in every way. He lied about that.

Condin has shown himself to be a guilty man.

He's guilty of waiting two months after Levy went missing to finally admit to having an extramarital affair with her. By waiting with his admission, he has obstructed the investigation of her disappearance and perhaps allowed vital evidence to fall by the wayside. If he cared enough about her to have an affair with her, wouldn't you think he might have been a little worried when she disappeared into thin air, and wouldn't he have wanted to help find her in any way he could? Or do you think maybe he was just worried about covering his own rear and make sure he didn't get found out? He's guilty.

He's guilty of lying. Doesn't anyone care that the man has been lying? In two previous police interviews, he said he hadn't been involved in an intimate relationship with Levy. He gave press conferences denying an affair with Levy. Oh, my, no, he did not have an affair with Levy, he said. Now in the past weekend he has admitted to having an affair. That means he lied when he said he was just a friend. Isn't there something wrong with this picture?

"Oh, Isn't it nice that he has come forward with this information? What a noble thing to do - admit to the affair! He is being such an upstanding guy!" You've got to be kidding! He flat-out lied! Doesn't anybody care about the lying he did? Does taking two months to getting around to telling the truth make him a great guy? He's guilty.

How can we trust that Condin is telling the truth now? Frankly, if I were the investigators, I would trust him about as far as I can see him. Seems to me it took quite a bit of pressure to get him to admit to the affair as it is and one can't help but wonder if he would have admitted it at all if things hadn't started to heat up. Would he have come forward if it hadn't been for the pressure by the media on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Levy and the damning statement by Chandra Levy's aunt, Linda Zamsky, in which Linda said she was aware of a relationship between her niece and Condin.

Despite the fact that I don't care that he had an affair with Levy, I feel Condin is guilty of taking advantage of his position. Yes, she was 24 years old and should have known what she was doing. But he was a 53-year-old politician, a representative of her home state, a player in the government game. No matter how old she was, she had stars in her eyes.

By having a relationship with a young, impressionable intern, Condin abused his position of power. He knew she was young and easily influenced, and that she was infatuated with him. I'm sure he knew what was going on when he chose to have an affair with her. He knew he was the boss in the affair and she was the little slave, enthralled by the big man, and, what's more, that was the way he liked it. His hiding of the affair was proof that he knew it was not an admirable thing to do. He's guilty.

What is it about politicians that allows them to think that they can lie and cheat and conduct themselves outside the law and that they won't be punished? Are they above and beyond the laws that govern the rest of us? Gee, could it be because they are allowed to continuously do things that are against the law and do not get any more punishment than a slap on the hands, if that? Why aren't they held as accountable as the rest of us?

What a shame that so many of the leaders of our country seem to think they are above being governed by the laws they are elected to uphold.

Activities at Lake Bronson park Friday and Saturday

On Friday, July 13, the Lake Bronson story will be told at 8 p.m. in the visitors center at Lake Bronson State Park. First-time and longtime visitors will enjoy the talk and slide show which is an introduction to the natural and human history that makes the park special.

Children will enjoy a Pond Hike at 4 p.m. The 90-minute activity will include a half-mile hike to a wilderness pond with the park naturalist, taking a close look at some of the wildlife there. Children should wear old clothes and insect repellent and meet at the tower.

A double-feature, "The Great Sandhill Crane Story" and "Pelicans, Pelicans, Pelicans" will be presented at family film night on Saturday, June 14, at 8 p.m. at the visitors center. The family-oriented films will provide the natural history of the sandhill cranes and pelicans that are among the most unusual and fascinating birds found in the park.

Participants will discover what goes "hump" in the night during a Night Hike at 10 p.m. Participants are asked to meet at the tower and wear warm clothes and insect repellent. The activity will include exploring nature using all of the senses and learning about some of the animals that are well adapted for life in the dark.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES

Water Prism

Collect six clear-plastic liquid dishwashing bottles. Let your children help you to rinse the bottles and fill them with water. Then help them use food coloring to tint the water in each bottle a different rainbow color (red, orange, yellow, green, blue, purple). Close the lids on the bottles and shake them to mix. Then have your children line up the plastic bottles in a row adjacent to a sunny window. What happens when the sun shines? (A rainbow of colors appears.) Ask your children to explain what they see. Can they see the reflected colors on a cloudy day? Why not?

PARENTING TIPS

Families on the Go

Today's families have a lifestyle that is much different than families had 20 and 30 years ago. Today's families are on the go! They go out to work, play and eat. They go shopping, to sporting events and traveling. In addition about 25 percent move each year. Parents need to remember that children don't always travel as easily as adults. However with some advance planning and preparation children can enjoy outings as much as adults.

Here are some tips for outings of any kind (in or out of town):

- Whenever possible plan around your child's nap time.
- Keep a few disposable diapers in your car's glove compartment. To make cleanups easier, tuck a packaged towelette and a plastic bag inside of each diaper.
- Freeze a plastic container 1/3 to 1/2 full of water. When you are ready to go, fill the container with water for a long-lasting, cold thirst quencher. Water is healthy, quenches the thirst, and isn't messy if spilled.
- Always carry a change of clothes for young children.
- Avoid shopping, when you can, by catalog shopping. You can compare prices in peace and quiet as well as save time, money and gas.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk to your child about where you are going and what your child can expect.

Two faith-based financial service providers merge

Calling it an unprecedented opportunity to "meet more needs, help more people, and increase our future growth," leaders of Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) and Lutheran Brotherhood (LB) announced plans to merge the two fraternal benefit societies by year's end.

The announcement follows initial approval by the boards of directors for LB and AAL. John O. Gilbert, chairman, president and CEO of AAL (headquartered in Appleton, Wis.) and Bruce J. Nicholson, president and CEO of LB (headquartered in Minneapolis) shared the news with employees in Minneapolis and Appleton and with their field staffs nationwide.

"The merger is an outstanding opportunity for us to build a fraternal benefit society unlike any yet seen," Gilbert stated. "Because AAL and LB were founded for the same reasons and share remarkably similar missions, it is a very compelling business transaction."

"It will combine the strength and potential of two leaders in the financial products industry and extend the Christian framework of our organization," said Nicholson.

The merged organization will have almost 3 million members, with almost $60 billion in assets under management. The current members of LB and AAL will become members of the combined organization. The new organization's corporate center will be based in Minneapolis, and its operations center will be in Appleton.

By merging, the new fraternal benefit society will be positioned to offer even more in asset management, insurance, and financial planning products and services. Both LB and AAL are listed on the list of Fortune 500 companies. The combined organization will rank among the top financial service providers, but will continue to offer its products consistently with its mission as a fraternal benefit society.

As a fraternal benefit society, the financial aspects of the organization are only part of the picture. "We intend to offer new and enhanced programs and services to our members through our charitable outreach," said Gilbert.

Gilbert and Nicholson also promised to continue the strong tradition of corporate citizenship and giving in both the Twin Cities and the Fox Cities.

Completing the merger requires approval from several government agencies. In addition, approximately 300 LB member delegates must vote on the merger. LB will convene the delegates later in the year. The AAL board also must grant final approval. Members of AAL and LB will receive the formal merger agreement in advance of those votes.

Speaking with employees, Gilbert said that the merged organization "will continue to be a major employer in both Appleton and Minneapolis." LB and AAL have a combined workforce of 7,100 people, which includes both home office staffs, as well as the nationwide field staffs.

"Through this merger, we expect to have more members to serve, which means our financial services and products will broaden and grow, and in turn, we will be providing more charitable outreach," said Nicholson.

"We are providing our members with insurance and other financial services, self-help and volunteer opportunities on a scale our founders could not have imagined," Gilbert said. "Now we must anticipate and respond to the needs people will have in this new century."

Should the merger be approved, Gilbert will be chairman of the board and Nicholson will be president and chief executive officer. Nicholson and Gilbert will have their offices in Minneapolis. The senior management team will consist of several executives from each organization.

A new name for the combined organization has not yet been selected. The new identity will come out of the work of transition teams, composed of representatives from both LB and AAL.

Hoffman participates in Leadership Seminar

Lacey Hoffman

Lacey Hoffman, a sophomore at Goodridge School, recently attended the Minnesota Hugh O'Brian Youth (HOBY) Leadership Seminar.

Hoffman is the daughter of Rodney and Sylvia Hoffman of Goodridge. Students are chosen based on demonstrated leadership potential for continued leadership growth. Eldon Winge, Principal of Goodridge School, selected Hoffman to attend this leadership seminar.

The HOBY Minnesota Leadership Seminar was held June 15 through 17 at Hamline University in St. Paul. Hoffman joined more than 200 young leaders who represented as many high schools from across the state of Minnesota.

The seminar brought a select group of high school sophomores together with distinguished leaders in business, government, entrepreneurship and education to discuss present and future issues. The goal was to provide the participants with a stimulating forum for learning about the American incentive system and democratic process while broadening their understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self-development. A large part of the weekend was also dedicated to community volunteering, which was called "Leadership for Service." The sophomores took part in a service project and learned the benefits of volunteering.

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar was established by Hugh O'Brian, the popular actor who portrayed Wyatt Earp on TV, in 1958. Its mission is to seek out, recognize, and develop leadership potential in high school sophomores. Today, thousands of youth from around the world have benefited from this program.

DANGEROUS DRINKING GAMES
House parties, a day at the lake with friends, and a bonfire out at the farm are all fun events – but what seems like harmless fun can turn out to be anything but.
At first it has a glamorous appeal – your friends do it, you try it and like the way it feels; you don't have to be yourself but binge drinking is an easy way to do harm to yourself and someone else.
Don't play games with your life or someone else's.
If you think you have a drug or alcohol problem,

Eric Bergeson

It has been 10 years since I have traveled west into Montana. Last week I decided it was time to see the mountains again.

On family vacations when I was a child, I looked forward to seeing the mountains as much as I might look forward to seeing a Twins game.

As we crept west across the prairie in the LTD station wagon, I kept my eyes peeled for mountains in the distance. I usually started seeing snow-capped peaks on the horizon just west of Bismarck. Of course, those mountains always turned out to be clouds. Or a mirage.

A day later when we reached Billings, we finally could make out in the distance the snow fields of the Beartooth range to the south.

As we drove closer, the mountains looked scary, foreboding. Thunderstorms hovered over the ranges in the afternoons. The sheer cliffs seemed ominous to a child of the prairie, but thrilling at the same time.

One wonders, what is it about mountains that is so alluring, that draws thousands of people thousands of miles? Perhaps it is the combination of beauty and danger which makes mountains so irresistible.

Montana is crawling with tourists right now, and most of them won't bait a line or walk a trail. They come to see the mountains.

I have often wondered, do people who live near mountains get used to them and take them for granted?

My great-grandmother came across from Norway. Although she was happy over here and loved her little house in Twin Valley, she once said that the only thing missing in the new country was a mountain out back.

Mountains have mystical power. Many Indian tribes consider them sacred. Some people talk about mountains as if they were friends. An Old Testament figure once said, "I look to the mountains, from whence cometh my strength."

Seems like an odd statement, until one drives between two mountain ranges, through one of Montana's grand valleys. From the highway, the line of sight extends up to fifty miles in every direction. Within that view stand millions of trees and dozens of snow covered peaks.

Those mountains have been there for thousands of years, virtually unchanged. They towered there before we arrived, and they'll be there long after we are gone.

Such alpine grandeur can make one feel as inconsequential as an ant. You'd think one would feel overwhelmed, dwarfed, belittled. But I feel nothing of the sort, and I don't think anybody else does, either.

Instead, by reminding us of our smallness, these sights give us a perspective we lack back at the office, a perspective as broad as the Montana sky.

The godlike grandeur of mountains makes life's problems seem small. Mountain scenes refresh the spirit and calm the mind. Mountain air invigorates the imagination.

No wonder western Montana crawls with immigrants from the city, tourists, artists, and others who seek relief from the fatigue of life-on-the-treadmill. They've cometh to the mountains to getteth some strength.

Loon Program at Rydell Refuge on Sun., July 15

Loons-one word says it all, conjuring up images of lake country and northern Minnesota. Hearing the yodeling or laughing call of the loon captures the magic of Minnesota summers. Learn more about the fascinating natural history and legend of this oldest bird known to man at a program presented by MN DNR Non-game Specialist Katie Hawes on Sunday, July 15th at 2 p.m. at the Rydell Refuge Visitors Center. Katie will provide a slide presentation about the common loon in Minnesota including facts about the Minnesota state bird, its migration patterns, natural history, and research results from our area. Tips will also be provided on conservation measures that individuals can take to help provide habitat and improve nesting success of the loon.

The loon became Minnesota's official state bird in 1961, after several attempts to have official status placed on the American goldfinch failed. School children polled at the time overwhelmingly supported the scarlet tanager but the loon eventually prevailed as the symbol for Minnesota's north country setting. Minnesota has the largest population of loons in the lower 48 states. Loons are excellent swimmers with powerful legs located more to the rear of the body than most ducks which conversely makes for poor land mobility. In fact, origin of the word "loon" is traced to the Scandinavian "loom" or English "lumme," meaning a lummox or awkward person which is true of the bird's land locomotion.

Do loons mate for life? How long do loons live? How deep do they dive? Why are their eyes red? What do their different calls mean? How large are their territories? How many chicks do they usually have each year? Why do the chicks sit on the parents back when young? Find out the answers to these questions and more at the loon program at the Rydell Refuge-Sunday, July 15th at 2 p.m. Come and share your favorite loon story.

Everyone is welcome to this free program co-sponsored by the Maple Lake Improvement District, Union Lake Sarah Improvement District and the Friends of the Rydell Refuge Assn. To get to the Rydell Refuge go 3 miles east of Mentor or 3 miles west of Erskine on U.S. Hwy. 2 and turn south on Polk Co. 210 about 2.5 miles to the Refuge entrance sign and main gate. If arriving from the south, turn north off of Polk Co. 41 onto Polk Co. 210 and go about 3.5 miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign. For more information contact the Rydell Refuge at (218) 687-2229.

A love for dolphins is what inspired Andrea Olin to apply for an internship at Dolphins Plus in Key Largo, Fla., during May 9-June 20. Her internship consisted of taking notes on different activities that occurred, following a dolphin trainer around daily, and swimming alone with the dolphins.

camp. Watching how children with special needs respond to the dolphins is truly touching," said Andrea.

Fonzie Camp received its name from one of the therapy dolphins named Fonzie. He received his name because he likes to make trouble and he loves women - human or dolphin - just like the "Fonz" on TV.

Andrea recently finished her freshman year of college at the University of Miami in Florida where she studied marine science. This fall she will attend the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis where she will continue her education in psychology. Her major has changed to psychology due to the trainers' recommendation at Dolphins Plus.

"I absolutely loved my six-week internship at Dolphins Plus. This is the job I want to have when I graduate from college. My hopes are high after being informed by Dolphins Plus' staff that my chances for employment are excellent based on my internship experience," said Andrea.

For more information about Dolphins Plus, please write to Dolphins Plus, P.O. Box 2728, 31 Corrine Place, Key Largo, FL 33037, or call toll free at 1-866-860-SWIM. Interested individuals can also log onto www.dolphinsplus.com or email Dolphins Plus at info@dolphinsplus.com

Daily insertion of the dolphins' vitamins into their fish servings were prepared by Andrea Olin during her internship at Dolphins Plus. Dolphins eat an average of 20 pounds of fresh fish including herring, caplin, sardines, and silversides daily.

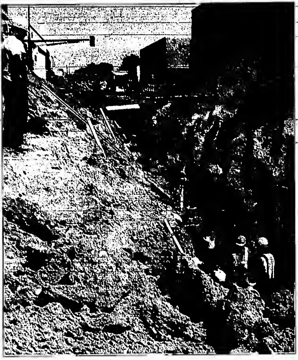
Lacy Dahl (left) and Katie Jorde (right) spent Monday afternoon doing some sun worshipping. Temperatures hovered around 90 degrees, helping many residents enjoy LaFave Park Beach.



Work on the sanitary sewer system was completed Monday by downtown construction crews. Construction crews hope to begin filling in the street by the end of the week. People should also be aware that the closure of the Atlantic intersection is tentatively scheduled to begin on July 23 for about two weeks. A detour will be set up from Highway 59 onto Davis to 8th Street and 8th Street to Highway 32, back to Highway 59.

Fifty-three players are expected to be in uniform tonight (Wednesday) when the annual Tony Sipe American Legion All-Star baseball game is played at Irv Wilson Field in Thief River Falls.

ROCKET SPEEDWAY

from Bob Hultgren

Rocket Speedway raced into action Thursday, July 5, as part of the 2001 Kittson County Fair in Hallock.

Northern Late Model Racing Association highlighted a program that featured a good car count in all three classes.

The 16-car, 20-lap Late Models feature was a crowd pleaser. The race was led by four different drivers. Front row starters Tom Corcoran and Jon Bittner each took a turn leading early in the race, but by Lap 4 Greg Ferris had the lead and started to pull away from the field. By Lap 9 Jon Seitz had passed Corcoran to take over second place. Ferris' lead didn't last. A caution flag flew with nine laps to go, which put Seitz right on his back bumper for the restart. Seitz found the dryslick track to his liking and on the next lap he took the lead and held off Ferris for the win. Howie Schill, who started ninth, finished third.

Street Class feature was won by Rod Peterson of Thief River Falls. Peterson started ninth in the 12-car line-up and within the first couple of laps worked his way into second place. Jamen Foss of Greenbush led the first 11 laps before Peterson took the lead and raced on for the win. Foss would finish second, with Ken Beaulieu of Bemidji third.

Pure Stock Class continues to provide good racing and entertainment for the Rocket fans. Casey Faken of Lancaster would take an early lead and hold off the 14-car line-up to win the feature. Steffen Snare of Hallock challenged Faken, but was unable to win the race and finished second, with Jim Hilman of Lancaster third. The Pure Stock cars were often racing two and three wide throughout the feature, and the leaders drove masterfully through lap traffic in an exciting race.

Next race at the Rocket Speedway will be Saturday, July 14, when the track will play host to a Mini-Sprint feature. The Can-Am Mini-Sprints will be joined that night by the NOPA Pure and Street Stocks and the Wissota sanctioned Super Stocks and Modifieds.

Nick Jorstad came up with the game-winning hit as the Thief River Falls Babe Ruth Blue baseball team out-scored Warroad 11-10 in the second half of a Monday doubleheader for 14-15-year-olds.

Warroad won the first game 12-0.

Jorstad went 3-for-5 at the plate and was the winning pitcher, giving up six hits and striking out 12.

Tyler Bettin was 2-for-2 with two doubles in Game 1 and went 2-for-4 in Game 2.

Rogalla, Bettin earn softball honors

Two members of Thief River Falls' 2001 high school softball team were awarded post-season honors by the Minnesota State High School Softball Coaches Association.

Kylie Rogalla, a senior, was named to the group's Class AAA all-state squad. Megan Bettin, a sophomore, was listed as an honorable mention all-state pick.

Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson made the announcement of his players' selections this week.

Rogalla hit .562 this spring and drove in 27 runs for the 11-10 Prowlers. Bettin batted .605 and had 14 RBI.

GREENBUSH RACE PARK

from Bob Hultgren

An enthusiastic crowd welcomed the Northern Late Model Racing Association to the Greenbush Race Park Saturday night. What appeared to be the largest crowd so far this season was treated to a fantastic evening of racing.

Late Models feature was awesome. After two restarts due to spinouts, the race was led the first four laps by Mike Balcaen (Winnipeg, Man.), who would surrender the lead to Brian Strand (Bemidji) on Lap 5. Strand would lead relatively comfortably the next 14 laps before being challenged by Jon Seitz (Bemidji). Seitz, who started 18th in the 19-car grid, used a couple of cautions and some great driving to pass Balcaen with two laps to go and then closed in on Strand for the sprint to the flag. Strand would win, with Seitz second and Balcaen third.

Joey Pederson (East Grand Forks) made his first appearance of the season at the Greenbush Race Park in the Super Stocks. Pederson, who moved into the Late Model class this season, continues to suffer some health related effects from the fuel that the Late Models use. But he is a threat no matter what class he runs, and he proved that by racing to the win in the Super Stocks feature. Bryon Berger (Badger) finished second, with Dan Morberg (Mentor) crossing the finish line third.

Robbi Peterson (Middle River) won the Mini-Sprints feature. Peterson, starting from outside the front row, was challenged early for the lead by Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls). Peterson extended his lead as he masterfully worked through lap traffic. Rantanen finished second, with Gerald Hatlestad (Roseau) third. It was a great race for Hatlestad who started eight in the line-up.

Jamen Foss (Greenbush) led the NOPA Street Stocks feature flag-to-flag. While leading all the way, Foss had plenty of company up front, with the top four cars running nose-to-tail the final eight laps.

The bumper to bumper racing was exciting as the second and third place cars tried to get by the leader. Rod Peterson (Thief River Falls) wound up second, with Dave Meyer (Thief River Falls) third.

Another dominating performance by Jim Hilman (Lancaster) in the NOPA Pure Stocks. Hilman, started fourth in the small field, but quickly took the lead and the win. Mike Olson (Lancaster) had his best outing of the season with a solid second place finish. Bill Timm (Greenbush) finished third.

Greenbush Race Park resumes its regular Friday schedule July 14, with races at 7 p.m. The Mini-Sprints, NOPA Pure Stocks, NOPA Street Stocks, Super Stocks, and Modifieds will be part of the program.

The Race Park is located one-half mile north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

Sidney and Clarice Ranum spent Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Bemidji with son Lowell and his wife. Grandson and wife Brian and Kelly and their son Cole from Louisiana were also visiting, so it was a wonderful time.

Thelma Dahl and her sister, Gladys Hienzo, attended the honor celebration of the Bieto family at the Pioneer Village in Thief River Falls. Later that day, she also was present at great-grandson Dustin's sixth birthday party at the home of his parents, Kelly and Alica Dahl. On Thursday, LeRoy and Ruth Sustad visited with Leonard Larson, Dagny Irwin and Dolly Paschke at Valley Home.

Thelma Dahl attended the open house at Oakland Park Nursing Home on Sunday afternoon.

Lions Too Meet

The Lions Too Club met on Monday night June 25 at the Plummer hall. New officers were installed as follows: Deb DuChamp-president, Nancy Bray-vice-president, Susie Zimpel-secretary, Linda Hemly-treasurer, Janel Borbauch and Mel Brustad-tail twisters, Carly Carlsen-lion tamer; board of directors-Marleen Haugen, Sandy Greenewald and Karen Konickson. New members welcomed are Bec Willett, Cathy Zimpel, Val Paradis, Pam Lill, Denise Styles and Jennie Yurizonka. The group is sorry to lose Lisa Tvedt, as she and her husband Warren have moved to Thief River Falls. Projects they've carried out through the past year have been: assisting the Lions Club with the Small Fry, the Post-Prom Party, scholarships for high school seniors, donated bike helmets to third graders, the Relay for Life, cleaned ditches with the Student Council, attended the Lions Convention, held a raffle at the Small Fry, sponsored the Halloween party and did the clean-up (for pay) after the Blast to Brooks. This sounds like a bunch of go-getters! They meet on the last Monday of the month and new members are always welcome.

Red Lake County Fair

A large number of Plummer folks attended the Red Lake County Fair in Oklee this past week. Although we have the smallest county in Minnesota, it is usually well attended with lots of exhibits. My husband and I were there on Friday for Seniors Day and saw blue ribbons everywhere, especially in the 4-H section. The program was excellent with Marv Bronken as emcee. Ed Bluemke entertained with his accordion while the people gathered as Hazel Olle, Clara Hesse and Joyce Carlson registered the guests. The RLCC Dance Revue performed to start the program and the winning grandparent essays were read by Brittany Gustafson. She and Mark Walter, both from Plummer school, were the county winners and, since Mark couldn't be there, she read them both. They will be in the state contest. She is the daughter of Blair and Vicki Gustafson and Mark is the son of Roger and Janel Walter. Eric Bergeson, of Bergeson's Gardens of Fertile, spoke on garden care and gave us many pointers and advice. The Outstanding Senior Citizens of our county for the year were Iona Berry of Oklee and Keith Pearson of Red Lake Falls. They will also be going to the state fair. There were many door prizes given this year by Red Lake Falls merchants and others. Winning from Plummer were Howard LaFayette, Clayton Larson, Howard Greenwald, Bernice Peterson, Harriet Norman, Joyce Carlson, Effie Byer, Clara Hesse, Jerry Gerardy, Alice Tillman, Carol Gustafson, and Nadine Johnson. A nice lunch was served to all following the program.

Burnel and Effie Byer visited with Frances and Vincent Andersen and their daughter Loree after attending the county fair on Friday.

Congratulations to Mallory Gerardy, who took second place in the Talent Show on Friday night at the Red Lake County Fair. She played a piano solo entitled "Sound of Silence". Her family and grandparents were in the audience.

AAL chapter #10105 of Immanuel Lutheran Church met on Sunday following services with Don Hagen presiding. Carol Wright and Connie Hagen brought the reports. The chapter had matched funds for the Community Club fundraiser, amounting to $360. The educational project, "Retirement-Mapping the Journey," will be held jointly with Redeemer Lutheran Church's chapter at the school on Tuesday, August 28 at 7 p.m. There was discussion on various fund needs followed by adjournment.

Birthday

Mel and Peggy Hesse, Brenda and Kelly Knutson, Kayla and Derek of Middle River, DJ and Mary Hesse, Syl Hesse, Helen Simpson, Harriet Norman, Loretta Hesse, Doris Malwitz, and Floyd and Fern Hesse all enjoyed dinner at Third Base in Brooks on Sunday to celebrate the birthday of Peggy Hesse. Later in the day Dean and Sandy Hesse, David and Harlee; and Bridget, Katie and Bobbi Hanson came with greetings.

David Gerardy and daughters Gabrielle and Breanna of Eden Prairie, also a friend Kevin, spent the weekend with Jerry and Carol Gerardy, accompanied by Chris Wallberg of Apple Valley. Chris and the girls remained to spend some time with their grandparents, Carol and Jerry.

Birthday

On Sunday, Inga Lindar joined family members for the birthday party for great-granddaughter Josie Davis. Her parents, Mark and Jennie, hosted the party, which included grandparents George and Janice Davis, Orrin and Phyliss Lindar and all of Josie's aunts and uncles, some coming from quite a distance.

A Sunday afternoon ride brought the Byers to Maple Lake where they enjoyed several hours on the lake with Eldon and Karl Vigstol. The men fished and later we had a fish fry at Eldon's with Karen.

Sunday dinner guests at the Jerry Gerardy home were Tony and Sheila Gerardy and family, Barbie and Mike Konickson, Tammie and Kevin Gerardy.

Wavell Sorenson was a Sunday visitor of Roger and Esther Evenson.

Jim and Shirley Jaeger of St. Paul and Rick Groonwald of Stacy were weekend visitors of Howard and Margaret Greenwald. On Monday Margaret and Shirley visited with Lorena Westerlund.

Ed and Carrie Hanne of Northville, Mich. arrived Monday to visit her sister Alice and Kern Tillman, leaving on Friday.

Fourth of July picnickers at the home of Merlin and Judy Carlson were Roger and Connie Carlson, Shar and Don Fox, Paula, Jason and Adam Cater, Burton and Joyce Carlson, Merlin and Judy. What a lovely day for picnicking. I hope to have more news of the Fourth next week.

Albert and Evelyn Tervo spent last weekend in Chanhassen with their daughter Renae and Robb Vaules, stopping to visit with Nancy and Jim Tumberg on the way home-in New York Mills.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in Northwestern Minnesota brought us another thunderstorm last night, and with each lightning flash I thought, "Here comes a ton of released nitrogen to these stressed lawns." These stray showers have kept the lawns watered but not enough for the plants which had to be hand watered up here on the sand ridge. The sunshine has been wonderful, putting a spark to the gardens and smiles to the farmers who had planted early.

The Strandquist seniors took the day after the Fourth off, as many were going away, but next Thursday they will meet at the Community Center and will go through their material and make plans for the season. They will have coffee and, knowing them, you can be assured they will have something to go with it.

Lloyd and Alice Vagle of Elk River came here to visit for a few days last week. They had attended the funeral for Dale Vagle before coming. Alice's brother, Mr. Skime of Skime is in poor health, so they went to stay there in their Winnebago before going home. We had a great time while they were here.

Judy Kleinvachter celebrated her 82nd birthday on Tuesday. Happy Birthday, and many more! Callers that day were Joan Gahris of Inkster, N.D., Kay Turnwall of St. Hilaire, June Kasprowicz, Marie Steffen of Stephen, Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth, Claudia, Jessie, Kali and Channe Berggren, Tracy and Jeremy Folland, Pat and Rebecca Larson, Betty Pietruszewski, Lois Kleinvachter and Matt Hammer of Pembina, N.D.

On Monday, JoAnne Holmstrom, Elphie Adlis and Elsie Lefrooth motored to Thief River Falls for "just because." I don't know what that is, but evidently Elsie knows. On Tuesday, Dean Holmstrom visited Elsie.

On the Fourth, Betsy rustled new potatoes out of her garden, and then she invited Peter and Pearl Thompson, and Roy and me to come and have a taste of them, and a 'special dish' they had gotten on their trip to Norway, called 'surkdle.' In this country we call it 'sauerkraut,' only we don't spice it up the same. We figured we could add caraway seed, sugar and a touch of vinegar and pass it off as a dish from Norway. Isaac says we need more scenery to add to it, and we don't have that ingredient around here.

Judy Kleinvachter's hospitality brings a lot of friends and relatives to her home all the time. For the Fourth and during the week, her guests were Vance, Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth, Pat, Abie and Katy Larson, Marie Steffen, June Kasprowicz, Gary and Barb Lewis of Prior Lake, Bryan Olson of Wannaska, Jessie Berggren, Mark and Brian Kleinvachter, Carole Thompson, Elmer Holmstrom, and Paul and Larina Berggren.

On Wednesday evening, Peter and Pearl Thompson, and Roy and I were invited to Elsie Lefrooth's home for dessert. On Thursday, Donnie Lefrooth and JoAnne Holmstrom visited Elsie.

Roy and I painted the kitchen and the utility room on Friday and put it back in shape on Saturday. Each day we put in over 16 hours and, come Monday after a late get-together on Sunday evening, I'm too tired to even think. After the squirrels bit off one of our stargazer lilies and chewed off a lot of glads, methinks all six playing around in the yard will soon be joining the fate of the tent worms.

Minnesota DNR looking for help to find loggerhead shrikes

Officials with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Nongame Wildlife Program are asking birders and outdoor enthusiasts to be on the lookout for a rare Minnesota species of bird, the loggerhead shrike, and to report any sightings this summer.

According to Steve Kittelson, DNR nongame wildlife specialist, "The statewide population of shrikes is shrinking."

Loggerhead shrikes were once found throughout much of the unforested region of Minnesota. Today, their numbers are very low.

"Recent surveys have located fewer than 30 nests of this threatened bird in Minnesota," Kittelson said.

Loggerhead shrikes are unusual birds, with the characteristics of both songbirds and raptors. They feed on large insects, mice, frogs and small birds as well.

"Unlike hawks, shrikes lack strong, sharp claws and feet and typically impale their food to hold it while eating," Kittelson said.

Loggerheads frequently stash food items for later use by wedging them in the fork of a branch or hanging them on barbed wire or thorns. Because of this activity, they have earned the nickname "butcher bird." Studies have indicated that these "pantries" may be prepared by males to attract mates.

About the size of a robin, the loggerhead shrike is slate-gray, with a black tail and wings and a distinctive black mask.

Loggerhead shrikes usually inhabit prairie or agricultural areas, and are often conspicuous as they perch on posts or telephone wires.

Loggerheads build a cup-shaped nest of twigs and grass, from 8 to 15 feet above the ground, and lay four to six dull white or buff-colored eggs. The chicks hatch after 10 to 12 days and leave the nest about three weeks after hatching.

Any summer observations of these birds should be reported to Steve Kittelson by calling toll free 1-888-MINNDNR, or by contacting him through email: steve.kittelson@dnr.state.mn.us.

New format is featured in Outdoor Women program

Becoming An Outdoors Woman workshop will have a new format this September. The workshop will take place at Eagle Bluff Environmental Center in Lanesboro Sept. 7-9.

"We have combined two very popular offerings into a weekend," said Becoming An Outdoors Woman Coordinator Jean Bergerson. "Saturday will be a return to the Field Day format we used for several years, which means ladies will be able to sample several classes throughout the day. Some women might want to return to a class more than once during the day."

Courses will be on a 1.5 hour format instead of the usual 3.5 hours. This will give participants the opportunity to attend many classes and for BOW to offer courses that do not lend themselves to a longer time period. New courses offered under this format are air rifle, climbing wall and dog talk.

Sunday will be a day to focus on just one activity. Women can choose one of six activities offered. The offerings will highlight the outdoor activities southeastern Minnesota has to offer. Canoe the Root River, spend the day caving, biking the Root River Trail, or fly-fishing area streams and rivers.

Each activity will have instructors to answer questions, help participants learn, and provide guidance for the day.

Women can register for the entire weekend or Saturday only. Weekend registration is for Friday evening through Sunday.

"We hope the flexible schedule and new format will encourage participation by ladies who were unable to attend the Friday noon through Sunday noon workshops," Bergerson said.

Limited scholarships are available to women who want to participate for the entire weekend. Space is limited for the Sunday offerings, so early registration is advised.

For registration forms and further information, call Eagle Bluff Environmental Learning Center at 1-888-800-9558 or the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-888-646-6367.

Turkey hunting license application deadline is July 27 for fall season

This year all resident hunters seeking a fall 2001 wild turkey license must apply electronically through the Department of Natural Resources computerized Electronic Licensing System at point-of-sale agents or by ELS telephone for an additional $3.50 charge (1-888-665-4236).

Deadline for applications is Friday, July 27. Application worksheets, designed to assist the applicants, will be available from any of the ELS point-of-sale agents. The worksheet contains maps of open permit areas and permit quotas.

There is a $3 fee for a fall wild turkey lottery application. This nonrefundable fee must be paid at the time of application at the ELS agent.

Nonresident hunters wishing to apply can use one of the ELS point-of-sale agents, may apply by phone, or may complete and mail a signed and dated worksheet with a $3 application fee for each individual to Fall Turkey Hunt, DNR License Center, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155-4026. Nonresident applications must be postmarked or delivered by Friday, July 27.

Information and application worksheets are available at the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us or by calling the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367).

TRF is site of DNR bear hunting clinic

Bear hunters can improve their chances of having a safe and successful hunt by attending one of the clinics offered by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. The clinics have been designed by bear hunters and research personnel to provide an in-depth look at the Minnesota black bear.

The clinics are not mandatory, but are strongly recommended by the DNR. Last year almost 2,000 hunters and bear enthusiasts attended clinics.

One of the clinic stops will be in Thief River Falls. The Thursday, Aug. 2, program will be held at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln High School auditorium.

Clinics will teach hunters what to look for when scouting for bear, how to use test baits and select bait sites, and how to bait bear based on the principles of timing and quality.

The clinics will also cover the latest regulations and answer common questions about bears. Attendees will have a better understanding of black bear behavior and habitat needs, and techniques that will eliminate protective surveillance.

Clinic fee is $5, which includes an up-to-date black bear handbook. The registration must be submitted no later than July 18. To register, people should indicate which clinic they will attend, enclose a $5 check made out to DNR Advanced Hunter Education and mail to Black Bear Clinics, DNR Enforcement, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4047.

Seminars for Advanced Hunter Education and Minnesota Bowhunter Education programs are listed on a telephone recording at 651-296-5015 and the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us. For a recording of outstate firearms safety classes, call toll free, 1-800-366-8917.

In addition to Thief River Falls, other area communities hosting the bear hunting clinics are Warroad, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Grand Rapids, and Hawley.

On Sunday, many cousins of the Sustads and others enjoyed a potluck picnic at Centennial Park in Thief River Falls.

Present were Orville and Marion Sustad of Westminster, Colo., Glenn and Ella Sustad of Stephen, Douglas and Dara Mae Gloude of Warren, Gordon and Joyce Stokke of Fargo, and DeLoris, Lloyd and Linda Rollislok of Moorhead. Those from Thief River Falls were Roger and Ruth Sackett, Marion and Dale Stark, Lenelle Peters, Mabel Anderson, Gerald and Thelma Peterson, Lowell Hogberg from Newfolden, Bernyce and Alvin Grandstrand, and LeRoy and Ruth Sustad. On Monday morning, Orville and Marion headed back to Colorado, with a stop in Kansas to visit her sister.

Actually, a full view only happens a few times a year. In fact, on those rare occasions, tourists can see Mt. Birthday for Art's 90th

About 200 relatives and friends gathered at the Richard and Arlene Fralland farm home on June 17 to celebrate Art Fralland's 90th birthday. It was hosted by his son Richard, wife Arlene, and daughter Marie Foster of St. Paul, assisted by granddaughters Jerilee Carpenter of Grand Forks, N.D., Kerry Newland of Thief River Falls, Shannon Nelson of Lakota, N.D. and their families, and others. Art and his wife Avis have eight grandchildren: three children of Rick listed above, plus Marie's family; Dean, Mike, Beth and Greg Foster, and several great-grandchildren. All were present except Dean, who lives in Indiana. Guests from afar were Ilona Seboe, formerly of Plummer, sons Gary and Alan, Frances Kjelland, Orv and Sheryl Kjelland, Jim, Marlys, Johann and Katie Kjelland, all of Park River, N.D.; Jim and Judy Bradshaw, Marty, Margie and David Minor, Vernon and Irene Thomas, all of the Grand Forks area; Don and Clarice Millar of Kent, Wash., Bill Swick of St. Paul, Ray and Jeanette Franklund of Jamestown, N.D., Elaine Arntson of Wahpeton, N.D., Ann and Keith Brundin of Watertown, S.D., Art and Norma Homstad of Park Rapids, Russell Sorenson and Les Foster of Roseau, as well as a host of friends and relatives from the immediate area. The party was held, ideally, in a building on the farm where Art grew up and farmed for many years, having spent his entire 90 years at Plummer. There was space, both inside and out, for guests to mingle in the beautiful surroundings, with flowers and gardens in profusion. The weather was ideal. Art had the pleasure of getting phone calls from relatives in Norway, also. Congratulations and good wishes and thanks, Art, for all you've given to our community, and we hope you have many more years with us!

Editorial opinion published under this heading is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Unless specified otherwise, the editorials are written by Editor Dave Hill and do not represent opinion of other staff members. We are asked to participate in a free and safe society

Thief River Falls Police department has been drawing close to the community through a number of initiatives called community policing, first pursued by Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, and then by Police Chief Jim Haugen. Perhaps as a result of these initiatives and programs law enforcement is reporting a decline in the number of crimes. It is, however, returning law enforcement to The People.

I'm not sure that the decline in crime can be directly attributed to community policing alone. There are many factors that would surely impact criminal activity, such as an improved economy, a "younger and more aggressive" staff, maybe even the weather. It is gratifying, however, to see the crime rate decline, and community policing has certainly helped increase visibility and understanding.

Regardless, Police Chief Jim Haugen recently said the police department needs to increase the understanding of community policing within the city and department. He added that he will continue to work to increase police visibility and involvement in the community.

Community Policing requires that citizens be active participants.

I'm sure I can't enumerate all of the benefits of community policing, but with it comes a greater understanding of the difficult job police have. With it comes a greater understanding of our laws. With it comes a greater responsibility, on our part, to participate in activities that guarantee we all live in a safe and free society.

Unintended, but surely a benefit of community policing, is the fact that because of citizen involvement we become more aware of how the court system works. True, we're not experts and we aren't expected to be experts, but having a basic knowledge of how the system works, seems to eliminate some of the false perceptions — fear that the system can be manipulated by the rich, that court is against "certain" people, or that there's some kind of conspiracy, for example.

There is the fear too that community policing is turning citizens into informants and docile sheep. What's missing is the fact the laws being enforced by officers we pay with our tax dollars, were created in response to citizen demands — the demands of all of us.

In a sense community policing is returning the system to the people it was created for — The People — and there's no reason we shouldn't, within certain bounds, actively participate.

While Police Chief Haugen has said that he will work harder to increase visibility and understanding, the implication is that, for it to work, citizens must be willing to participate, and in a sense, be willing to meet him halfway. When we get right down to it, without citizen participation, community policing initiatives and programs won't work.

Changing the Polling Question

From Forest Tent Caterpillars to cell phones and driving

Our unscientific poll of website visitors indicates that 62.09 percent or 113 visitors would be willing to pay a surcharge on their utility bills to pay for spraying for forest tent caterpillars. Nearly 38 percent of the visitors (69), voted against the poll question.

It appears the worst is over. The forest tent caterpillars have emerged from their cocoons as small brown moths. For a short time they covered walls of homes and businesses and the ground below street lights. Now the little brown moths have died off or are dying off. Just recently I heard from an expert that he doesn't anticipate that the forest tent caterpillar will be a problem next year. I guess we'll have to wait and see.

Following a trend in the media, the next question I would like to pose to readers is, "Do you think talking on a cell phone while driving should be illegal?" We're waiting to hear from you.

You can respond by writing a letter to The Times on the subject at P.O. Box 100, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or you may actually participate in the poll by visiting on our website at www.trftimes.com and voting on the issue.

Court should take over redistricting

MN Secretary of State

Do you know where you live? You may know your street, city, and state, but do you know your 2002 legislative district? How about your congressional district? If you don't, you're not alone; in fact, no one knows.

As a result of the 2000 census, Minnesota is now in the process of "redistricting" — the grouping of people for purposes of representation in government.

The process allows for the state legislature to draw new lines every 10 years to produce election districts of relatively similar population. Once the new state-level districts are changed, then local governments go about the process of drawing their new districts — for county board of commissioners, city council, school board and more. Ultimately, officials are elected to represent the new districts, so it is easy to see why the process causes conflict: political power is at state. Still, the conflict should not be insurmountable.

Regrettably, though, in the legislative session that just ended, the legislature failed to adopt a redistricting plan. While the House passed a plan of Republican design, and the Senate passed a plan of Democratic design, no conference committee meetings were even held to discuss the radically divergent plants, let alone to forge a compromise for enactment. In light of the stakes involved and the conflict already on display, court challenges are almost guaranteed, no matter what plan the legislature would eventually adopt, thereby delaying resolution even more. Indeed, court resolutions over redistricting are quite common.

While the law permits passage of a redistricting plan as late as next March, prudence would have it enacted long before that deadline.

Our democratic republic benefits from an informed electorate. Voters need information about their new election districts to make good decisions and know the candidates seeking to represent them. Voter confusion and the potential for voting in the wrong location would be reduced if the redistricting plan were implemented sooner rather than later. This would allow election officials more time to notify voters of their new polling place locations and allow voters more time to become educated about their new districts and representation.

It would be a shame if the legislature's or the political parties' inability to agree on a redistricting plan were to result in thousands of confused or under-informed voters.

Understanding this, I recently wrote to the legislature's redistricting committee members, urging them immediately to adopt a plan for the benefit of voters, but to no avail.

There is another solution to this problem: In instances where the legislature appears to be in deadlock over redistricting with no hope of compromise, as clearly is the case this year, the Minnesota Supreme Court has the prerogative to step in at any time and take over the process.

It's time. Left any longer to the legislature, the redistricting process is likely just to chew up valuable time that could be spent in educating voters and simply to waste tax dollars on legislators' expenses. The people of Minnesota deserve better.

Given our state's history on redistricting, it seems like plain common sense that, for the benefit of the voters, the State Supreme Court should step in and take over the process right now.

July 6 was Cost of Government Day

Linda Runbeck, president of the Taxpayers League of Minnesota, reminded Minnesotans last week that July 6, was "Cost of Government Day," the date on which the average Minnesota has earned enough gross income to pay off his or her share of tax and regulatory burdens imposed by all levels of government.

Many Minnesotans may remember that Tax Freedom Day for Minnesota came on May 7 this year — one of the latest dates ever. By adding the burden of federal, state and local regulations to the cost of taxes, Americans for Tax Reform calculated Cost of Government Day to be nearly two months later, July 6.

Both Tax Freedom Day and Cost of Government day have been getting later in the year. Since 1990, the time Americans must work to pay the costs of government has been extended by two and one-half weeks. Since 1995, over 21,000 new federal regulations were issued.

"Minnesotans have a right to feel overburdened by government. We now work half the year just to pay the costs imposed by government.

"Minnesotans often don't realize the hidden costs of government, such as regulation. What the Cost of Government Day does is vividly demonstrate just how much all that government bureaucracy costs us, both in taxes and increased costs," said Runbeck.

Thankfully, the Bush tax cut will help to reduce the cost of government. We will all be seeing the first dividends of that reduction when we get our rebate checks this fall," Runbeck concluded.

Joy and sorrow accompanies work at Cornerstone Christian school

To the Editor:

Cornerstone Christian School was the site of something reminiscent of the old-fashioned barn raising during the first week of July. It was also a week of extreme joy and sorrow at the school.

During that week a group of 23 adults and teenagers from Redeemer Lutheran Church in Rockford, Ill., came to Cornerstone School for a work week. The group arrived on Sunday and during the following week accomplished an unbelievable amount of work — shingling the building, putting siding and new windows on one wall of the gym, painting and doing some repair on the rest of the exterior walls, and also doing some interior painting. While they worked hard, they did everything with enthusiasm and joy. Meal times were filled with laughter and good-natured teasing. Adults and teenagers worked together with mutual respect for one another's abilities.

People from our area also did their part. Several people donated equipment and tools for the project, and several helped with the work itself. And, many individuals, families, church groups and AAL groups provided meals and snacks for those who worked.

The evenings were filled with Bible study, prayers and singing.

Sorrow had its part in the week also. On Thursday evening, Paul Binder, one of the accompanying adults, passed away suddenly. Although the cause of death is still not certain, he did have severe diabetes. He died when the group, hot from a day's work, went for a quick swim in cold water.

Thanks and gratitude are in order to many people: to Bill Kucenski, Redeemer's youth group leader, who coordinated the whole trip; to Darold and Dorothy Stephanson, my brother-in-law and sister, who gave Bill the idea for the project; to everyone in the group — youths and adults — who gave up a week's time to work on our school; to LeRoy Mercil and his boys and others who helped with the work; to all who brought and served meals and snacks for the workers; to members of the clergy who ministered to the group following Paul's death; and special gratitude to Paul Binder who worked tirelessly for others and provided a wonderful role model for the youth of his church and community.

It was an emotional departure when the group left on Friday. They had become family — brothers and sisters in Christ — in the days they spent with us. They represented Jesus well as they visited our community.

Phasing out the death tax helps small businesses

NFIB President

On Thursday, June 7, the President of the United States signed into law a bill that eliminates the most feared tax of the American entrepreneur: the death tax.

It will take a few years to "phase it out," but in 2010 small-business owners across America will breathe a sigh of relief that we'll all be able to hear.

Demonized by repeal opponents as a "tax on the rich," the death tax has been affecting middle-class farmers, ranchers and business owners for decades. Opponents denied this reality, saying that only a tiny fraction of Americans "ever pay the tax."

This was true. But it was also true that small-business owners were often left with no choice but to sell their businesses before their death, unable to pass the legacy on to their children without being devastated by the tax.

It was also true that the mere possibility of being subject to the tax served as a disincentive to grow businesses, create new jobs and better products.

The death tax was bad news and un-American, and everyone knew it. For the congress and the president to repeal it is a great, historic moment for the small-business community. It is a great battle-victory in the larger war against taxation that is too high and often fundamentally unfair.

The tax cut bill also included a reduction in income tax rates: more good news for small employers! Since about 85 percent of small-business owners file their taxes as individuals, not as corporations, this cut means more money for employee salaries and benefits, much-needed cash for upgrading equipment, and in some cases the breathing room necessary to give employees a bonus check for a job well done!

So to those who say that marginal income tax rate cuts are also "for the rich," I say "not so!" When a tax break is given to a business owner it absolutely benefits the wage-and-salary worker. Period. Because in the world of small business, employees are the most valuable assets. Small employers want to invest in their people whenever financially possible.

Watch; you will see. This tax-cut bill will have a positive impact on our economy because it is going to have a positive impact on the nation's job-creators. They are not "the rich." They are not out-of-touch. They are real people who provide our communities with real jobs. They are also the most generous people I know. . . and they will use their tax break to lift up others.

It will be a wonderful American thing to see.

News Items

"A night crew has been started at the planing mill and that institution will be worked night and day for some time.

"While out exercising on Sunday the fire laddies had the hard luck to break the trucks from under the fire engine. C. A. Wistie got thrown violently to the ground and sustained an ugly wound in the knee. He regarded it at first as trifling but on Monday the limb was so bad that he had to keep to his bed where he is now under medical treatment.

"Editor C. C. Knappen of Crookston is a witty sort of a cuss and likes to tell a funny story better than most anything. He was at Mentor last week and was entertaining a few of the natives in his favorite way. In order to emphasize a point in his narrative, he jumped to a sitting position on top of an empty syrup barrel. The story he was telling hadn't been finished yet. Some syrup of the stickiest kind happened to be on the barrel head and he stuck. Somebody suggested a pair of scissors, but Knappen begged off explaining that he had only one pair of pants and it was against his ideas of propriety for a man to walk through the street with such a vacancy as would be caused in that way. The bystanders rolled the barrel and its burden inside the store where they extracted the man from the pants and then separated the wearing gear from the barrel with hot water. He stood up on the train all the way from Mentor to Crookston as he couldn't bear the idea of possibly going through another severing possess before he could be removed from the car."

THE FOURTH IS OVER NOW.

"The Glorious Fourth of July has come and gone. It rained in the morning. It rained in the afternoon. It rained again in the evening. Yet we celebrated. We didn't have the howling, hilarious time we have sometimes enjoyed on similar occasions, but we celebrated.

"A good program for the occasion had been prepared by the committee in charge. The first item on the program was a Grand Parade which had to be abandoned on account of the rain. This was a pity as nearly all of the business men had floats prepared to take part and the various fraternal orders had also some intention of turning out. But it was impossible and as soon as the sun had smiled down for a little while and the streets began to dry, the band entertained the crowd with a few selections. A program of speeches, singing and music was rendered from the veranda of the Hotel Markham which was kindly placed at the disposal of the committee by the accommodating proprietors. Harry Ives presided over this portion of the day's event in his usual dignified way. The Declaration of Independence was read by J. K. Hannay and brief patriotic addresses were made by Rev. Hammond, in the English language and Rev. Lunde, in Norwegian. Both speakers were well received and heartily applauded. Patriotic vocal selections were rendered by the children's chorus under the direction of Mrs. Bert Mitchell. The little ones acquitted themselves very creditably and reflected great credit on their instructor.

"A baseball game, which was scheduled to be played between the Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls teams, had to be omitted. Both teams were on the ground but the rain had got there ahead of them and had the floor. In the afternoon the Red Lake Falls team played a game with a picked-up nine of locals. It ended in a score of 2 to 4 in favor of the visitors.

"Late in the afternoon a program of races was pulled off as follows:

"Men's race, 100 yards, Burst 1st, Parenteau 2nd, Time 12 3/4s

"Boys' race, Jacobson 1st, Knudson 2nd.

"Fat Man's race, 100 yards, Hokan Johnson, H. O. Jackson, Time, less than 30 minutes.

"Sack race, Mitchell 1st, Martin Hoff 2nd. Rag time.

"Siamese race (three legged), Burst and Parenteau, 1st, Mitchell and Dainard 2nd, Time, two step.

"As the shades of evening came on the fireworks commenced. The display was very fine and contained some beautiful and costly pieces. The management deserves to be complimented on their selections and the successful manner in which this portion of the day's amusement was executed.

"The Bowery dance, given under the auspices of the fire department, was the most successful of the many amusements offered and was liberally patronized both day and evening, between showers."

Notes:

"Some people made so much noise that a fellow couldn't sleep. Some of them are noising it yet.

"Manager Dobner of the Thief River Falls baseball team has received a good many compliments since his visit here the 4th.

"Say, isn't that band fine?' That was an expression heard everywhere during the day. Yes, the band was fine. The boys have been practicing up steadily and under the able direction of their new instructor, Mr. Peterson, they have gained wonderfully. During the entire day, rain or shine, they were always ready and willing to render some choice musical selections. To the band is due much credit for the success of the day.

Employment In City In June Is Below 1950 Figure

"Employment in Thief River Falls at the end of June was four per cent under the total for the same month in 1950, aggregating 2,617, according to the monthly report of R. S. Eldevik, manager of the Thief River Falls office of the state employment service. The report states that the closing of schools for the summer recess greatly relieved the shortage of restaurant, sales and office workers. Due to the light demand, there has been an adequate supply of unskilled workers, while skilled workers are in short supply."

250 Six-Week-Old Pheasants Are Released In Area

"The production and distribution of young pheasants from the two state game farms has been satisfactory to date and it is expected that at least as many as last year, 125,000 will be produced this year, Frank D. Blair, director of the divisions of game and fish, said today. The distribution of about 34,000 day-old chicks covering a period of six weeks, was completed a short time ago. These chicks were delivered to sportsmen's clubs and other organizations to rear for about six weeks until they are old enough to be turned loose.

"Game farm reared pheasants, about six weeks old, are now being shipped for release in the pheasant areas of the state. First shipments were made to northwest Red River Valley counties including 250 set out in the Thief River Falls area."

Bee Will Be Held Thursday To Build Pier Below Dam

"'Operation Fishing Pier' will get underway below the city dam Thursday evening, July 12, at 6 o'clock, it was announced by John Anderson of the committee in charge. He urged all men interested in the improvement of fishing conditions below the dam to be on hand at that time to help build one or more fishing piers and to clean up debris in the river at that point. Anderson added that the street department has agreed to supply a tractor and operator to assist with the project."

10 Days Needed To Decide Winner Of Slogan Contest

"Due to the large number of entries, approximately 800, the task of appraising the entries in the contest to select a slogan descriptive of Thief River Falls will not be completed before the middle of next week, it was announced today by Earl Pedersen in behalf of the merchants' committee of the Civic and Commerce association, sponsor of the contest. Last Saturday, July 7, was the final day on which entries were received."

Ruth (Stacy) Klova of Detroit Lakes passed away recently at a nursing home in Detroit Lakes. She is survived by two granddaughters: Erin Pantinen and Kirsten (Chuck) Turcotte, both of Fargo. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews. Ruth and Roy Klova used to live north of Oklee near the 12-mile corner.

Karen Peterson accompanied Judy Gunderson and Donna Lois of Elbow Lake on a two-week camping trip to South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana and North Dakota. Highlights of the trip included visiting the Black Hills and Yellowstone Park, an old west cookout with covered wagons and horses, white-water rafting, and ending up with the musical at Medora. The weather was good and the country is beautiful. The only crops that looked good were irrigated, otherwise, the fields are dry.

Andy and Karen Peterson attended the wedding reception of Kari Perreault and Dave Dombusch in Red Lake Falls Saturday evening. Congratulations, Kari and Dave.

On Saturday, June 30, was the Oklee class reunion of the 1991 and the 1981 classes. Oklee was really alive Saturday evening with all the extra people, some being visitors coming back to their hometown.

Student Leaders to Attend Rotary Youth Leadership Award Camp

Nearly 120 student leaders will meet on the campus of the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) July 8-14 to take part in the annual Rotary Youth Leadership Award (RYLA) Camp. This is the largest group in the history of the program at Crookston. The students come from sixty different high schools located across Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, and Ontario, Canada-areas that comprise Rotary District 5580.

Regional Rotary clubs select students from their local community to attend the camp. Students are chosen based on their demonstrated leadership ability and their continuing leadership potential.

Rotary International officially adopted RYLA in 1971. Rotary District 5580 adopted the RYLA Program in 1992. It is sponsored by a joint effort of the Crookston Rotary Club, Rotary District 5580, and UMC. RYLA's Mission is to provide outstanding high school student leaders with a variety of educational and recreational activities. These activities provide numerous opportunities for leadership and team building, and they are designed to expand, improve, and refine participants' leadership skills. The camp also promotes the development of active citizenship skills.

RYLA campers are hosted by the Crookston Rotary Club and UMC, and they stay in the residence halls on campus during the week-long camp.

The RYLA program includes a wide range of educational topics tailored for young people between the ages of 15 and 18. The core curriculum centers around the Rotary Four-Way Test and The Seven Habits of Highly Effective Teens, a book written by Stephen Covey's son Sean Covey, and includes such topics as: the fundamentals of leadership; the ethics of positive leadership; the importance of communication skills in effective leadership; problem solving and conflict management; what Rotary is and what does it do for the local community; building self confidence and self esteem; and the elements of community and global citizenship.

Don Cavalier, Director of UMC's Counseling and Career Center and member of the Crookston Rotary Club, is the chairperson for this year's event. The Crookston Rotary Club invites anyone interested in listening to any of the scheduled speakers to stop by UMC during the week. A schedule of the week's activities is attached. Visit the camp's website at www.campryla.org.

Draft comprehensive conservation plan for Rydell refuge completed

A Draft Comprehensive Conservation Plan or CCP, has been completed for the Rydell National Wildlife Refuge in Polk county. Summaries of the draft CCP have been mailed to individuals, agencies and businesses on the Refuge's mailing list and full copies will be available upon request. Copies of the plan are also available at libraries throughout the area. The CCP and the summary CCP can also be viewed on-line at http://midwest.fws.gov/planning/rydlop.htm.

Public involvement is a key element in refuge planning, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service invites everyone interested in the future of the Refuge to review the Draft CCP and accompanying Draft Environmental Assessment. Written comments on the draft CCP and Draft Environmental Assessment will be accepted through August 15, 2001.

The Service is hosting an open house on Thursday, July 19, from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Refuge's Visitor Center. The Refuge is located three miles east of Mentor off of Highway 2. Signs along the highway direct motorists to the Refuge entrance. The open house will give anyone interested in refuge management an opportunity to discuss the CCP with the refuge manager and regional planner.

Individuals interested in refuge planning are also invited to stop in at the Refuge office to discuss the Draft Comprehensive Conservation Plan or the planning process. To request a copy of the summary or draft CCP, call the Refuge at 218-687-2229, or request one on-line by writing to r3planning@fws.gov.

The 2,120-acre Rydell National Wildlife Refuge is situated between the flat Red River Valley floodplain on the west and the rolling hardwood forest and lake region on the east. Host families sought for AIFS students

Right now, there are German high school students dreaming about America. They have chosen to come to the United States on the Academic Year in America (AYA) program, and they are anxiously awaiting their arrival this August. For many of these teenagers, it has been a lifelong dream to come to America, and their parents are grateful they can help their child's dream become a reality. But there is something missing: the love and support of Thief River Falls families.

When Thief River Falls families welcome an AYA German student into their home for five or 10 months, they give the gift of culture to their household. They can also develop a close tie to someone who genuinely wants to experience their way of life. AYA international students are eager to know about the U.S.; they want to see America through the eyes of a Thief River Falls resident, not a tourist. In turn, they are eager to share stories of life in their home country that a Thief River Falls family won't see on television or the Internet.

AYA is a not-for-profit organization sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS) Foundation, which was founded in 1967 with the assistance of late Senator Robert F. Kennedy. In addition to helping German students realize their dream of intercultural exchange, AYA sponsors students from more than 30 countries including France, Poland, South Africa and Brazil. These bright young "ambassadors" arrive with full medical insurance, their own spending money, solid academic records and English skills — as well as great hopes.

For more information, contact Danielle Carpino at 1-800-322-HOST or e-mail dcarpino@aifs.org. You can also visit AYA on-line at www.academicyear.org.

Soybean Cyst Nematode heading northward

A new threat to Minnesota's soybean crop and certain exports is hitchhiking its way across the state.

The Soybean Cyst Nematode has infested most counties in the southern third of Minnesota and is making its way north. Recently, Pope, Douglas, Stearns, Washington and Wright Counties are the latest victims of the pest's arrival, as they have been declared infested.

Minnesota counties are declared infested when the nematode rears its head in significant numbers. Once a county is declared infested, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) must take extraordinary measures to certify product shipments coming out of those counties before they can be exported.

This is a cause for concern as the nematode continues to spread north toward the potato producing counties of west-central and northern Minnesota. Although the nematode does not harm potatoes, it can exist in the soil after a soybean crop has been harvested and tilled. If potatoes, other tubers or nursery stock are planted in infested soil the following year, the nematode can hitchhike from area to area in soil left on those products. This is a serious threat to Minnesota's more than 13 million pounds of annual potato exports because Canada and other countries will not accept potatoes and other farm and nursery products taken from soils in nematode-infested counties without MDA export certification.

The MDA has monitored the spread of the Soybean Cyst Nematode for several years and has expanded its efforts further north into Stevens, Anoka, Swift, Houston, Big Stone and Traverse Counties. It asks that anyone who thinks the pest may be present in their soil to report it to their county extension agent immediately—to reduce the risk of lost exports.

Soybean fields infested with the nematode may exhibit round or oval shaped areas containing yellow, stunted plants. These symptoms appear by the time the plants are six to 12 inches high. On heavily infested plants, the cysts feeding on roots are clearly visible with the naked eye. The adult female cyst is white and the size of a grain of sand or the top of a flatheaded pin. The cyst turns brown upon reaching full maturity or death.

For more information on the nematode or if you have questions about export certification requirements please contact the MDA at 651-296-8328 and help Minnesota "Arrest the Pests!"

Fourteen golfers participated in the American Cancer Society Longest Day of Golf at the Thief River Falls Golf Club recently. It was a particularly hot and humid day, which was quite unlike previous events. Event organizer Shelby Sorvig said in past years they've played in rain and cold, but nothing like the heat and humidity they were experiencing. The good thing about the event is that the number of participants seems to grow every year. Funds raised from the event are used for cancer education, research and program support. Pictured above are: (from left, front row) Deb Ernst, Jenelle Schaefer, Shelby Sorvig, Lorraine Seeverson, Claudie Sorvig, Gretchen Blount, and Lori Sorvig; (back row) Phyllis Miller, Judy Wheley, Stan Sjoberg, Bob Miller and Gary Sorvig.

Winners of bike and rollerpark raffle announced

Winners of the Bike and Rollerpark raffle were announced Saturday, June 30, at the Thief River Falls Eagles Aerie 2368. The winner of the 2002 ZR 120 snowmobile donated by Arctic Cat was Don Adamson. Brodin's Sheet Metal donated a BMX GT racing bike, which was won by Jon Ness. The Childress Skateboard and safety equipment was won by Kristina Stuckey. Vicki Svedarsky's name was drawn for the Swindler model RollerBlades donated by Purdy's Shoes.

The BMX Skatepark committee wishes to thank the businesses and individuals that donated prizes for the raffle. Construction of the park is progressing. The perimeter fence is in place, the skating area is almost complete with the ramps, and the bike area dirt is being groomed for the track. A supervisor has been selected for the summer, and construction footings are in place for the park building. Organizers hope to open the park for skateboard and in-line skating within the next two weeks.

Let the Pennington County Fair commence

While foggy, warm, humid heat greeted visitors at the 100th County Fair in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, it won't stop the fun.

"Century of Fun in 2001" is the theme for this year's Centennial Celebration at the Pennington County Fair. Celebrating this centennial event features prominently in the activities. The Senior Citizen program on Friday, for example, includes performances by Art Stordahl and band, costumes and Old Time dancing. Other Centennial events includes a parade at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, and a Tug O'War in front of the grandstand at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

Line up for the parade will be along Barzen Avenue near the fairgrounds. Once it starts, the parade will proceed east on First Street, north on Knight Avenue, west on Fourth Street and back to the fairgrounds.

But there are numerous activities for everyone to enjoy.

Grandstand events began on Tuesday night with motocross racing at 5:30 p.m. Motocross racing will be continued tonight (Wednesday) at 5:30 p.m. Thursday night's grandstand event, which begins at 7:30 p.m., is the humor of Williams and Ree. Friday and Saturday night, beginning at 7 p.m. is professional bullriding. On Sunday, the St. Hilaire Lions' demolition derby gets underway at 4:30 p.m.

This year's midway will be operated by Rogers Brothers Funland Carnival Shows. A Funland Mega Ride Pass may be purchased for a low price of $30. This pass will allow one individual unlimited ride sessions for the entire week of the fair. The passes will only be available by advance sale until Wednesday (today), at Arnold Avenue Store, Erl's Market, Pennington Square, Super One Foods, Kruse In, Amoco 24, Kum & Go, Pennington Main, Hugo's, Petro Pumper, and Goodridge Store and Cafe. Day passes may be purchased for $15 at the fair midway from July 18-22.

Don Gay announces for bull ride

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

Somewhere between eight seconds and a whole lifetime there exists the excitement and thrill of a sport tailored to the cowboy.

For eight-time world champion bull rider and Hall of Famer Don Gay, watching the bulls, seeing some of the young bull riders progress, and seeing them learn how to win at bull riding all help keep him young at heart.

"It keeps me from wishing I was 25 again," Gay said of the bull riding announcing that he does all over the nation and on television.

Gay was first invited to the Pennington County Fair Rodeo last year.

"I remember mosquitoes as big as my tennis shoes," Gay said of his initial visit.

It's his flamboyant style and southern drawl that make him even more exciting to listen to. This year he looks forward to doing the "play-by-play" for the "Thunder on Hooves" bull riding portion of the rodeo, a job reserved for an expert who can tell fans what they just saw a bull rider do. And Gay is certainly an expert, having rode his way to eight world titles, the most of any bull rider. He also shares a place in the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame with his father, Neal Gay. They are the only father/son team in the Hall.

Gay retired in 1986 from the sport, but continued on as an announcer and rodeo producer. Today he regularly announces on the TNN network.

"Rodeos and bull riding–it's a lot bigger than one would think," Gay said, "with television coverage and everything. It's totally action packed."

Scoring

Gay said scoring is based on an eight-second ride. A bull rider must stay on for that amount of time just to qualify. Two judges, on either side of the arena, score the rider. Each judge can award up to 50 points. 25 points are based on how well the rider rode the bull and the other 25 points are based on how difficult the bull was to ride. The cowboy doesn't get to pick the animal, Gay said, making it a random draw.

Each judge's low score will typically be around 17 points and high scores are usually no more than 24, according to Gay.

"There's a lot of danger involved and that's part of the romance," Gay said. "It's good watchin'."

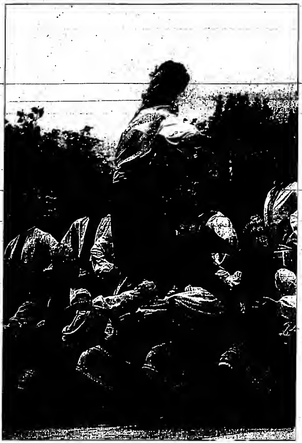
A love of bull riding

If there is one thing that Gay doesn't like, it's someone getting a free ride. He noted that professional baseball players, for instance, may not perform all that well, yet go home with a million dollars at the end of the day, getting that free ride. Bull riding, Gay said, is different. Bull riders may do their best and walk away with nothing.

"A cowboy is a guy that's responsible for his own actions," Gay said. "I like the fact that you're paid for performance."

Gay has grown up with bull riding. His father started the Mesquite Rodeo in 1958 and raised him to love the sport. Announcing for bull riding events gives Gay a chance to relive the days of riding. It's an experience he's familiar with and one he will draw on when announcing in Pennington County Friday and Saturday.

Flying High in St. Hilaire



A Fielke Ukrenian Dance Ensemble member effortlessly leaps through the air during a dance performance at the All Nations Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire last weekend.

All Nations Cultural Festival

St. Hilaire hosts another successful cultural event

St. Hilaire All Nations Cultural Festival offered citizens a taste of culture not normally available in rural Minnesota. Performers from throughout the region and Winnipeg demonstrated folk dances and songs from throughout the world Saturday and Sunday on a surprisingly large stage tucked away in a park behind the small community of St. Hilaire.

It was a big show for a small town. Bernie Huot, one of the organizers of the affair, said the success of this event year after year is due to the sponsors — the City of St. Hilaire, the Community Club, and the Senior Center committee — and the many volunteers.

In his assessment, Huot said attendance was good. Of course, he added, it could always be better. Attendance on Saturday, he said, was a little better than on Sunday. He agreed that it's a busy time of year and last weekend was no exception. The Cultural Festival was in competition with county fairs in Warren and Fertile.

Others said they had an average attendance, which filled most of the seats and kept vendors busy. And other than high humidity, the weather was good.

Huot said it was a great show.

On Saturday, the crowd expressed enthusiasm by clapping in time with some the the acts. One visitor noted that those in attendance really seems to like the Ukranian dancers.

Phillippe Habeck, the master of ceremonies, kept things going. He had fun, including the crowd in some of the dances and activities. In one instance he coerced a couple members of the crowd to come up to the dance floor for a dancing lesson.

Habeck is an experienced and talented bilingual master of ceremonies who has done hundreds of shows on behalf of F.A.C.E.S. and Folklorama over the last six years.

One individual said attendance at the dance Saturday night could have been better, but this was the first year they've really made an effort to hold a dance. Huot agreed, adding that attendance improved toward the end of the evening.

Many individuals are under the mistaken assumption that the All Nations Cultural Festival is strictly for senior citizens. It is really open

Financial report pleases council

Retaining wall at TRF dam to receive a facelift

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

Thief River Falls is in compliance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles, according to the 2000 financial report, presented at last Tuesday night's City Council meeting.

Kays, Benton, Sufranski & Co. LLP Certified Public Accountants, represented by Thomas Kays, went over the report with Council members.

Mayor Mark Borsheim said that the City Council is pleased with the report, although he continually hopes that the City limits itself in terms of bond issues.

"That's reducing our debt, period," Borsheim said.

Repairs at dam

Director of Utilities Arlo Rude presented his recommendation for contracted work on the retaining wall at the dam. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission inspects the dam and power plant regularly and had told the City that it needed to repair a small section of the retaining wall, not a major project according to Rude. It requires lowering the reservoir four feet, which Rude said is planned for sometime between August 16, 2001 and September 15, 2001.

A quote from Hanson Construction in the amount of $10,898 for the peninsula retaining wall repair was approved by the Council.

Other items approved

Several other items before the City Council Tuesday included an update on plans for the L.B. Hartz Park Improvement Project by Park and Recreation Director Madelyn Vigen; approval of a Community Development Advisory Board (CDAB) Loan in the amount of $74,999 to Northwest Beverage, Inc.; approval of the request of Behavioral Dynamics to make two principal payments of $3,000 in 2001 and 2002 and allow interest

Ole weighs in at county fair

■ Guess Ole's weight and win

by Becky Mattson
Reporter

He eats approximately 40 pounds of hay and one pound of grain and corn every day. He stands 63 inches tall and is seven feet long from his neck to his tail. This is the only description you'll get of Ole the Ox because it'll cost you $1 for every guess you make at his weight.

This will be the fifth year Ole the Ox, owned by LaVerne Hamre of Thief River Falls, will be in attendance at the Pennington County Fair.

Guessing his weight correctly will earn the top two guess winners a hog processed by Joppru's Meats in Thief River Falls. All proceeds are used to purchase the hog at the 4-H Market Auction, which is then raised by the 4-H kids. Ole will be weighed at the fairgrounds on Thursday, July 19.

As a fair board member for over 30 years, LaVerne came up with "Guess Ole's Weight" all on his own as a sideshow attraction for the Pennington County Fair. LaVerne has been involved with the fair ever since he was in 4-H as a kid.

Ole the Ox was born on LaVerne and Beverly Hamre's farm approximately seven years ago.

"Ole was orphaned at a very young age due to his mother's 'missing hardware' which made it impossible for her to care for Ole," said LaVerne.

During his younger years, Ole remained content by running around on the Hamre's farm which is located about 12 miles west of Thief River Falls. Ole was later trained by

Bakken herd tops DHIA list for May

The Gary and Polly Bakken herd topped the Top 15 of herds in the Red Lake-Pennington DHIA for the month of May. Supervisors Randy and Margaret Rasmussen put the herds in the following order:

1) Gary and Polly Bakken, 29 cows, 97 percent in milk, producing an average of 79 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat and 2.4 pounds of protein; 2) Todd and Kathy Johnston herd, 58 cows, 91 percent in milk, producing an average of 77 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of fat and 2.2 pounds of protein; 3) Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (small), 67 cows, 90 percent in milk, producing an average of 72 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat, and 2.3 pounds of protein; 4) Wayne Vettleson 3X, 169 cows, 89 percent in milk, producing an average of 70 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 2.0 pounds of protein; 5) Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (large), 44 cows, 86 percent in milk, producing an average of 67 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat and 2.1 pounds of protein; 6) Beyer Farms, 63 cows, with 94 percent in milk, producing an average of 65 pounds of milk, 2.3 pounds of fat, and 1.9 pounds of protein; 7) Walter Brothers Farms, 279 cows, with 83 percent in milk, producing an average of 65 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat and 1.8 pounds of protein; 8) Goodvue Ayr Farms II, 46 cows, with 96 percent in milk, producing an average of 65 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, and 1.9 pounds of protein; 9) Greg Zak, 38 cows, with 84 percent in milk, producing an average of 65 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat and 1.9 pounds of protein; 10) Morlyn and Debbie Ornquist, 41 cows, with 90 percent in milk, producing an average of 64 pounds of milk, 2.3 pound of fat, and 1.8 pounds of protein; 11) Schafer Farms, 23 cows, with 96 percent in milk, producing an average of 63 pounds of milk, 1.7 pounds of fat and 1.7 pounds of protein; 12) Philip Swenson, 33 cows, 100 percent in milk, producing an average of 62 pounds of milk, 2.3 pounds of fat, and 1.8 pounds of protein; 13) Lowell Smeby, 47 cows, with 98 percent in milk, producing an average of 62 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat, and 1.9 pounds of protein; 14) Tom and Diane Kolstoe, 41 cows, with 90 percent in milk, producing an average of 61 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat, and 1.7 pounds of protein; 15) Gary and Grant Gullekson, 53 cows, with 91 percent in milk, producing an average of 60 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat and 1.7 pounds of protein; and Wayne Nelson, 40 cows, with 95 percent in milk, producing an average of 60 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat, and 1.8 pounds of protein.

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low, even though the cow that is milking produces a lot of milk.

Sundew Bog Program and Tour at Rydell Refuge on Sunday July 22nd

Have you ever wondered exactly what a bog is? Is a bog the same as a wetland? How about a marsh or swamp, is that the same as a bog? The answer is no, a bog is a very different and special plant community. Come out to Rydell Refuge on Sunday July 22nd for an informative and entertaining program and tour that will send you home an expert on bogs and the plants that grow in them. The program will specifically center around Sundew Bog, a rare and interesting part of Rydell National Wildlife Refuge.

The program will be led by DNR Region 1 Plant Biologist Janet Boe, and will include a talk in the Refuge Visitor's Center and a tour of Sundew Bog on the Refuge's brand new floating bog-walk.

Sundew Bog is not your ordinary habitat found throughout this part of Northern Minnesota. It is a 17 acre acid bog located on Golden Pond Trail. It is especially unique due to the occurrence of two types of plants, Cottongrass and Round-Leafed Sundew. There are five species of cottongrass in the bog, four of which represent the western-most edges of their range. Round-Leafed Sundew is a carnivorous plant that feeds on bugs. As a rule, bogs are very acidic, and the plant and animal life thus supported is often very different from the land surrounding it. Come out to the program and see for yourself how special Sundew Bog is.

This program is free and open to the public, and juice and cookies will be provided after the program. The Rydell National Wildlife Refuge Visitor's center is open Thursday through Sunday from 12:00 to 8:00 p.m.

The Refuge's eight and one-half miles of accessible trails provide great opportunity for wildlife viewing, photography, or just a leisurely walk or bike ride. To get to the Rydell Refuge, go three miles east of Mentor, or three miles west of Erskine on U.S. Hwy. 2. Turn south on Polk Co. 210 and go about two and one-half miles to the Refuge entrance sign and main gate. If arriving from the south, turn north off of Polk Co. 41 onto Polk Co. 210 and go about three and one-half miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign. For more information contact Dan Doty at Rydell Refuge at (218) 687-2229, ext. 214.

Substitute teacher workshop set

Because school districts in Minnesota are experiencing a shortage of substitute teachers, individuals who hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college and who can comply with the standard requirements of the Minnesota Department of Children, Families and Learning, may apply for a limited, short-call substitute license.

In response to the need and new opportunity, a substitute teacher workshop for limited, short-call substitute teachers has been scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, August 15 and 16, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

Now, persons without teaching certification have an opportunity to become employed as a limited, short-call substitute teacher — one who teaches on a day-to-day basis not to exceed 15 consecutive days replacing the same teacher.

Minnesota Department of Children, Families and Learning requirements for limited, short-call substitute licensure include: 1) a Minnesota Limited Teaching application ($47 fee) completed, signed and dated by the applicant and a school district superintendent, who is required to sign the application to indicate a district hardship in securing a sufficient number of regularly licensed teachers to substitute; 2) a conduct review statement ($26) and fingerprint card ($5 fee) completed, signed and dated by the applicant; and 3) an original college transcript in a sealed envelope from the college/university attended by the applicant.

The cost for the two-day workshop in Thief River Falls is $75, which includes refreshments and lunch. Kris Mickelson, a certified teacher and substitute teacher for many years in the Moorhead area, will instruct the course. Training will be provided in areas of substitute teacher roles, the basics of classroom management, instruction, communication skills and child development. Additionally, required forms from the Minnesota Department of Children, Families and Learning noted above, will be available and participants will receive assistance in completing the forms. Following the workshop, area superintendents will receive a list of workshop participants who have completed the training and paperwork and are interested in substituting in their district.

For more information or to register, please contact Mary Morken or Bev Thompson at the Northern Coalition Education Center at 218-681-8005. The registration deadline is August 3.

Exchange students spread American culture

This month marks the return of many foreign exchange students to their home countries after having spent the last year in the United States living with an American host family and attending an American high school.

These students came to the United States to learn about America and our customs, traditions, and values while sharing in return the customs, traditions, and values of their native countries with their host families, communities and schools.

Christian, from Germany, was able to attend a prom and his school's homecoming events; Johan from Sweden, actually got to meet our former Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich. The students also had the opportunity to visit Washington, D.C. Now, they get to take home and share all of the knowledge and experiences they have gained while living with an American family.

American Intercultural Student Exchange, Inc. is now seeking families to host high school age exchange students from over 23 countries for the 2001/2002 school year. Students arrive in August to live with American host families and attend the local high school for the school year. These eager young people, between the ages of 15 and 18, speak English, have their own spending money, medical insurance, and the desire to participate as an active member of an American family.

Families have the opportunity to learn about other countries without leaving home. Prospective host families are interviewed by a program representative and assisted with the selection of their student. Host families provide a room and food for their student and a loving, supportive atmosphere where the student can discover American traditions and experience crosscultural understanding.

Call AISE's toll free number at 1-800-SIBLING or visit the AISE website at www.aise.com to learn more about the benefits and rewards of hosting an exchange student.

Loan program to help MFIP recipients in area

The Occupational Development Center JobWorks Program has partnered with seven counties (Pennington, Polk, Marshall, Red Lake, Roseau, Kittson and Norman), the Minnesota WorkForce Center, the First National Bank in Thief River Falls and the McKnight Foundation to set up a loan program available to MFIP (Minnesota Family Investment Program) recipients.

The majority of loans from the program will be approved for either purchasing a vehicle or repairing existing vehicles. A smaller portion of loans will be for one-time emergency cases, such as telephone installation, deposits on housing and other similar items. The loans will not only provide needed transportation, but also will help establish a positive credit history for many individuals.

The start-up funds for this program were provided through a grant from the McKnight Foundation. ODC started working with the McKnight Foundation in 1998 through a Welfare Reform Initiative that initially helped establish the successful collaboration that is seen today. For more information regarding the loan process, contact Deb Quesnell at 218-681-6830, extension 26.

NAP in effect for agricultural producers

The new Noninsured Assistance Program (NAP) is in effect for agricultural producers. The program replaces the ad hoc disaster programs of the past. Gone are the area triggers of the "old" Noninsured Assistance Program. Eligible crops include any commercial crops or agricultural commodities grown for food or fiber for which crop insurance is not available. Examples of eligible crops are seed crops, honey, aqua-culture, grass, legume, Christmas trees, nursery, Turfgrass sod, ginseng, et cetera.

The new NAP requires annual acreage reporting of crops. With the exception of crop year 2001, producers must file an application for coverage and pay a service fee within 30 calendar days prior to the coverage period. Applications for coverage will not be accepted without the corresponding fee. For crop year 2001, application fees will be required within 30 days after publication of the rules in the Code of Federal Regulations.

Service fees will be collected from producers for eligible crops in an amount that is equal to the lesser of $100 per crop per county, or $300 per producer, but not to exceed a total of $900 per producer. There is a fee waiver for Limited Resource Producers.

For additional information on NAP, producers are encouraged to visit or call their county USDA Farm Service Agency.

Summerfield Sass takin' it to the streets

New chapter of Red Hat Society organizes in TRF

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

"What's that all about?" a gentleman asked last week as he peered across the dining room of the Best Western Inn.

Donning bright red hats and purple duds, Summerfield Sass, one of America's newest chapters of the Red Hat Society, was a sight to behold, and it's members were giddy with excitement during their first public appearance. Curiosity and attention are expected and part of the fun.

The seeds for the formation of the group were planted one evening when Bev Holm, Hazel Maves and Alyce Geske were playing cards at Summerfield Senior Residence. Bev had a copy of February's Good Housekeeping and pointed out a short article entitled, "A Salute to Sass," about the Red Hat societies that are organizing around the country. "Wouldn't that be fun?," one of them asked, and that was the start of it. Invitation and copies the article and a poem were posted on every Summerfield door, inviting all of the residents to join the fun. Voilà! Summerfield Sass took root with about 17 members.

So, what the heck is the Red Hat Society all about?

It all started a few years ago, when a California woman by the name of Sue Ellen Cooper was visiting a friend in Arizona and impulsively purchased a bright red fedora at a thrift shop. The hat, she thought, was great — quite dashing and cheap to boot.

A year or two later, Cooper read the poem, "Warning," by Jenny Joseph and immediately felt a kinship with the poet.

When a friend's birthday came along, Cooper decided to give her a red hat and a copy of the poem. When that friend derived so much pleasure from the gift, Cooper gave the same gift to another friend, then another, then another.

When it occurred one day that they were becoming a sort of "Red Hat Society," the women decided that they should go out to tea wearing their red hats. With the poet threatening that she will ". . .wear purple and a red hat which doesn't go and doesn't suit me . . ." each of the women decided that she would purchase a purple dress to complete her attire.

The women's outing was a huge success, and before long, each of the original society members brought another woman or two into the group. When the fledgling group swelled to 18 members (more than fit around a tea table!), other interested women were encouraged to form chapters of their own.

The self-proclaimed "Queen Mother" and founder of the original Red Hat Society, Sue Ellen Cooper, penned a "statement of purpose" which appears on the society web site at (where else?) www.redhatsociety.com. It reads as follows:

"The Red Hat Society began as a result of a few women deciding to greet middle age with verve, humor and elan. We believe silliness is the comedy relief of life, and, since we are all in it together, we might as well join red-gloved hands and go for the gusto together. Underneath the frivolity, we share a bond of affection, forged by common life experiences and a genuine enthusiasm for wherever life takes us next."

While the Summerfield group formed its society oblivious to the web site's existence, the site includes an area on starting your own chapter.

While, according to the web site, the society forbids making rules, it offers the following suggestions:

- You must be a woman of 50 or over, and you must attend society functions in full regalia — red hat and purple outfit
- Buy a red hat for yourself and/or for someone else
- Invite other women into your chapter. A new member might be invited to join with the gift of a red hat.
- Each member is responsible for her own purple outfit
- Plan your first tea and go out in your ensembles.
- Stand back and watch the society take on a life of its own.
- Enjoy yourselves!

One of the frequently asked questions, of course, is where to find a red hat. The web site, of course, offers a shopping area, the Imperium, which is currently offering two basic red hats, currently on sale. The site also recommends checking out antique stores, thrift stores and garage sales.

While the original group insists on bright purple outfits, other chapters are more lenient. Again, it is recommended that shoppers check out the thrift stores.

While teas are the favorite activities of charter members, groups can plan any activity it wishes. One group, it's said, chartered a bus and went to see an Elvis impersonator, throwing purple panties on stage! While there are no rules for organizing activities, it's suggested that each member take her turn in planning a tea or outing, sending invitations and making reservations.

In the charter chapter, officers appoint themselves to any office they wish whenever the mood strikes them. Some of the officers include the Founding Mother aka Queen Mother, Vice-Mother who was the first to receive a red hat, Hysterian (historian) who keeps a scrapbook of group functions, Sergeant-in-gloves who would insure proper behavior IF the organization could decide what that would be, the Anti-Parliamentarian who makes sure no one makes an rules, the Baristress, its resident attorney and the E-mail Female who set up an e-mail address for the chapter.

For those who have not yet reached the age of 50 and wish to join a chapter, it is suggested that junior postulates be allowed conditional membership if they will agree to wear pink hats and lavender clothing, exchanging them for the red and purple only after having THE birthday!

Summerfield Sass has limited its membership to residents of the Summerfield senior community. While no one has proclaimed herself its Queen Mother, it was Bev Holm who shared the Good Housekeeping story with her fun-loving cronies.

As of last week, 17 Summerfield ladies had committed themselves to the new organization, and its reported that others are interested in joining them. All have come up with the required red hats and purple tops.

Because area stores are not stocked to the brim with red hats, many had purchased straw hats and had spray painted them in either "Ace Hardware or Crafts Direct" red.

Without the guidance provided by the web site, the Summerfield ladies decided to take turns planning Dutch treat outings. Bea Froelich organized last week's lunch at the Best Western Inn, and Deone Cerny is planning a high tea and visit to the North Dakota Museum of Art for August. September may bring an outing to The Inn at Maple Crossing. In addition to the organized activities, members are also encouraged to don their red hats and purple attire and venture out on their own in smaller groups.

The new Thief River Falls chapter may, if it wishes, officially register on the web site, becoming the third Red Hat Society in Minnesota to do so. The $35 registration fee will provide it with a year's posting on the official chapter listing; an official charter, signed by the queen Mother and Vice Mother; and official membership cards for 20 chapter members.

While, with the exception of their attire, one probably won't be able to expect any thing too outrageous from Summerfield Sass. The vast majority of its members are also active at area churches, do volunteer work in the community and are involved in a host of other organizations.

"It's about female bonding and some fun!" says Bev Holm. Bea Froelich expounds on the fun aspect of the organization and adds, "If you see us in our purple outfits and red hats, realize we are just putting some fun into our senior years. Many of us are in our 80s and continue to enjoy what life has to offer."

For those who don't reside at the Summerfield facility, but are green with envy and think such an organization sounds like fun, there's nothing stopping you from starting chapters of your own.

The community is, after all, full of women who can relate to "Warning" — women who have spent their lifetimes doing what was expected of them while setting good examples for others. It's high time for them to kick up their heels a little, putting themselves first and taking heed from the words of the outrageous Madonna as she croons, ". . girls just gotta have fun. . ."

Warning

by Jenny Joseph

When I am an old woman I shall wear purple
With a red hat which doesn't go, and doesn't suit me.
And I shall spend my pension on brandy and summer gloves
And satin sandals, and say we've no money for butter.
I shall sit down on the pavement when I'm tired
And gobble up samples in shops and press alarm bells
And run my stick along the public railings
And make up for the sobriety of my youth.
I shall go out in my slippers in the rain
And pick the flowers in other people's gardens
And learn to spit.

You can wear terrible shirts and grow more fat
And eat three pounds of sausages at a go
Or only bread and pickle for a week
And hoard pens and pencils and beermats and things in boxes.

But now we must have clothes that keep us dry
And pay our rent and not swear in the street
And set a good example for the children.
We must have friends to dinner and read the papers.

But maybe I ought to practice a little now?
So people who know me are not too shocked and surprised
When suddenly I am old, and start to wear purple.

While she has yet to proclaim herself the organization's Queen Mother, it was Bev Holm who shared a magazine article about the Red Hat Society with her cronies at Summerfield Senior Residence. "Summerfield Sass" enjoyed its first outing at the Best Western Inn last week.

Sometimes girls just got to have fun

Wearing red hats and purple tops, members of Summerfield Sass, a new chapter of the Red Hat Society, threw caution to the wind last week and made their first public appearance, enjoying lunch and their share of attention at the Best Western Inn. Bea Froelich (front) arranged the outing, and other members will take turns planning outings in months to come. A color photograph (at their insistence, of course) of the group en masse can be seen on page 14 of this section.

Masterworks Chorale begins this fall at NCTC

Linda Samuelson, music director at Northland Community and Technical College, has announced that a Masterworks Chorale course and program will be offered this fall.

Masterworks Chorale is a non-auditioned group that rehearses and performs major musical works. Participation is encouraged among full-time students and community members. Class credit is available.

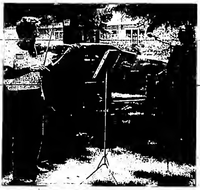
Rehearsals for this year's Chorale will begin August 23, and will be held Thursday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Northland Music department rehearsal room 407. The wind ensemble that will be accompanying the chorale will rehearse on Tuesday evenings beginning September 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the rehearsal room.

International composer Nancy Galbraith has been invited to serve as this year's Masterwork composer. Galbraith has been an active composer of music for symphony orchestra, wind orchestra, chamber ensembles, piano, organ and choir since 1980. She currently resides in Pittsburgh, Penn., where she is associate professor of composition and theory at Carnegie Mellon University, and organist and music director at Christ Lutheran Church.

The piece to be performed by the Masterwork Chorale is entitled "Missa Mysteriorum" (Mass of the Mysteries). The Mendelssohn Choir of Pittsburgh, Penn., commissioned the work in 1999. Sixteen months later, Galbraith completed this epic and magnificent Latin mass. Scored for choir and wind ensemble, Galbraith's mass merges her sacred and concert-art music styles into a work described by one critic as, "both spiritual and radiant, with an immediacy that can't be ignored." The work will have had only five performances by the time it is performed in Thief River Falls.

In conjunction with this performance, the Northland High School Honors Choir Festival will also be held. Galbraith will be the guest clinician for the Honors Festival. Galbraith, during her four days in Thief River Falls, will also work with the Northland Community Band and Trinity Lutheran Choir.

For more information on joining Masterworks Chorale, contact Music Director Linda Samuelson at 681-0733.



Bonnie Hellett, Merv Dobias and Rey Hedlund provided noontime musical entertainment at Pioneer Day at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village Wednesday. The annual children's event is sponsored by the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department.

...To the Fair We Will Go

So, did I hear you say you don't plan to go to the fair this year? What kind of excuse could you possibly have for missing all of the fun? It seems to me that a good county fair is just what this place needs to liven things up a bit. The fair has something for everyone, and this fair is going to be especially good.

This fair is celebrating its 100th birthday, and it's doing so with a blast. The theme of this fair is "Century of Fun in 2001." There will be enough fun and festivities for everyone, running from Tuesday through the entire week until Sunday.

"Oh, but I don't like the rides at the fair! They make me sick!"

-There's more to the fair than rides. Let the youngsters with adventurous natures and strong stomachs go on the rides and you can take the time to enjoy some of the other things at the fair.

"I don't have any money to spend on the fair."

-You don't need a lot of money. There are many things at the fair that don't cost a thing. You can wander through the fairgrounds all day long, looking at the exhibits and displays, watching the people, and talking with all the neighbors you don't have time to visit during the week. You can wander through the midway and watch the suckers throw away their money on the wild games and cheer your friends on in their quest for "the gold." The excitement, music, noise and glitter is all free.

"I don't want to look at pigs and cows and chickens, even if it is free."

-Go look at the other exhibits. Don't tell me you don't like to look at something that is on display. Go look at your neighbor's flowers, or Aunt Milly's jelly, Uncle Bill's loaves of bread, or Cousin Tillie's cookies. Check out the fancy pictures that the wild teenager down the block drew and entered in the exhibits, and take a look at Granny's quilt there on the wall. Check out the 4-H exhibits - there will be everything from science and technology to woodworking to fashion and handywork.

"I just want to sit home and watch the boob tube or listen to my tunes."

-There are tunes and shows aplenty at this year's fair. Check out the recent Northern Watch and I'm sure you'll find some type of music that will suit your fancy. There's everything from Gospel to rock to country/western and some great band sounds. There are entertainments much better than those on television. They include several magic shows, the Williams and Ree comedy show, a local talent show, a hypnotist, fancy car show, and much, much more. There will be that famous bullriding Friday and Saturday, motocross Tuesday and Wednesday and a parade on Saturday too.

"I'm too old to go to the fair."

-You're never too old or too young for the fair. Friday is "Senior Day and Frontier Days," Saturday is "The Roaring Twenties," and Sunday is "Into the Next 100 Years" and there's a fashion show of garment entries through the years. You'll want to see them all.

"I'd rather spend time with my family than go to the fair."

-Take the family to the fair. What better place to have quality time with them and visit with friends and neighbors at the same time. Everyone comes from hither and yon in the area to attend the Pennington County Fair, and you're sure to be able to visit with relatives you haven't seen in ages. Some people who live far away even make it a point to come back home at the same time as the fair so they can visit with classmates and old buddies there.

"Bingo, bingo, I only like to play bingo!"

-There's bingo every day at the fair - look in the Curling Club building and you'll find all your bingo cronies waiting for you - and you might come away with the big prize!

"I have little children at home and don't have time to go the fair."

-Let me tell you, take the kiddies to the fair. They'll be so busy looking at everything that there won't be any whining or fussing. There's nothing like enjoying the fair through the eyes of a little child. You'll find yourself reliving your youth. You'll remember the smells of the delicious foot long hot dogs and onion-topped hamburgers, cotton candy, donuts, candied apples and caramel corn. You'll remember the excitement of winning the big bear at the games, riding the most scary ride of all, the stomach-dropping sensation of the ferris wheel, and the loud, boisterous sounds that rattle the ear drums. You'll remember meeting that special girl or guy there. And you'll be making special memories for your kids too.

Lunch was enjoyed by children participating in the annual Pioneer Day at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village last week. During the noontime break, the youngsters were also treated to homemade lefse by Mary Johnson, a kite flying demonstration by Mayor Mark Borsheim and musical entertainment by Merv Dobias, Bonnie Hallett and Ray Hedlund.

Eat Right - Stay Healthy

The Food Guide Pyramid was developed to help everyone choose the proper amounts and types of food to eat for better health. The Food Guide Pyramid suggests a range of servings in each major group.

*Meat, poultry, fish, dry beans, eggs and nut group: 2-3 servings
*Milk, yogurt and cheese group: 2-3 servings
*Vegetable group: 3-5 servings
*Fruit group: 2-4 servings
*Bread, cereal, rice and pasta group: 6-11 servings.

The number of servings right for each individual depends on his/her age, sex, size and amount of activity. Almost everyone (including children) should have at least the lowest number of servings in the range. However the size of a serving should vary with age. For example an adult serving of bread is one slice or one half cup of rice. For a child a serving would be one half slice of bread or one fourth cup of rice. Also remember that a helping and a serving are not the same. A large helping of macaroni may actually be several servings.

Use this food guide to plan your family meals. Are they eating enough from each food group? Do you need to include more from some of the groups? Do you need to include less from some of the groups? If children see and taste a variety of foods when they are young they will be more likely to continue to eat them as they grow older.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Name the different foods that you are serving. Talk about the size, shape and color of these foods.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

Boy, it sure is tough for these people in Montana. Their legislature is always digging up new ways to spoil their fun.

For instance, if you decide to spend an evening at the Deerlick Saloon, the state mandates that you have to leave the bar by sunrise. Can you imagine?

Fortunately, if you haven't finished your most recent beverage, you are free to bring it, and a couple more if you wish, along with you and guzzle them in your pickup truck. You can't be drunk while driving, but you are free to work on it.

A couple of years ago, the Montana legislature came up with the crazy idea of limiting the speed people can drive on Montana highways. Their feeble excuse was that foreigners were descending upon the state to race their Ferraris and Porches down the interstate.

Nothing wrong with races on I-90, except these stupid out-of-staters couldn't keep their Ferraris and Porches on the road, and when they flew end-over-end off the highway at 135 miles per hour, they became a danger to livestock and sheepdogs. So, now Montana has a speed limit.

To their credit, most Montanans ignore it completely.

Montana is said to have beautiful scenery. I wouldn't know. The mountains and streams are little more than a blur as I try to keep up with traffic on these curvy mountain roads. Most Montana residents seem happy to risk the $5 fine that comes from getting stopped for doing 90 miles per hour.

Ever tried to be calm and collected with a logging truck 20 yards off your tail–and you are already doing 80?

The pickup trucks with multiple gun racks, well, they are a little slow. Seems their owners are too busy scanning the ditches for fox, deer, minorities, and jackrabbits.

But watch out for young mothers in minivans with "Jesus Saves" bumper stickers. They stop for nothing, especially if Pampers are on sale at Kmart in Missoula. Feel a tap from behind, you had better pull off to the the side and let them through.

Despite their repressive and tyrannical laws, the Montana legislature does have one soft spot for its drivers:

If, through no fault of your own, you fly off a hairpin curve at 90 miles per hour, you are immediately declared a Montana "Hero of the Highway" and given your very own steel cross marker, right at the spot where you went over the edge. If you brought others with you, they get crosses, too.

If you are really lucky, your kinfolk will run out to Wal-mart and buy a purty plastic wreath of flowers to hang on the cross, and there it will stand as a lasting memorial–until somebody runs it over on their way over the same cliff.

I drive too fast on the highway to know for sure, but it seems that there is a cross, or a set of crosses, every couple of miles. It's really kind of touching. It can't be easy to mow around all of those things.

NATURE NOTES

by Wayne Goeken

Just Another Week

Geez, Sunday night, what should I go on about for this week's Nature Notes? Let's see, didn't get out canoeing any rivers this week; mostly went out for a quick kayak tour around the lake in the evenings, enjoying a few rosy sunsets as I quietly slipped through the water. Sometimes a little noise could be heard from the resident redwing blackbirds if I cruised too close to shore where their nests are woven into the cattail stands. A few surface lounging fish also made startled retreats to deeper waters as I happened upon them. The resident beaver seemed to accept my presence but, just for the record, let loose a solid tail-slapping to let everyone know he's paying attention. Hmmm, not much there.

Well, let's see, anything in the bird world I could report on. Well, the first thing that jumps to mind is the always memorable sight of an indigo bunting passing through my yard this past week and I had the pleasure of being here when it did. It lit upon a bird feeder in front of my office window as I was visiting on the phone with a co-worker and friend whereupon seeing the bunting I immediately blurted out, "indigo bunting" in the middle of our conversation. Friend and bird enthusiast as she is, she took this interruption in stride and responded with the appropriate, "Cool!" Look it up in your bird book, indigo bunting, yes, very cool! Speaking of buntings, Leon and Donna Thoreson of Climax documented a lazuli bunting visiting their rural Climax residence this spring–awfully far east for this species–good sighting.

Other than that, the usual loons calling around the neighborhood and bald eagle are flying over my lake, gold finches, rose breasted grosbeaks, purple finches, white breasted nuthatches, black capped chickadees, downy and hairy woodpeckers, chipping sparrows and miscellaneous others at the seed feeders: migratory orioles and hummingbirds at the nectar feeders; and other odd sightings at home and afield, and well, for the most part what you would expect to see if you were paying attention, so not much to report on the bird front I guess.

Let's see, plants, must be something of interest in the plant world. One remarkable phenomena that I've been enjoying for the past couple weeks has been the incredibly sweet fragrance of the huge basswood tree growing big and bold alongside an old-time oak buddy, both providing shade to my house many years before I came onto the scene. The basswood blossoms this year seem to be especially sweet smelling, the bees creating their own symphony of sound seem to agree as do the cedar waxwings calling and flitting among the branches.

Otherwise, yes, the prairie flora are coming on black-eyed susans, blanketflowers, lead plant, purple prairie clover, spiderwort, and much more are in bloom as good prairie stock does in defiance of our dry conditions. And the butterflies this year, well, don't get me started. And oh yes, Nancy Sather shared a wonderful program at the Fertile Nature Center on the currently blooming, rare Western Prairie Fringed Orchid noting the unique location that Fertile and the surrounding area is in for this and other native flora, essentially the continental divide for four biomes that extend across the North American continent.

Well, shoot, I guess not much to report on this week, but what the heck, I'll send this off anyway. I'm not even sure if anybody even prints these ramblings, much less reads them, so what's to lose? Maybe something interesting will happen next week. I'll let you know.

Marshall Co. DAC joins ODC

Marshall County DAC in Warren has joined the Occupational Development Center.

At a special meeting of the full board of directors in May, the board of directors of the Marshall County DAC in Warren voted to join the ODC, Inc. After receiving a letter of support from OAC staff and reviewing the work of ODC staff over the past five months of a management agreement, the board of the DAC felt it could best insure continued service to its consumers by becoming part of the ODC.

All services previously provided by the Marshall County DAC and its staff will continue and hopefully expand; however, staff will become employees of the ODC and affairs of the DAC will be governed through the full board of directors of ODC, Inc.

One board member of the former DAC will join, and become, a full member of the board of directors of ODC.

The name for the new division in Warren will be the Occupational Development Center, Inc., Habilitation and Training Center, Warren. Shannon Henrickson has been hired as the coordinator for the Warren division.

In a statement from the ODC, officials said they welcome Shannon and the Marshall County DAC as part of their family of divisions.

DNR seeks comments on public waters plan

Department of Natural Resources is requesting comments from the public before it begins revising the rules governing the issuance of permits for projects taking place within lakes, wetlands and streams identified as public waters.

The formal notice was published in the State Register on June 25, 2001, and comments are needed by Aug. 31, 2001. This revision of the rules was initiated as a result of legislation enacted in 2000.

DNR Commissioner Allen Garber and DNR Waters Director Kent Lokkesmoe have both indicated that the department is committed to developing rule changes that reflect the Legislature's intent. The goal is to make the DNR's water permit program and the locally administered Wetland Conservation Act program more consistent.

The legislation is an outcome of efforts to coordinate the water permit program administered by the DNR and the newer Wetland Conservation Act program administered by local units of government. Changes in the law affect both programs. These include provisions whereby the department can transfer permit authority on DNR public water wetlands to local governments.

Under the provisions, the department could also exert authority over Wetland Conservation Act wetlands through a written agreement with the local unit of government. The legislation calls for changes to make enforcement authorities uniform for both programs, and allows enactment of these legislative changes within 90 days, using an expedited rule process. The expedited rule-making process set forth in the legislation requires the department to formally adopt the changes by July 31, 2002.

The rule topics the department is considering for revision include the following:

- Make the expedited rules adopted by the department permanent. (These became effective on July 31, 2000 and are due to expire on July 31, 2002).
- Add provisions to make the project sequencing comparable to language found in the Wetland Conservation Act program rules.
- Add provisions to determine when project mitigation is necessary.
- Redefine significant fish and wildlife habitat as habitat acquired with public funds or containing threatened or endangered species.
- Make public ditch system repairs consistent with Wetland Conservation Act procedures.
- Allow locally developed plans that are approved by the department to form the basis for local public water work permit decisions.
- Change permit requirements to exempt dock, marina and harbor projects from permits if the docks, marinas and harbors comply with city or county zoning ordinances.
- Change permit requirements to clarify inland and off-shore harbor development criteria.
- Add a new section to the rules to address natural resource restoration projects.
- Establish new procedures to develop agreements between local government units and the department.
- Allow the department to waive permit requirements for projects that affect wetland areas of public waters and defer to the local government unit administering the Wetland Conservation Act when the proposed project involves public transportation.
- Modify the permit rules to make water and wetland regulatory processes more consistent with the Wetland Conservation Act.

The rules governing the public waters work permit program may affect individuals owning land abutting public waters or public water wetlands, as well as state agencies, local units of government and federal agencies required to obtain a public waters work permit.

The DNR will work with the Board of Water and Soil Resources as the board is undertaking a similar effort to revise the Wetland Conservation Act Rules that was also affected by the legislation passed in 2000. The DNR will also work with interest groups, agencies and local governments who were involved in developing the legislation and 2000 rule amendments. Direct communication with interested and affected parties, news releases, and postings on the DNR web site will be used to provide input for the proposed rules.

Interested individuals or groups may submit comments or information on these planned rules in writing, by e-mail, or orally until 4:30 p.m., Aug. 31, 2001. The DNR has not yet prepared a draft of the planned rules. Written or oral comments, questions, requests to receive a draft of the permanent rules when it has been prepared, and requests for more information on these planned rules should be addressed to the agency contact person: Bruce H. Gerbig, Department of Natural Resources, 500 Lafayette Road, Box 32, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155-4032; telephone 1-888-MINND-NR; email: bruce.gerbig@dnr.state.mn.us; DNR web site: www.dnr.state.mn.us.

All programs and performances are free and open to the public; however, a Minnesota State Park Vehicle Permit is required to enter the park. The annual permit is $20. The daily permit is $4.

Activities set for Lake Bronson Park July 20-21

Several activities are being planned for the July 20-21 weekend at Lake Bronson State Park.

At 8 p.m. on Friday, July 20, visitors will be able to hear the Lake Bronson story. It includes a talk and slideshow that introduces visitors to the natural and human history that makes the park a special place. This event will be held at the visitor's center.

On Saturday, July 21, activities include a Kid's Activity program called "Amazing Cattails" at 2 p.m., a wildflower walk at 4 p.m., and a boat tour/wildlife watch at 7 p.m.

The Kid's Activity program called "Amazing Cattails," involves a presentation on why the cattail is called "Nature's Supermarket." Participants will meet at the beach house.

The wildflower tour, which begins at 4 p.m., involves a half-mile walk through the woods and prairie. Participants are asked to meet at the tower.

Individuals interested in participating in the boat tour/wildlife watch are asked to sign up at the park office by 6 p.m. because space is limited. Participants are asked to bring binoculars and meet at the boat ramp near the lakeside campground. Lifejackets will be provided.

Friends of Old Mill to meet on July 29

A meeting of the Friends of the Old Mill is scheduled for after the Music Festival July 29 at about 5:30 p.m. Barbecues and baked beans will be provided. Please bring other dishes to share. The major area of discussion will be the needed improvements to the swimming pool at the park for improved water quality and safety. Additional discussion will cover Grinding Day 2001, winter events and other improvements to the park.

The Friends of the Old Mill is a local group dedicated to ensuring sustainable resources and recreation at Old Mill State Park now and in the future. All meetings are open to the public. The park was formed in 1937 due to the efforts of local concerned citizens. Today, fees collected statewide only provide about 30 percent of the funds needed for the entire Minnesota State Park system. However, due to ever increasing recreational demands, funding for small parks like Old Mill has not been sufficient to maintain facilities and services. When facilities like the pool are in poor condition, park attendance is less and the park's value to the community for tourism is lowered. Active community support is vital to the improvement of recreation sites like Old Mill State Park.

If you cannot attend the meeting, please call or write in support of improving the park's swimming pool.

Old Mill State Park is located in Marshall County, 12 miles west of Newfolden or 13 miles east of Argyle or 17 miles northeast of Warren on Marshall County Road 39.

Please call 218-437-8174; or, write Old Mill State Park, Route 1 Box 43, Argyle, MN 56713, for more information.

Senate approves support for Northern Tallgrass Prairie

Senator Mark Dayton said recently that the Senate has approved $551,000 to support efforts to protect the seriously-threatened tallgrass prairie ecosystem stretching from northwestern Minnesota to central Iowa.

Dayton said the funds were approved late Thursday as part of the appropriations bill funding U.S. Interior Department activities for next year, including national parks, Indian Affairs, and land use programs. He said that funding for the refuge will boost the conservation of tallgrass prairie on private land, primarily through compensation payments to farmers who agree not to farm the land.

In April, Dayton urged the Senate Appropriations Committee to allocate funds from the Land and Water Conservation Fund for the project, noting that the tallgrass prairie ecosystem is considered by many scientists and conservation organizations to be the most endangered ecosystem in North America.

"I am very pleased that the Senate has passed this funding for the Northern Tallgrass Prairie Wildlife Refuge to help protect this vital ecosystem," Dayton said. "These areas are one of America's greatest environmental assets. We must do everything we can to preserve them for generations to come."

Dayton said that a number of state, local and national natural resource agencies support the Northern Tallgrass Prairie Wildlife Refuge, and consider the passage of this funding an important step toward continuing the Refuge's conservation efforts.

Now that the Senate has approved the funding, Dayton said he will urge the House to pass it and the President to sign it into law

ACRRA cost eligibility changes

Governor Ventura recently signed legislation making several changes to the Agricultural Chemical Response and Reimbursement Account (ACRRA), which funds cleanups of agricultural chemical spills.

The legislative changes effective as of July 1, 2001, include:

- A reduction of the reimbursement percentage from 100 percent to 90 percent for eligible costs between $100,000 and $200,000 (applies to all costs incurred from effective date);
- A requirement that all eligible costs are submitted within three years after cost incurrence or corrective action report approval, whichever is later (any costs incurred over three years prior to July 1, 2001, must be submitted by June 1, 2004); and
- Procedural changes for requesting a hearing before the ACRRA Board when a decision on a reimbursement or payment has an adverse effect on the eligible person.

ACRRA funds are used to reimburse costs resulting from cleanup of sudden incidents, such as fire or transportation accidents, or for cleaning sites contaminated by agricultural chemicals over time. The program is funded through annual surcharges on Minnesota registration of pesticides, fertilizer tonnage fees and on applicator and dealer licenses. The fund balance determines the amount of annual surcharges. From July 1990 through June 2000, the ACRRA Board authorized payment of nearly $12 million in corrective action costs, protecting Minnesota's ground and surface water resources.

The Agricultural Chemical Response Compensation Board administers the ACRRA Fund. The board determines reimbursements or payments from the fund to eligible persons. In order to receive financial assistance, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture must receive proper notice of an agricultural chemical incident and corrective action requirements must be met. Costs claimed must be reasonable and necessary as determined by the board.

All applications for reimbursement or payment received after the effective date will be subject to the changes. For more information contact Victoria Cook, ACRRA executive director, at 651-296-3349.

MN conducts first statewide elk industry survey

The Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service (MASS) just completed the first statewide elk industry survey. The survey found that there was over 26 million dollars in total elk inventory across the state.

MASS conducted this survey at the request of the Minnesota Elk Breeders Association (MEBA). The main focus of the survey was to establish an industry structure and breeder characteristics such as inventory, marketing practices, and meat and velvet production for Minnesota. The Minnesota Elk Industry Survey can be found on the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service website at http://www.nass.usda.gov/mn/ in livestock reports.

Minnesota State Statistician Michael Hunst said this is the first chance the state has had to quantify the elk industry. The primary objective of this survey was to meet the need expressed by the elk industry for current production data; ultimately these figures may help improve current operations, marketing, and industry wide information.

"Livestock statistics contribute to a stable economic atmosphere and reduce risk for production, marketing and distribution operations," Hunst said. "Modern agriculture increasingly calls upon MASS to supply reliable, timely, and detailed information."

All elk producers in the state were included in this survey, from those marketing elk meat to those producing velvet. The survey contacted more than 260 total elk operations across Minnesota.

The Minnesota Elk Industry Survey contains many useful facts and statistics. To ensure the privacy of producers' information, federal statute orders that data from individual producers be kept strictly confidential. Name, address, and other private information, including reported inventory data, will not be released.

For more information on the Minnesota Elk Industry Report or any other MASS report or survey, call (651) 296-2230 or e-mail nass-mn@nass.usda.gov.

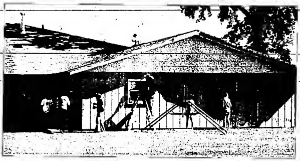
A youth group from Redeemer Lutheran Church in Rockford, Ill. spent a week in Thief River Falls recently while making improvements at Cornerstone Christian School. The 23 youth, their youth director and chaperones stayed at the school and were furnished meals and snacks by local individuals, families and AAL groups. The trip was in the planning stages for more than a year and was the brainchild of Darold and Dorothy Stephanson, brother-in-law and sister of Cornerstone Principal Deloras Kading. The Stephansons approached their church's youth director, Bill Kucenski, and he took it from there — studying pictures of the school and discussing what needed to be done. Kucenski's youth group put out an appeal for funds for their congregation and neighboring churches. Cornerstone raised money for the project also, holding a brunch in May and taking an offering at some area churches. All of the funds raised went toward materials and travel expense with all of the members of the group volunteering their time. Cornerstone Christian Academy is located on Sorteberg Drive in Thief River Falls. (Submitted Photo)



Cornerstone Christian School in Thief River Falls received a facelift recently when a group of young workers, their youth director and chaperones from Redeemer Lutheran Church in Rockford, Ill. spent a few days here conducting a work project week. Tasks at Cornerstone included shingling, siding an exterior wall, painting and installing new windows. The youth group has done similar projects at other Christian schools and churches. "We want to show our love for Jesus in a tangible way," said Youth Director Bill Kucenski. "Adults and youth can work together to produce something very good." Local residents are invited to go out to the school, which is located on Sorteberg Drive, to see the new improvements. (Submitted Photo) to all ages. "There's something for everyone," said one visitor.

In addition to acts like the Fialka Ukrainian Folk Dancers, the festival offered visitors a taste of culture Saturday, there was a line of people waiting to purchase lefse as it was being made. Vendors were also selling a wide variety of crafts that reflected customs and designs from many different nations. In addition, the event offered activities and games for children.

In all, the event offered visitors an opportunity to become a little more familiar with dances and cultures of many nations.

the Hamres to pull a wagon cart.

"Ox are extremely easy to train provided you start when they are at a young age," said LaVerne.

When Ole pulls his wagon he wears a harness and collar, which is actually a horse collar turned upside down. This special collar is designed so that it doesn't bother Ole's front joint.

In his more advanced training, LaVerne would have Ole pull a cart along the roadway to get him used to other traffic so he could eventually pull the cart in town. Ole is now so tame that the Hamre's grandchildren are able to ride him with a saddle.

Ole is a Shorthorn Ox, which are considered one of the most docile cattle. He is shaved by LaVerne every April and loves receiving his regular baths with a garden hose.

"I've always been interested in oxen. The hobby of raising Ole began after my retirement," said LaVerne.

LaVerne worked as a truck driver at Hartz Foods for 25 years before his retirement. His wife also worked in the office at Hartz Foods for 34 years before her retirement. LaVerne and Beverly have three children - Kirk Hamre and his wife Holly of Roseau, Kirby Hamre and his wife Kathy of Thief River Falls, and Tawnya and her husband Tim Panek of Thief River Falls.

About two months ago LaVerne's wife passed away. This has led LaVerne to consider cutting back on a number of activities.

"After losing my wife about two months ago, it has been hard for me to continue showing Ole at area parades. I just want to take some time off and maybe resume all of Ole's showings next year," LaVerne said.

Ole the Ox has pulled a cart in numerous parades including the towns of Thief River Falls, Greenbush, Nielsville, Brooks, Warren and Baudette – just to name a few. In parades, LaVerne says he doesn't drive Ole; he has Ole follow him instead.

LaVerne also owns about 25 other Shorthorn cattle, but Ole spends most of his time alone. Inquiring minds often wonder if there will ever be a Lena to help Ole pull his cart.

"Ole is one of a kind. I don't think he would get along very well with another ox because Ole was raised and trained alone," said LaVerne.

only payments on their CDAB Loan until November 30, 2002; and approval of an application for permission to have beer in Oakland park for the Elks BPOE Lodge 1308 picnic on August 12, 2001.

Items for Information

City Council members discussed and reviewed such items for discussion as the 4th Annual National Night Out community event, August 7, 2001. The event is currently being organized and a meeting was scheduled for Monday, July 16 in City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The Council was also updated on the Park and Recreation Committee's discussion of the need to spray for tent caterpillars in 2002 and consider a service fee assessment to cover the costs. Borsheim said he would have no problem spraying, however he is concerned that a one-time additional fee added to utility bills may lead to a permanent fee increase.

Dave Carlson, a Park and Recreation Committee member, assured the Council that such a fee, if added, would certainly be a one-time deal. Carlson called the notion of a permanent fee increase because of spraying "preposterous."

Ninth graders at Lincoln High School take part in a new agility and plyometric program every Monday and Friday. Anita Lizakowski, an athletic trainer at Dakota Clinic, is the trainer for Lincoln and Northland Community and Technical College and has been the backbone of the program for the last three years.

Training techniques precede weight room work...

New program benefits athletes

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

High school athletes in Thief River Falls are incorporating speed, flexibility, and agility training into their summer workouts thanks to Dakota Clinic and Anita Lizakowski.

When Lizakowski, an athletic trainer for the clinic, first came to Thief River Falls four years ago, she knew she wanted to be involved in the local youth summer training program. After having approached weight room supervisor and coach Jeff Mumm at Lincoln High School, she was able to start what she describes as a strength, speed, flexibility, and agility program as an addition to the weight lifting program.

"Strength is just one aspect of it," Lizakowski said. "It doesn't make sense to be strong if you can't move quickly."

The program is in its third summer and usually runs for about 30 to 40 minutes prior to weight room training. It involves a series of warm-ups and agility exercises, as well as a plyometrics program.

"Plyometrics is basically jump training," Lizakowski said. "It's the way the muscles contract and helps kids learn how to jump and land with a proper technique."

Through agility, flexibility, and plyometric training, athletes in the program are helping to decrease their chances of injury, develop coordination, emphasize function, and improve their athletic ability -- many of the goals of the program. The program also aims to make individuals feel better about themselves and build self confidence.

Mumm said the feedback about the program from parents and student athletes has been good. The program has even attracted a volunteer trainer, former Lincoln High School athlete Kylie Rogalla.

"I went through this program and I know what it's like not to be able to do it at first," Rogalla said.

Rogalla said she enjoys helping younger athletes progress and hopes to help out for at least one more summer next year.

Lizakowski is currently the athletic trainer for Northland Community and Technical College and Lincoln High School. It's through a contract with her employer, Dakota Clinic, that the high school and college are able to have Lizakowski as their trainer. And, it seems her involvement is more than appreciated.

"We need to get quicker," Mumm said. "To me this (prep work) is the most important thing we do."

Dave Meyer of Thief River Falls had his car damaged on the opening lap, but still managed to come up with a Street Stocks feature win Friday at the Greenbush Race Park. Post 117 squad splits its final home twinbill

Roseau-Greenbush saw a seventh inning rally fall short in a 9-6 first-game loss, and fell victim to a game-tying Thief River Falls seventh inning second-game comeback, but still managed a Ninth District American Legion baseball doubleheader split Sunday by winning a 6-4 nine-inning nightcap.

It was the final regular season home appearance for the 13-11 Mike Wienen-coached Thief River Falls team that closes the 2001 schedule with three twinbills on the road, starting tonight (Wednesday) at Crookston.

A five-run fourth inning snapped a 1-1 tie and carried Post 117 to the Game 1 win. A two-run Steve Wiseth home run in the fifth helped stake Thief River Falls to a 9-2 lead that was shaved to a three-run difference in the Roseau-Greenbush seventh before Caleb Grapeau was able to finish off the complete-game pitching performance.

"Caleb threw strikes, and and we came up with the key hits when we had guys in scoring position," explained Wienen.

Trailing 4-1 going into the bottom of the seventh in Game 2, Thief River Falls forced extra innings on doubles by Justin Skjerven (2 RBI) and Garrett Hoglo (1 RBI).

But Roseau-Greenbush broke the tie in the ninth when Ryan Stromlund led off with a double, moved up on a ground-out and scored on a double by Ross Olson. Adam Gerdes also drove in a run in the inning with a single.

Thief River Falls' John Marben worked all nine innings and was tagged with the pitching loss. "That's the second game in a row where John has pitched well, but we didn't give him any support," pointed out Wienen. "The errors were the real key. We had four of them and gave them four unearned runs. We just weren't in it defensively. And offensively, we didn't get the hit in clutch situations."

The two teams will meet again Wednesday, July 25, in Roseau. Thief River Falls will close out the regular season the following night with another trip to Crookston.

Thief River Falls will play host to the Ninth District Division I Legion tournament Aug. 1-5.

Thief River Falls Archery Club will host its 50th annual outdoor 3-D tournament Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 4 and 5.

The event will take place at the club's field range located south and west of the Thief River Falls Regional Airport.

"We expect to see over 1,000 shooters registered for this event," reported Thief River Falls Archery Club president Dana Klos. "This event is special for us. It's a long-standing tradition within our club to host the tournament the first weekend in August, and it has gotten bigger each year."

There were 464 shooters on hand at the 2000 tournament.

Special events are planned to coincide with the tournament. Over 20 archery retailers and manufacturers will have booths and displays set up during the weekend.

Jay Barrs, the 1988 Olympic gold medalist in men's archery, will be on hand to give a shooting demonstration, and will face Rob Rusnov, the current Canadian Olympic champion, in a head-to-head match as part of his presentation.

Miss Thief River Falls, Kelsie Holland, will present the 75-plus trophies that will be given away Sunday at 5 p.m.

COLORED INK

ROCKET SPEEDWAY

from Bob Hultgren

Rocket Speedway hosted the Rod Staff Memorial Mini-Sprints Special Saturday night in Hallock. The memorial was for the former Winnipeg, Man. racer who passed away earlier this year. Staff raced snowmobiles, mini-sprints and modifieds over a 20-year period, turning the driving duties over to his son just last season.

Rick Bates (Badger) won the Mini-Sprints feature. He started sixth in the line-up and quickly worked his way to the front for the win. It took Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls) a bit longer to get into second place. He started eighth and picked his way through traffic for the runner-up spot. Pole-sitter Clay Sorteberg (Greenbush) finished third.

Robert Weleski (Lancaster) started well back in the Pure/Street Stocks feature race, but quickly took his No. 39 car to the front and raced for the win to cap off a great weekend for him and his wife, who were celebrating the birth of a baby girl on Friday. Weleski proudly had a sign plastered on his car and was congratulated after the races by his boss.

Steffan Snare (Hallock) finished second behind Weleski and Justin Peterson (Lancaster) was third. Peterson has shown a good deal of consistency in the mid-part of the season, and its just a matter of time before he puts his No. 15 car into the winner's circle.

Rod Peterson (Thief River Falls) and Jamen Foss (Greenbush) showed up with the only Street Stock cars Saturday. They ran in the Pure Stocks feature, starting from the rear of the line-up. It didn't take long for either driver to work their way to the front-runners, but Weleski beat them to the line in his Pure-Stocks car. Peterson, who won the Street Stocks duel, said after the races that Weleski was just tough to pass.

The starting grid spelled doom for most of the Wissota Super Stocks class. Joey Pederson (East Grand Forks) drew the pole. He is a threat to win no matter where he starts, but from the pole it would take something special to take a race from the veteran driver. It wasn't exactly special, after building a sizeable lead over the first ten laps of the race, Pederson broke a rocker and watched the final laps from the infield. That opened the door for Bob Shafer (Bemidji). Running a solid second when Pederson went down, Shafer masterfully worked through lap traffic for the win.

Jon Halvorson (Warren) seems to like the Hallock track. He finished second and continues to lead the class point standings. Byron Berger (Badger) was third.

Wissota Modified feature started with a bang, literally. The 12-car field had no more than taken the green flag when there was a spin on the front straightaway and half the cars were collected into the pile-up. Four cars left the track, with two returning for the re-start. Gary Johnson (Karlstad) was in the middle of the mess, and made it out for just one lap before retiring for the night. Points leader Kevin Sexton (Winnipeg, Man.) found himself on the front row for the re-start and raced from there for the win. Rick Delaine (Stony Mountain, Man.) was a close second, with Scott Greer (East St. Paul, Man.) third.

Next race at the Rocket Speedway will be Saturday, July 28, when Bud Racing and Harvest States host the Northern Late Model Special. The Late Models raced at the track during the Kittson County Fair and provided a fantastic show for the fans in the stands. Hot laps start at 6:30 p.m.; racing starts at 7.

Rocket Speedway is located at the Kittson County Fairgrounds in Hallock.

GREENBUSH RACE PARK

from Bob Hultgren

Dave Meyer entered Friday's competition at the Greenbush Race Park trailing Rod Peterson by just two points in the Street Stocks points standings. By the time the checkered flag dropped, Meyer left the track with a one point lead in the standings.

He can owe his good fortune at least in part to unfortunate circumstance. On the opening lap of the feature, Meyer, starting from the second row, got caught up with another car. The incident caused a fair amount of sheet metal damage to Meyer's car and sent the other driver involved in the mishap to the back of the line-up.

That put Meyer on the inside of the front row next to Peterson for the restart. Meyer would lead flag-to-flag for the win – never more than a car length or two ahead of Peterson in a battle between Thief River Falls drivers. Jamen Foss (Greenbush) finished third.

Jim Hilman (Lancaster) has been virtually unbeatable this season in the Pure Stocks class. Friday he had his hands full as Steffan Snare (Hallock) jumped out to an early lead that stood up for the first seven laps before Hilman went ahead on a restart following a yellow flag. Hilman and Snare would joust the remaining eight laps before Hilman took the checkered flag. Snare finished second, with Justin Peterson (Lancaster) third.

Gordie Lancaster (Bemidji) continues to lead the Super Stocks points race following a feature win Friday. Lancaster led all but Lap 3 – led by Dan Morberg (Mentor), who for several laps ran side-by-side with Lancaster. Morberg finished a close second, with Bryon Berger (Badger) third.

Dean Forst (Thief River Falls) raced to the Modifieds win, with Steve Arpin (Fort Frances, Ont.) second and Shannon Gust (Strathcona) third. While the top three drivers raced single file through the 15-lap feature, the real action was back with the five other cars racing for fourth. They jockeyed for position and changed spots several times through a very clean and exciting Modifieds final.

Best car count of the evening was in the Mini-Sprints class, where 14 drivers took the green flag for the feature. Clay Sorteberg (Greenbush) and Robbi Peterson (Middle River) would take turns leading early in the race, but by Lap 9 both had dropped out of the contest. Rick Bates (Badger) took the lead on Lap 7 and led the rest of the way. Points leader Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls) finished second, with Gerald Hatlestad (Roseau), having another strong race, placing third.

Next night of action at the Race Park, located one-half mile north of Greenbush on County Road 7, will be Friday, July 27, when it hosts a NOPA Pure Stocks Series Race.

Minnesota numbers are announced for 2000 season...

Waterfowl harvest declines

Hunters harvested fewer ducks and geese in Minnesota last fall compared to 1999, according to recent harvest reports from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The 2000 Minnesota Canada goose harvest of 159,400 was down 31 percent from the record high of 231,000 in 1999 and was similar to harvests from 1996 through 1998.

Minnesota's duck harvest declined 25 percent from 657,800 in 1999 to 491,700 in 2000. It was the lowest duck harvest in the state since 1993.

"Even with the drop in goose harvest, we still had the highest Canada goose harvest in the nation," said Tim Bremicker, Department of Natural Resources Division of Wildlife director. "But the continued decline in duck harvest - that was a huge disappointment."

Biologists believe poor habitat conditions account for much of the low harvest. Most of southwestern Minnesota was dry last fall and duck hunting has been poor in the forested portion of Minnesota in recent years due to higher water levels that damage wild rice used by waterfowl. "These conditions influence both the production of young ducks in Minnesota and the distribution of migrant ducks in the fall," Bremicker said.

In addition, more of the fall duck flight is being raised in the Dakotas due to ample potholes and federal Conservation Reserve Program grassland habitat.

Though factors such as weather are beyond the control of wildlife managers, Bremicker noted that the DNR will soon release a plan, to be announced later this summer, that identifies factors that it and partners can address to boost fall duck numbers.

"Our staff and partners, especially the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Ducks Unlimited, and the Minnesota Waterfowl Association, will be working on components of this plan over the next several years," he said.

Red Lake County Fair Winners Grandparent Essays

All of the following four essays will be sent to the Minnesota State Fair. These reports were typewritten and, for the sake of authenticity, are quoted as submitted.

1st Place Winner
"My Grandpa" by Mark Welter
Parents: Roger & Janel Welter
Grandparents: Herb & Esther Welter, Pearl Laniel

Ever since the day I was born, my Grandpa has been a very special part of my life. I am very lucky that he lives close to me, so I am able to spend a lot of quality time with him. He lives near my school, and I can walk over there and visit whenever I want. I like listening to his stories about his past, about when he was a boy. He has worked hard all his life, and I have always been very proud to be his grandson.

My grandpa was born in 1917 on a farm in North Dakota. In 1934, during the dust bowl days, my Great Grandfather moved to Plummer because it was the first place he saw that still had green grass. My grandpa worked for his parents on the farm. When he got married to my grandma, they moved to Portland, Oregon in 1941. During World War II Grandpa and Grandma had three children and Grandpa and Grandma worked for a tire company and a lot of odd jobs. In 1947 when World War II was over, they moved back to Plummer, Minnesota, where he started his own farm. Over the years they had nine children, which includes my dad. He built a new house and years later they sold the farm to my dad and his brother. My mom and dad bought the house from him in 1981, and my grandma and grandpa moved to the town of Plummer where they still live right now.

When I was born in 1988, everyone thought I looked like my Grandpa, probably because I had the same ears and no hair. They called me "Little Herbie", for a long time. Grandpa still works very hard. He spends many hours plowing our fields in the summer and fixing machinery. He has taught me a lot about tractors and farming. We have done a lot of fun things together like playing cards, watching T.V., and talking. His favorite thing to do to me is tease me and pull my ears.

This past year has been very hard for Grandpa because his health has not been very good. He has slowed down some and has to breath into an oxygen machine 4 times a day to help his lungs. It's hard to see Grandpa not feel well, but he still likes to be with me, and I like being with him, too. I am so glad that we have had so many great times together and I am looking forward to many more.

2nd Place Winner
"My Grandparents" by Brittany Gustafson
Parents: Blair & Vicki Gustafson
Grandparents: Maria & Carol Gustafson, Norman & Darlene Blackstad

For my report I have chosen to do all four grandparents because they are all very special to me. I couldn't choose between one or the other. So I chose all four.

My grandma is very special. When I am down she always finds a way to make me laugh. I love to stay the night there. It's so much fun. We both love to go shopping in Grand Forks. It's our favorite. My grandma is very cool. Whenever I go over there, she brings me out to eat. Then she brings me out for coffee with her and her friends. My grandma likes to play cards with me all the time. We both love to dance around the house. My grandma has taught me many things, like making doughnuts, cookies, and different kinds of bars. I love my grandma very much and I know she loves me, too. She is always kind and generous to everyone. She also makes sure all of our holidays are filled with fun and family and a lot of good food. She always makes my favorite pie, strawberry. I'm very proud she is my grandma. She is just not my grandma, she is my good friend.

My grandpa is very special to me also. He's always moving around doing different things especially working. If he is not working, he is downstairs watching a good Western movie or watching his favorite basketball team. He used to be the boss of the Street Department in Thief River Falls. He loves to do garden work. Every year he plants flowers. He is very smart. He always brings me to McDonalds when I stay over night. He always makes sure I have cheddar cheese hashbrowns in the morning for breakfast. In the summer, my grandparents work at a park. So I help them a lot collecting money and cleaning. When my brother, sisters, or me need something, he always helps us out. Everyone says that I look like my grandpa and his mother. That is my grandpa that I love very much.

My dad's mom is very special to me, too. They live right down the road from us. So we can walk over there any time we want. Whenever I go there we usually play cards or watch movies. She likes to plant flowers, sing, bake, cook, and sew in her free time. She doesn't have a lot of free time. In the summer, we go over there and have cookies and juice. So it's nice having her close. Grandma always helps us out with our school projects. Like when we need extra things, like buttons, material, yarn, and many other things. She always has the stuff handy. We play cards and board games. My grandma always has a smile on her face. I love her very much.

My dad's dad is very special. He calls me to help him out. He likes to joke around a lot. He likes to yodel, and he is very good at it. He even taught me how. It makes everyone laugh. He likes to go on bike rides, and his dog Sparky is always right behind us. I go over there and play cards with him. He always likes to win. Sometimes he cheats! One of his favorite things to do is go out and eat, and I get to go with sometimes. He likes to sing in the car while he's driving. (He try's anyways) That's my grandpa which I love very much.

One thing I love about all my grandparents is that they are all good friends. They go on vacations together. We spend most of our holidays together, and that is one thing that is very important to me that we are all together. As one family.

3rd Place Winner
"My Grandpa & Grandma" by Nicola Johanning
Parents: Bob & Jan Johanning
Grandparents: Elmer & Linda Kofstad, Max Johanning, Jr.

My grandpa and grandma are special to me because they let me stay overnight for a week in the summer. They live about eight miles away from me on a farm near Plummer. I enjoy having them live close because I get to see them more often. That means a lot to me.

My grandpa is a farmer. He takes me with him out in the field. I've ridden in the swather and on the tractor while raking alfalfa. I've also driven the pickup out in the field. My grandpa and I pick rocks and throw them in the back of the pickup. Then we dump them in the rock pile. We bring hayracks out to the hayfield to get loaded with hay, and then we bring them back and put them in the hay shed. I go with my Grandpa to town to get parts and do other errands.

My grandpa always tells whoppers. So for Christmas, my sister and I gave him a box of candy Whoppers. He thought that was funny.

My grandma always plants a garden, and I help her pick the potato bugs off of the potato plants. Grandma and I take walks together and look at the trees she planted. We look at the flowers and the garden too.

One time my grandma showed me her wedding dress that is kept in a trunk in the old house. She sewed it herself. I got to try it on and it's really pretty. Grandma showed me her wedding pictures one time. Grandma takes me along to town with her when I am staying over there. She buys me things. She's really nice.

My grandparents have one dog. His name is Poppin. He's part border collie and English shepherd. He rides in the pickup with my grandpa. He sits right next to him. It's pretty funny to see. They have a cat named Mitzy. She's a good hunter.

In the evening we go for a drive and look at the wildlife such as deer, skunk, fox, a turtle, and baby ducks in a pond. I got to see bear tracks one time.

I usually go over to their place every Saturday and we have peanut butter cookies because they know they are my favorite. My grandma is a good cook. My grandpa and my grandma tell me stories about how it was when they were growing up and going to school and how things are different now. That is very interesting to me.

My grandparents are so special to me. They always have time for me no matter how busy they are. They listen to me and if I have problems they try to help me. I really enjoy spending time with my grandpa and grandma. I have so much fun when I am with them.

"Bigger and Better"

Looking forward to the 100th county fair

The Pennington County Fair is just around the corner. In fact, as you read this it will be in progress. I look forward to the fair each year even though it means countless hours of work. I enjoy the exhibits, the displays, the entertainment, the food . . . and especially the food — the anticipation of scooping up a spoonful of ice cream from a malt prepared at the 4-H stand, and eating all those other things which I know I shouldn't.

Though each year is always "bigger and better", this year is the 100th anniversary of the county fair in Thief River Falls, and more than ever, the several additional activities that have been planned to celebrate the occasion, will ensure that this event is bigger and better.

Over the years there have been many interesting events held at the fair. If you're interested in learning about the history of the Pennington County Fair, a book has been compiled by a "blue-ribbon" panel and will be sold during the fair. The book not only includes a written history, but pictures and "grand champion" recipes. Please note that Pennington County did not become a county until 1910 when it was separated from Red Lake County. For the past 100 years, however, the county fairs have been held in Thief River Falls.

Certainly, times have changed the face of the fair, but not the excitement that attends such an event. In the beginning, horse races were the "big" grandstand events. Over the years there have been many "big" events such as balloon rides, plane rides, tug-o-wars, helicopter rides, midway thrills, and even "big-name" entertainers. Of course, each fair is bigger and better.

Such a review of "changes at the fair" has been contemplated before. An account published in the history of the county fair that's being sold this year, includes an interview with Municipal Judge N.W. Tarrant on August 7, 1930. Tarrant had this to say: "early fairs were much different than these modern ones." According to the interview, Judge Tarrant compared modern times with "back in the days when each side show was set up in front of one of the 16 saloons, and the streets were lined with concessions of a particularly cheap and rough brand."

This year's fair promises its own brand of entertainment. The entertainment seems more "action-packed" than in past years. Events include motocross racing, professional bullriding, and the demolition derby. It also includes the humor of Williams and Ree, a fireworks display, and a parade.

It is unfortunate that the new grandstand won't be ready for the fair. Due to events beyond control of the local fair board, the materials for the grandstand won't be delivered in time for the fair. Organizers believe the materials will be delivered on or around July 28. This means the grandstand won't be ready for use until about August 15. Thankfully, the fair board was wise enough to leave the old grandstand standing and I'm sure it will see heavy use.

As of Tuesday, July 10, 135 4-H exhibitors have registered 424 exhibits and 99 animals for the fair. This represents a slight decline of the past two years.

Over the years, staff at the Thief River Falls Times have taken particular pride in its coverage of the fair. That's not to say we haven't missed an event or activity, but by and large, we've covered it as much as possible. Last year, I think we had something like 180 photographs from the fair in the pages of the The Times/Northern Watch.

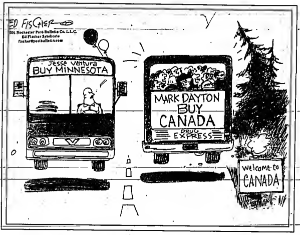
What's special about the county fair: cotton candy, corn on the cob, corn dogs, hamburgers and fried onions, mini-donuts, caramel apples, and cheese curds.

What's special about the county fair: the lights and persuasive spiel of the hawkers, the thrill of the Zipper, and the sound of laughter.

What's special about the county fair: the smile of a grand champion.

The history book being sold at the fair this year concludes by identifying a common theme that has run through all 100 years of county fairs held in Thief River Falls — "Pretty much every year the fair has been advertised as being better than any previous fair."

This year will be no exception, and I'm looking forward to it.



Governor and Premier sign agreement

Governor Jesse Ventura and Manitoba Premier Gary Doer have renewed and extended the 1988 Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between their two jurisdictions and created a new agreement on protecting water resources on both sides of the border.

At a news conference following the signing ceremony, Governor Ventura said it was significant that Minnesota and Manitoba formed a strategic partnership two months before the 1989 Canada-U.S. Free Trade Agreement. "It means that your province and our state have known from the beginning that we'll get where we want to go that much quicker if we make the journey together," he said.

The agreement commits the governments of Manitoba and Minnesota to work on closer relations, specifically in the areas of promoting bilateral trade, launching new co-operative tourism initiatives and expanding the extensive hydropower relationship between the two jurisdictions with information sharing on renewable energy sources and energy infrastructure, and public education on energy issues.

The governor and the premier also signed a new agreement on mutual water issues to help preserve and protect this vital resource in both Minnesota and Manitoba.

"Manitoba and Minnesota are blessed with many similarities that have proven to be great strengths for both of our jurisdictions," said Premier Doer.

As examples of close business relationships, he pointed to companies such as New Flyer Industries and Cargill, which have headquarters operations in both Manitoba and Minnesota.

Sen. Dayton promotes Rx Express

Senator Mark Dayton told dozens of Minnesota senior citizens traveling to Canada on Monday to get cheaper prescription drugs that Congress must address the problem. He explained that it's forcing some senior citizens to choose between buying needed medicines and paying for other necessities like food, clothing and housing.

Dayton made these comments as the first "Rx Express" bus was preparing to depart for Winnipeg. Dayton has donated his Senate salary to the Minnesota Senior Federation, which is organizing the effort. The trips will continue monthly until the problem is addressed.

"It's outrageous and unacceptable that seniors in Minnesota and across the country — many of whom have limited incomes — are forced to pay much more than people in other countries for the exact same drug, made by the exact same company," Dayton said. "By restarting these trips, the Senior Federation will keep attention focused on this problem until we can help seniors better afford the medicines they need."

"Minnesota Senior Federation believes that all Minnesotans should have access to affordable medications. Americans without prescription drug coverage are paying the highest prices in the world for medications, nearly twice the cost in Canada and roughly 40 percent of Minnesota seniors have no prescription drug coverage," said Janis Ray, First Vice President of the Minnesota Senior Federation. "Prescription drugs are an essential element to health and well being for many individuals, but skyrocketing prices have left many faced with difficult choices between medication, food and housing. The Senior Federation believes that no one should have to make decisions that may compromise their right to safe and healthy lives."

Dayton said he hopes that the House of Representatives will follow the Senate's lead in adopting a prescription drug bill, and that President Bush will sign into law a real, affordable prescription drug benefit this year. "We can't stake the health and well-being of vulnerable Minnesotans on bus trips to Canada."

Salvation Army responds to charges

In response to a newspaper report that the Bush administration made a deal with The Salvation Army to exempt it from laws dealing with hiring, Lt. Col. David Grindle, divisional commander for Minnesota and North Dakota said that no such agreement exists. "The Salvation Army does not discriminate in the provision of its services, or in the general hiring practices of our more than 45,000 employees nationwide," Grindle said.

The Salvation Army, along with other faith-based organizations, was requested by the White House Administration to identify barriers in government-provided social services funding. A document was prepared by the Army, for internal discussion purposes only, of barriers as well as possible solutions. According to Grindle, "Our mission statement clearly affirms that The Salvation Army will meet human needs in God's name without discrimination. Our support for the bi-partisan Community Solutions Act of 2001 (H.R.7) parallels our long-standing partnerships with government to expand social services to people who need it most. Our support for this legislation is without condition."

Salvation Army services are among the broadest of any faith-based, or non-profit group in the county, and includes outreach to the homeless, senior citizens, children, prison inmates and their families, people with AIDS, as well as the many other well-known programs the public has embraced for more than 130 years.

Few realize that The Salvation Army is a mainstream Christian church. The only area the Army selectively chooses is in its pastors and employees with religious responsibilities. "In our 136-year history, the Army has never discriminated against anyone in our general hiring," Grindle said. Last year alone in the United States, the Army served more than 36 million people.

Health study finds lack of insurance for many

Racial and ethnic minority groups in Minnesota are much more likely to lack health insurance than white Minnesotans, according to a survey of more than 27,000 Minnesotans sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Health's Health Economics Program. The survey reveals, for the first time, substantial differences in health insurance status across Minnesota's increasingly diverse population.

According to study findings, 5.4 percent of Minnesotans (approximately 266,000 people) were uninsured at the time of the survey in 2001. However, rates of uninsured vary widely across racial and ethnic groups and across different regions of the state. The study shows that while 4.6 percent of whites are uninsured, 17.7 percent of Hispanic/Latinos, 15.9 percent of American Indians, 15.7 percent of African Americans, and 7.2 percent of Asians in Minnesota are without health insurance coverage.

"This study is groundbreaking, because it documents for the first time what we've suspected to be the case: that populations of color and American Indians are much more likely to be without basic health coverage than our white population. This provides more evidence that we need to act to reduce disparities in health care access and health status," said Jan Malcolm, MN Commissioner of Health. "While Minnesota leads the nation in health insurance coverage, this study documents that when you look beyond the averages, we have unacceptable disparities in access to insurance and health care services."

The study also finds that significant differences in rates of insurance coverage exist in different areas of the state. Rates of uninsured range from a low of 3.4 percent for the Southeast region of the state to highs of 8.6 percent for the North Central region and 9.4 percent for the Headwaters region.

Another significant finding of the study is that the number of uninsured children is larger than had been previously thought. About 4.5 percent of all Minnesota children, or 58,000 children under the age of 18, lack health insurance coverage, a larger figure than previous estimates of 43,000 children. The study's authors point out that the new, higher estimate may be due to either an actual increase in the number of uninsured children or previously underestimated rates.

The survey was conducted as part of a larger study by the Health Economics Program of the Minnesota Department of Health, examining health insurance and health care access. It is funded by a grant from the federal Health Resources and Services Administration. Survey work was conducted in collaboration with the University of Minnesota, School of Public Health, Division of Health Service Research and Policy, between November 2000 and May 2001. The survey was conducted as a random telephone survey of over 27,000 Minnesotans. Additional results from this survey and other ongoing research on insurance coverage and health care access are expected later this summer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why can't trucks stop too?

To the Editor,

I doubt this letter will do any good at all, but maybe someone out there can tell me if I'm wrong or not.

I have been under the assumption my entire life, that a STOP sign was meant for EVERYONE on the road, not just some. I live southwest of town, and it's bad enough that the gravel trucks tear up the three gravel roads I need to use to get to pavement, so bad, that I have trouble getting my car through. But then, JUST ONCE, I would LOVE to see ONE of them actually stop, or maybe even just yield for one of the stop signs around here!

I don't know why they think they are exempt from the road rules that we all are supposed to follow. I was almost rear-ended this morning, simply because I chose to STOP for the stop sign. This driver made NO attempt to even slow down. If I wouldn't have stepped on the gas and rounded that corner as quickly as I could, he would have hit me.

Not ONLY do they NEVER stop, but...they also refuse to acknowledge the right of way. They have a stop sign, and you have the right of way, but unless YOU yield, you will be hit. I have seen this over and over again, and I'm getting VERY tired of it. I'm not the ONLY one out here either that has been having these problems.

When will this end? When someone gets hit, or killed? I certainly HOPE not! Can ANYONE tell me what we can do about this problem? I would LOVE to know!

Sincerely,
Maureen Steele

'Miss Elsie Sundahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Sundahl, and Milton Lund, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lund, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Conley avenue, last Saturday afternoon. Rev. Albin Larson, formerly of the Augustana Lutheran church of this city, but now of Warren, officiated.

Her bridesmaid, Lillian Knight, wore a dress of orchid crepe-de-chine. Mrs. K. A. Sundahl, the bride's mother, wore a gown of dark blue satin faced with crepe. A two-course buffet luncheon was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Lund left on a honeymoon trip to Minneapolis and Chicago. They expect to be gone for about two weeks, after which they will be at home in this city.'

NOMINATIONS FOR THIEF RIVER FALLS BEAUTIFICATION AWARDS

The Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce is accepting applications for City Beautification Awards. This awards program is a Chamber of Commerce annual event, which emphasizes the beautification and physical improvements of residential, commercial and public institution properties throughout the City of Thief River Falls. The Ambassadors invite the participation of the entire community in the selection process.

RESIDENTIAL–Category applies to residential properties with areas for lawn, plants and shrubs. Judges will consider overall appearance, eye appeal, and best use of trees, shrubs and flowers.

LANDSCAPED BUSINESS–Category applies to properties with areas for lawn, plants and shrubs. Judges will be checking for trimming, watering, mowing, condition of lot, building and signage. They will also check for weed control, trash picked up, dumpster areas and lot striping. Flowers and plants really add to this category - need to say "WOW" from a distance.

PUBLIC INSTITUTION OR CHURCH–Criteria for this category is the same as for Landscaped Business, as described above.

STOREFRONT–Category is for non-landscaped business: Criteria includes window displays, hanging or potted plants and cleanliness of windows and sidewalks. Judges will also check for obstruction, neat and orderly signage, including window posters and overall appearance. Creativity goes a long way in this category–a window display should draw the customer's attention.

4th Place Winner
"My Grandparents"
by Mallory Gerardy
Parents: Tony & Sheila Gerardy
Grandparents: Carol & Jerry Gerardy, Wavell & Lloyd Sorenson

For my report I decided to write about all of my grandparents. They are all very special to me and I couldn't choose between them.

My grandma is very special to me. She lives a couple minutes from my house, so I visit her a lot. When the electricity went out she let our family stay at her house. She really likes the Minnesota Vikings. I like to watch the football games with her. She is very special to me.

My grandpa loves to garden. He used to be a farmer but now he just helps my dad with the farmwork. He and my grandma clean the apartments in Plummer. I sometimes go and help them. Almost every Saturday they go to the legion for hamburgers. They take me, my brother, and my sister, sometimes. I love to spend time with my grandpa.

My grandma loves to dance. She dances with my grandpa at Trail. She likes to sing and talk, also. She likes to plant flowers, and knows a lot about them. When I go over to her house she always finds something for me to do. I love my grandma very much.

My grandpa is very special to me in many ways. He likes to tell stories to us. He and my grandma have been married for over 40 years. He used to milk cows for a living and drive the bus at Plummer School. Now he is retired. He is a very friendly person. He is very special to me, and I love him very much.

My great-grandma lives in Thief River Falls. She always remembers everybody's birthdays. She loves to spend time with me. I love to go over to her house. She has pictures of everybody in her house. She also has a lot of valuable antiques. In January her husband died. I saw her crying, so I went up to her and gave her a hug. That made her feel a little bit better I think. She has been sad lately. I love her very much.

Those are all my grandparents and I love them all so much that I couldn't put some of it into words. I am very lucky to have grandparents like I do.

Heat and humidity may have had heads spinning, but so did the many attractions. With this being the 100th county fair in Thief River Falls, it seemed like there were more events and attractions than ever before.

What's a comin'?

Three-year-old Savannah Peterson wasn't going to miss any opportunities to snag some candy at Saturday's Pennington County parade. Children were urged to stay near the curb and candy bearers made sure to throw candy out to them, but you can bet you've still gotta be ready!

Photos and More Photos Inside of the action from the Pennington County Fair

The grandstand was packed for the Thunder on Hooves professional bull riding event in Thief River Falls on Saturday. This bull rider got a good ride and scored well.

Community celebrates 100th fair

Despite extreme heat and humidity, the Pennington County Fair was a total success, according to Fair Board Chairman Mike Sorteberg.

Sorteberg said they did notice that the heat and humidity affected events during the afternoons of the fair, but attendance picked up in the evenings. Sorteberg added that all of the grandstand events were well attended, even the ATV Mud-Run, which was held in the afternoon on Saturday during terrible heat.

Maybe because of the heat and humidity, the one thing board members heard repeatedly during the fair was, "what a year it would have been for the new grandstand." Sorteberg said he he had just heard from the contractor, who said he would begin on Monday.

Exhibits

According to the Extension Service office personnel, there were 135 4-H exhibitors with 424 exhibits. There were a total of 99 animals registered for the fair. This is down slightly from the last couple of years. In 2000, there were 145 exhibitors showing 478 exhibits, and 106 animals. In 1999, there were 157 exhibitors, 458 exhibits and 109 animals.

Open class exhibits this year were up in several departments: children's culinary, adult needlework, adult and children's sewing, adult and children's photography. There were 1,100 exhibits, according to Sharon Iverson, despite the sweltering heat.

Ole

Nine people correctly guessed the weight of Ole. Apparently Ole has been on a diet. He weighed-in at 2,322 pounds this year, which was a little less than last year.

The nine names were placed into a jar and the two names drawn were awarded a side of pork. The two winners were Patty Rockstad of Moorhead, and Leroy Jensen. The seven others were awarded $10 cash.

The annual auction attracted a large crowd in the sheep barn. The first items on the auction block were the chain saw sculptures. Dave Stevens obtained an eagle for $150, Mark Enge a bear for $140, Dave Lee a Squirrel for $85, Jean Janisch a pelican for $85, Barry Froiland a cowboy for $190, Amy Olson a Viking for $50, and Jean Janisch a king for $60. The money received for the sculptures goes to the county fair board.

Grand champion, reserve champion and blue ribbon animals in the 4-H competition were eligible for the livestock auction. One percent of the market value and 10 percent of the difference between the market value and sale price is donated to the 4-H program. The rest of the money goes to the 4-H students who raised the animals.

On The Open Road

Visitor to share stories of riding, living on the road

■ Wind in his hair, time on his hands, and his best friend in the side-car

by Jeff Achen,
Reporter

On an average day he'll drive about 200 miles, creeping along on his Russian-made Ural motorbike at around 45 miles per hour. He takes his time, stops to talk with strangers, and makes the journal entries that may someday constitute his very own book.

His name is John Segalla and his companion, an intimidating, yet docile bull mastiff, is Ruckus. They began their cross continent road trip from their home in Weymouth, Massachusetts in May and intend to travel for the next two years. Segalla had given up his business as a wood recycler to travel and write, or as he likes to think of it, take time out to gather more experiences.

"My business was my life," Segalla said. "I gave it up to do what I love, riding my bike and writing. People thought I was insane, but I think if you follow your heart, no matter what, it's gonna be OK."

Segalla's plans for the trip originally included sending articles or columns to magazines. He wrote every single motorcycle magazine in hopes that they might be interesting in receiving submissions or even sponsoring him. He didn't even get one response, but that didn't slow him down. He decided to take it as a sign that he needed to go and do it for himself. Looking back, Segalla said it's a good thing he didn't receive an endorsement.

"If it would have worked out or I had gone out with stickers all over my bike I'd have looked like a clown act," Segalla said. "People don't want to open up to you and talk when they feel like you want something from them or you're trying to sell something."

Now, instead of writing to be published, Segalla fills notebook after notebook with journal entries, often recording his feelings and thoughts, as diligently as he pencils down the details of his experiences. He said he writes about eight to 10 pages per day and sends his notebooks home when they've been filled to the brim. He someday hopes to write a book of short stories about the people he's met and the places he's gone.

Segalla financed his adventure by selling many of his things and saving up money. For the most part he keeps his expenses down by pitching his tent near a roadside stop. He said he doesn't spend much since he makes his own repairs and doesn't pay for a place to stay. Although he's seen some interesting sights, Segalla said that it has been the people that have been the highlight of his trip.

He corresponds with the people he's met, some as far away as Australia. He's also been invited to stay for a time at their homes where he usually offers to work as thanks for their hospitality. Once, Segalla worked in a graveyard for three days in order to repay his host.

Federal Consumer Protection has confirmed the accuracy of the fuel saving described in this advertisement.

Device May Increase Gas Mileage by 22%

BOSTON - National Fuelsaver Corp. of Boston has developed a low cost automotive accessory called the Platinum Gas Saver which is guaranteed to increase gas mileage by 22% while meeting all emission standards.

With a simple connection to a vacuum line, the Gas Saver adds microscopic quantities of platinum to the air-fuel mixture entering the engine.

Platinum has the unique ability to make non-burning fuel burn. With platinum in the flame zone, you increase the percentage of fuel burning in the engine from 68% of each gallon to 90% of each gallon, a 22% increase.

Since unburnt fuel leaving an engine is pollution, this 22% of each gallon would normally burn when it reaches the platinum of the catalytic converter.

Unfortunately, the converter's platinum burns this fuel in the tailpipe, where the heat and energy produced from burning this fuel cannot be harnessed to drive your vehicle.

But when the Gas Saver adds platinum to the air-fuel mixture, 22% more of each gallon burns inside the engine so that 22% fewer gallons are required to drive the same distance.

After studying this process for five years, the government concluded: "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the Gas Saver than the 22% claimed by the developer."

In addition to this government study, the Gas Saver has received patents for cleaning out carbon and raising octane, making premium fuel unnecessary for most vehicles.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented: "Almost a half million Gas Savers have been sold. To our surprise, as many people buy the Gas Saver because it extends engine life (by cleaning out the abrasive carbon deposits) as buy it to increase gas mileage or to raise octane."

Wolves program presented at Rydell Refuge July 29th

Not many animals have inspired as much awe, curiosity, and controversy as the wolf. These mammals were once listed on the endangered species list, and are now still classified as threatened. Minnesota's wolf population, though once very low, has increased much over the last few years. To find out more about these amazing creatures, and what the present and future holds for them, come out to Rydell Refuge at two o'clock p.m. on Sunday, July 29th for a program by longtime wolf enthusiast Jerry Wenzel.

The program will include a slide show and lots of great information. Jerry Wenzel, who is a Life Science teacher at Central Middle School in East Grand Forks, has been relaying his vast info on wolves for the past 26 years. The program promises to be both educational and entertaining. Come out and listen, learn, and enjoy!

This program is free and open to the public, and juice and cookies will be on hand after the program. The Rydell National Wildlife Refuge Visitor's center is open Thursday through Sunday from 12:00 to 8:00 p.m.

The Refuge's 8 1/2 miles of accessible trails provide great opportunity for wildlife viewing, photography, or just a leisurely walk or bike ride. Gardening Magic

Master Gardeners host tour of area yards and gardens

With the busy fair week over and temperatures settling down to a comfortable level, Saturday, July 28, offers a unique opportunity to visit several local gardens and the plantings at Oakland Park Nursing Home.

Pennington County Master Gardeners will host its third annual tour Saturday, helping people become familiar with gardening, discover new ideas, view a variety of plants and simply enjoy the handiwork of fellow gardeners.

The tour is self-guided, affording participants the privilege of going in any order they wish, spending as much time as they desire at each site. Homeowners and Master Gardener volunteers will be at each site to answer questions.

The $5 per person fee can be paid at any of the sites where a map directing participants to other sites will be provided. Proceeds from the event will go to the Pennington County Master Gardeners helping it cover costs incurred at the Pennington County Fair and garden tour, maintain flower beds in the city and host a spring gardening workshop in February.

Tour destinations will include the gardens of Ed and Etta Mooney, the Grisantis, Dave and Diane Peterson, Phyllis Gaven, Dennis and Betty Kezar and Oakland Park Nursing Home.

Ed and Etta Mooney
905 Oakmont Drive

When the Mooneys built their home in 1998, they cleared woods and installed a perennial garden. Recently, they have raised another bed. The Mooneys enjoy a variety of color, texture and size in their plants and take those things into consideration when making selections. Ed and Etta have recently planted two apple trees and a Mancana ash.

To reach the Mooney residence, turn left off Highway 32 onto Oakland Park Road (just after the Dairy Queen). A sign along the road will indicate a turn onto Oakmont Drive.

The Grisantis
611 Main Avenue North

A white picket fence adds charm to this quaint setting which includes a variety of annuals and perennials with an English country garden flavor.

The Grisanti home is located three blocks north of the intersection of Highways 59 and 32.

Dave and Diane Peterson
Rural Thief River Falls

The Peterson's backyard includes a collection of trails which wind through the woods to three connecting duck ponds. One of the trails overlooks the river and leads visitors past several perennial beds to a gazebo the couple built. Tour participants will also discover a number of birdhouses constructed specifically for bluebirds, tree swallows, wood ducks, robins and flickers. A variety of native trees have also been planted on the property, and the rocks that line the driveway were collected on the North Shore.

To get to the Peterson residence, take Highway 59 South to Soneberg Drive (just past Our Saviour's Lutheran Church) and go east for one mile.

Phyllis Gaven
St. Hilaire

Smaller theme gardens work together to form the one large garden that encompasses Phyllis's entire yard!

The smaller theme gardens feature hostas, astilbe, cacti, sun perennials and a rock garden.

Going south on Hwy. 32, turn left just after the old St. Hilaire elementary school and travel one block east.

Dennis and Betty Kezar
Rural Thief River Falls

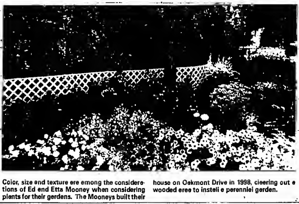
Betty Kezar's long-time gardening hobby is evident in the two large perennial beds found at the farmstead. Butterflies love her bee balm and echinacea, and visitors will also enjoy a hosta bed and a variety of annuals in pots.

To get to the Kezar farm, go south on Highway 32 South to the bypass and turn right where signs will offer direction.

Oakland Park Nursing Home
Thief River Falls

In the spring of 2000, local Master Gardeners planned, planted and provided plants for a large bed of perennials at the entrance of the nursing home. With something new always coming into bloom, the bed provides color and interest from spring until fall. This spring a brick border was added, and adjacent to this an oval walking path and two smaller beds were designed and constructed by Josh Anderson as part of his Eagle Scout project.

To reach Oakland Park Nursing Home, follow Oakland Park Road until it curves to the left. From there, signs will direct tour participants.



Color, size and texture are among the considerations of Ed and Etta Mooney when considering plants for their gardens. The Mooneys built their house on Oakmont Drive in 1998, clearing out a wooded area to install a perennial garden.

The two large established beds at the farmstead of Betty and Dennis Kezar feature a variety of perennial plants and flowers and represent Betty's longtime love for gardening. The Kezar property also features a hosta bed and a variety of potted annuals.

Hot, dry weather boosts danger of grass, forest fires throughout much of Minnesota

The hot, dry weather in much of Minnesota since late June has increased the danger of grass and forest fires. The risk is greatest in northeastern Minnesota, says climatologist Mark Seeley of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"As of July 12, the fire danger rating was high to very high in all or parts of St. Louis, Cook, Lake, Itasca, Koochiching, Carlton and Pine counties," says Seeley.

Fire danger levels depend on both weather and landscape factors, Seeley points out. These include the dead dry fuel load (brush, grass, duff or trees), continuity or breaks in the vegetation, rainfall deficits, temperature, wind and humidity level.

Along with some rather sultry days, Minnesota has recently recorded some very windy days with extremely low humidity of less than 30 percent, says Seeley. The National Weather Service issues daily fire weather forecasts that address critical fire danger factors.

Over a thousand fires have been reported in Minnesota so far this year, and over 45,000 nationally, says Seeley. Some of the drought-stricken states such as Florida, South Carolina and North Carolina have reported over 3,000 fires so far this year. Nationally, an average of 1.2 million acres of woodland burn each year. While lightning strikes cause many wild fires, over four out of five are caused by people.

Many websites provide fire and weather information. Two of these are www.nifc.gov/ (National Interagency Fire Center) and www.dnr.state.mn.us/current_conditions/ (DNR current conditions).

Program debuts young director in final production

When the summer season finale for the Thief River Falls Community Arts Council opens August 7, it will be the last event of a highly successful series of summer productions for the community theater group.

However, "While You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" may end the season for the Arts Council, it will be a beginning for a young director making her debut through a mentoring program which was initiated this year.

Yvonne Asp, an English major and theater student at the University of Minnesota, will direct the show under the guidance of veteran actor/director Jane Anderson. The duo has been working together since April to cast and coordinate the production which will open for a four-day run on August 8 at the fine arts theater at Northland Community and Technical College.

Asp says she jumped at the opportunity when contacted by the arts council last spring. "It was toward the end of the semester, and I was getting ready for finals, trying to decide whether or not to stay in the Twin Cities for the summer when the call came," Asp said. "I was absolutely thrilled, but there were some problems with my schedule. I had already committed to a theater course in London over part of June, and because of classes, I couldn't make the date the arts council had set for tryouts."

Yvonne says it wasn't hard to establish a working relationship. "I agreed to trust Jane with the casting, and she agreed to trust me with the production schedule," she said. "We met over Easter to go through some of the specifics, and we were off to a great start!"

While it may be Asp's directing debut, she has a veteran cast to work with. Ralph Cox, who played the Tin Man in the 2000 production of The Wizard of Oz, will star as the sweet albeit socially inept Charlie Brown with Jan Peterson as Peppermint Patty, Shari Knutson as Lucy, Dave Swanson as Snoopy, Cody Knutson as Schroeder and Dane Frolland as Charlie's sensitive friend Linus. Barb Geer is the orchestra and choral director, and technical work will be provided by Philip Hoks and Karen Jensen.

Asp notes that it has already been a great summer for the Arts Council. "'Annie' sold out three performances. 'Clowns' was wonderful, and 'Social Security' was very, very good," she said. "This is a group who works so hard to give opportunities to young actors and others interested in theater and also promises quality productions for its audiences. It's fun to work with them."

Asp invites everyone to come out for this final production and notes, "You'll see what good team work can accomplish."

"You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" is funded through a grant from the Northwest Regional Development Commission. The show, which opens Wedesday, August 8, will continue through Saturday, August 11. Tickets are available at Kezar Music.

The Lincoln High School band marched proudly down the street looking sharp in their uniforms.—But, I'll bet those things were hot!

"A Century of Beautiful Perks" was the theme of the Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department float. The float took home the "Best Non-Commercial Unit" award.

Pennington County's 180th Anniversary parade started out patriotically with law enforcement vehicles, the National Anthem, and of course, flag bearers small and large.

PARENTING TIPS

Little Helpers

Motivating children to work around the house offers many rewards. According to the book 401 Ways To Get Your Kids To Work At Home by B. R. McCullough and S. W. Monson it adds greatly to their self-esteem and sense of belonging. They gain skills necessary for adult life, establish patterns of success that foster independence and self-reliance, and learn to work quickly and efficiently. Now that we are all convinced that this is a good idea, the only questions that remain are "What and how much are realistic to expect and at what age?"

•Make age-appropriate job assignments: Don't expect a two-year-old to run a vacuum. But do expect that he/she can put away pajamas, pick up toys and undress. Your young child will need reminders. Just because he/she did his/her "chores" one day doesn't mean that he/she will remember to do them every day.

•Provide incentives: Jobs always go better for the young child when they have help. Also say to your child, "As soon as we finish we will . . ."

•Break the job down into small parts: Your young child may not be able to complete a big task but if you break it down they can be successful. Remember your young child does have limited abilities as well as a short attention span.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk with your child as you "work" together. Describe what you are doing and possibly why (at your child's level of understanding). Remember to listen as well as talk.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

Last week I drove from Bellevue, Wash. to Butte, Mont., Both of the cities lie on I-90, and both start with B, but that's where the similarities end.

Bellevue, across Lake Washington from Seattle, is home to the headquarters of Microsoft. It is a sparkling, spotless, almost antiseptic city, filled with Jaguars, Porches and the harried millionaires who drive them.

In Bellevue, a building over 10 years old is ripe to be torn down. Fresh looking buildings fall to the wrecking ball to make way for new glass towers twice as tall.

Across the lake in Seattle lies a sparkling new $570 million ballpark, Safeco Field. Safeco is the name of the Bellevue-based insurance company which paid $40 million for the naming rights to the stadium.

I toured the ballpark. The kid in me was thrilled to walk around the field, sit in the dugout, snoop around the clubhouse, visit the press box and jump up against the fence to see if I was tall enough to pull back a home run.

But the ballpark is more about money than baseball. For $40,000 per year, you can have a season ticket behind home plate. After that, everything is free! Free parking, free gourmet food, free drinks, free scorecards even. And servants at your elbow. Wow.

Each of the 20 sinks in the clubhouse where the millionaire ballplayers shave is equipped with a dozen brands of shaving cream, and a dozen types of razors, laid out neatly in rows. As if those guys can't afford to bring their own razors!

Now, on to Butte, Mont. Butte is a mining town, but the mines have closed. The mountains surrounding the city are terraced, clay colored and scarred from mining. Pure ugliness. The boom is long over, and Butte has gone bust.

The downtown features block after block of charming turn-of-the century brick buildings, all in various stages of decay. The woodwork is [illegible] and rotting. The paint is peeled. Porches sag. The sidewalks are cracked.

Poverty runs rampant in Butte. The water tastes bad, and is filled with toxins. Cancer rates are high. The people look exhausted. Two drunks panhandled me outside the dingy Perkins. The only thriving business in town is the sparkling new Wal-Mart superstore.

But you know, I felt at home in Butte. I met a couple of friendly locals, and they were fighters, scrapping to make a living, happy in a grim way, defiantly proud of their city, hoping somebody with money and vision comes along who sees potential in all of the old buildings in town and spruces the place up.

The $570 million that went for a ballpark could sure do wonders for poor Butte! Bellevue has the money, but Butte has history, character, grit and charm.

It occurs to me: Aren't the main streets of our little hometowns in northern Minnesota lined with charming, but empty old buildings? Perhaps it is no wonder I felt at home in Butte.

Loving Memory of Jim Suronen
Passed away July 24, 2000

Dear Jim,
In tears we saw you sinking, we watched you fade away, you suffered much in silence, you fought so hard to stay.
You faced your task with courage, your spirit did not bend, but still you kept on fighting, until the very end.
God saw you getting tired, when a cure was not to be, so he put his arms around you and whispered, "Come with Me."
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you did not go alone, for part of us went with you, the day God called you home.
We love you and will see you soon...

NATURE NOTES

A Tale of Three Rivers

Over the past couple weeks I have taken the opportunity to continue exploring rivers in the Red River Basin, visiting two new river reaches and an old favorite close to home. In an effort to provide information to all about outdoor opportunities in the Red River Basin the following account will provide a glimpse of wildlife and landscapes seen that may be of interest to a broad audience plus some logistical details that may not be of great interest to those wishing to explore on their own.

With that preamble, let us proceed. The first new reach was on the historic "Riviere Aux Roseaux," so named by Pierre de La Verendrye's crew who are believed to be the first white men to see the Roseau River. The French name "Roseau" is translated from the Ojibwe, "Gashahaggunushkoka-wiskbi," meaning rush river because of the growth of rushes in the water. The section of the Roseau River that we paddled from Roseau to the Minn. Hwy. 310 crossing about eight miles downstream was not through beds of reeds, but rather a nice wooded deciduous corridor with clusters of conifers in some locations and a heavy fern understory often present.

As we preceeded downstream mallards took wing from the river channel while wood duck chicks scurried near the shore as their mother feigned injury in her attempt to attract our attention away from her brood. A black-billed magpie put up a raucous din as we passed below its nesting territory. Overall a pleasant paddle down this stretch of the Roseau, though we did manage to raise cheers from the local lads playing at the small dam in Roseau as our canoe bounced over a three-foot-plus drop that we had been told might be barely noticeable with the high river levels at the time. It was quite noticeable, as we kept our balance slipping over the rocks to calmer waters below.

Trip facts: Put in at Roseau City Park boat ramp on southeast edge of Roseau. Take out at Minn. Hwy. 310 bridge crossing north of Roseau. Approx. 5.5 road miles and 8 river miles between these points. Approx. time on river: 2.5 hours. During low water, portage around dam just north of Minn. Hwy. 11 bridge crossing in Roseau. No tree snags or other channel barriers. Option of putting in or taking out at Roseau Co. Rd. 28 bridge crossing for shorter trip.

The second explored river reach that was new to me was on the Red Lake River between High Landing and the Smiley Bridge crossing on Pennington County 7. The wildlife highlight was four mature bald eagles taking wing at various spots along the way. Several areas had mature, thick riparian tree cover along the banks, providing a sense of undisturbed wilderness. The river channel was 40-60 feet wide, so no obstructions were present also no rocks or boulders, a peaceful float or paddle. The section above the Kratka bridge had been "snagged"–overhanging trees cut to prevent possible blockage during spring runoff. Although there were beautiful areas in this section, I must admit the tree stubs were not very aesthetically pleasing, as compared to the elegant willows providing shade and habitat along the lower sections of this reach which had not been snagged. A spotted fawn stood frozen along the bank, framed by one of these flowing willows staring at us as we quietly drifted by.

Trip facts: Put in at High Landing at bridge crossing on Pennington Co. Rd. 24. Take out at Smiley bridge crossing on Pennington Co. Rd. 7. Approx. 12.5 road miles and 22 river miles between these points. Approx. time on river: 5.25 hours. No channel barriers. Option of putting in or taking out at Kratka Bridge on Pennington Co. Rd. 22.

The final river reach visited was on the Sand Hill River putting in at the Bear Park flood control structure 2 miles east and 1.5 miles south of Rindal and taking out at the Polk Co. 10 bridge crossing just north of Rindal–approximately 3.5 road miles and 4 river miles. There was a flow, but it was low and slow. Generally well defined, the channel did "disappear" in a few areas as grasses, cattails, yellow pond lilies and other aquatic vegetation thrived. Pushing off of vegetation rather than water was often the method of movement–slow going but an interesting ecosystem.

Wildlife highlights included a single otter seen early on and later, a family of three otters popping up to check us out and quickly slip away. Several families of Canada geese, numbering over 40 all told swam and scattered ahead of us towards the end of the route. Excellent water clarity allowed easy viewing of hundreds upon hundreds of small fish darting among the vegetation. A very pleasant excursion, though it may become difficult to get through if water levels continue to decline.

Three rivers, three different types of habitat and experiences. These same sections of rivers provide different "looks" at different times of year, as water levels and flows as well as vegetative cover and color among other conditions change throughout the year. Up stream and downstream sections of these rivers also offer vastly different conditions–all adding up to a wealth of rivers to explore throughout the year and years. Bon Voyage!

...A Memo From A Hospital

Thanks to Cynthia and Sharon for this. Don't even start speculating, because they don't live around here. Any similarity to the names of employees at your local hospital is entirely coincidental.

From: Administration
RE: Hospital Costs

In an effort to reduce costs this year, the following are effective immediately. Please share this information with your patients and physicians as soon as possible.

1. Food service will be discontinued. Patients wishing to eat will want to get their families to bring them a brown bag meal, or you may make your own arrangements with Subway, Dominoes, etc. Coin-operated telephones will be available in the patient rooms for this purpose.

2. Our telephone operators have all been let go, so if you are walking through the lobby and hear the telephone ring, please answer it.

3. We have found it necessary to make substantial reductions in our transport team so we ask the cooperation of all patients. One transporter will take at least six patients in wheelchairs at a time to Radiology, Physical Therapy and other services. Please form a "train" by holding tightly to the handles of the wheelchair in front of you.

4. Our Emergency Room is really busy from 3 to 11 p.m., so, if you can, please ask patients to have their accidents and heart attacks in the mornings or early afternoons. That would really be helpful and will help to reduce their wait.

5. To expedite surgery cases, all morning admits and outpatient surgery patients are asked to report to the hospital three hours prior to surgery. Go to Central Sterile and pick up a clean instrument tray surgery pack and proceed to the Surgery Holding area. To help us reduce drug costs, please take several aspirin prior to arriving at the hospital for surgery.

6. Patients anticipating the need for a bedpan can check one out in the gift shop. They will be available in a wide variety of colors and styles to meet the aesthetic and physical requirements of our patients. A deposit will be required but is fully refundable if bedpans are returned clean.

7. To reduce patients' lengths of stay, nurses will have a choice of using in-line skates or skateboards. To expedite response to patient's needs, nurse call systems will be modified and will be wired to a collar worn by nurses. The collars will deliver a mild shock when a button is pushed by the patient.

8. Taking a cue from the airlines, Respiratory Therapists will be replaced by oxygen masks which will, should the need arise, automatically drop from the ceiling over patient beds. If this occurs, please place the mask over your nose and mouth and breathe normally.

9. The hospital got a deal on surplus white waiters' jackets and these will be issued to all physicians. Doctors, we apologize in advance because the jackets already had a first name embroidered on the pocket. We will work with you to find a name that you can live with. If you also are on the staff of the University Hospital, we hope this won't be a problem. We recognize that in academic settings, "length of coat status" is very important.

10. All first time moms are asked to volunteer to help out on the Pediatrics floor. Not only will this reduce hospital costs, but also it will give you a much-needed experience and a dose of reality after ogling over your own precious sleeping bundle of joy.

11. Housekeeping and Physical Therapy are being combined. Mops will be issued to those patients who are ambulatory, thus providing range-of-motion exercises as well as a clean environment. Family members and friends of patients and ambulatory patients may also sign up to clean public areas to receive special discounts on final bills. Time cards will be provided.

...to be continued next week

Program wraps up third year at White Earth Reservation

The White Earth Reservation Science and Math Summer Program, an innovative program which encourages interest in science and math among American Indian youth, will wrap up its third successful year with a feast and awards program celebration on Thursday, July 26, at noon at the White Earth Rediscovery Center.

The program began with a request from White Earth Reservation tribal leaders who asked the University of Minnesota for help in improving the academic performance in math and science of American Indian youth of the reservation. Data from the White Earth Reservation Scholarship program indicated that only 7 out of 235 higher education students from the reservation had chosen a career in math, science or engineering. Ojibwe elders were concerned about the defeatist attitudes of many young residents, the high drop-out rate among American Indian high school students on the reservation and the erosion of connections to their traditions.

During the summer of 1999 University of Minnesota faculty and graduate students first collaborated with teachers, American Indian natural resources professionals at the White Earth Biology Department and Land Office and tribal leaders to develop the program which has continued in 2000 and 2001.

A complete list of partners includes White Earth Reservation Elders and Tribal Council staff, White Earth Tribal and Community College, Circle of Life School, Rural Minnesota Concentrated Employment Program, Inc., University of Minnesota Crookston, University of Minnesota College of Natural Resources and University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Collaboratively, the group has developed and offered a six-week educational program focusing on enhancing math and science achievement for American Indian youth in grades 8-12. Each year, numerous individuals from each of the collaborative partners have contributed to the program, offering hands-on learning experiences, field trips and appropriate discussions about cultural and historic subjects which focus on the natural resources of the reservation and surrounding areas. The forests, waters, wildlife and soils of the reservation serve as the teaching laboratory as students explore their environment and learn about the role of math and science in their everyday lives.

A key aspect of the program is the involvement of American Indian elders as part of the team of teachers. As they participate in the classes, the elders provide students with culture, traditions and beliefs related to soils, water, forests, food and wildlife on the reservation.

Over 70 percent of participating students have completed the program, and almost half have returned in subsequent years. Test scores have improved by 1.2 grade levels in math and .2 grade level in science from 1999 to 2000.

Deb Zak, District Extension director for northwest Minnesota based on the UMC campus, has been involved with the program since its onset and traveled to Washington, D.C. in early June to accept the 2001 United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Honor Award on behalf of the program. USDA cited the program "for brightening the future of American Indian youth by teaching math and science skills while nurturing environmental and cultural appreciation."

Brian Holtan recovering from accident injuries

Brian Holtan of Thief River Falls is listed in fair condition at St. Mary's Medical Center in Duluth following a car accident Sunday, July 8, at the intersection of Itasca County Road 57 and Highway 7 in Itasca County. Three men may have earned state life saving awards for their heroic efforts to save Holtan from the fiery accident.

According to Itasca County Sheriff Pat Mcdure and comments prepared by Marty Dehen for John Bluntach of Coleraine and Itasca County Commissioner Mark Mandich, Bluntach and Mandich were relaxing at a campsite near the intersection of County Road 57 and Highway 7 when at about 1:15 a.m. on July 8 they heard the sound of a crash.

Bluntach and Mandich ran to the accident scene to see if they could help. Jesse Clausiau and others were already on the scene and attempting to pull Holtan from the now burning wreck, but Holtan's broken legs were pinned under the dash. The doors were locked and buckled in from the impact, and the fire was threatening Holtan's life.

Mandich smashed out the back door window with his elbow and found the door still unmoveable. Mandich and Bluntach then peeled down the door frame and bent it out of the way. With the fire growing, the men knew it was now or never. Mandich found the strength to break the seat loose and Bluntach reached around Holtan to pull him free.

Holtan is a large man and it took Mandich, Bluntach and Clausiau to pull Holtan, who, was in severe pain, out of the vehicle. They then laid him on the ground a short distance from the wreck. Fearful that the gas tank might explode, Bluntach laid between Holtan and the burning car.

"Had anyone other than John and Mark attempted to rescue Holtan, the result may have been tragic," said Dehen, who is a friend and a fellow Post 476 American Legion member.

Holtan is currently being treated at St. Mary's Medical Center. Reports say he soon may be transferred closer to his home and family in Thief River Falls.

Brian Holtan recovering from accident injuries

Brian Holtan of Thief River Falls is listed in fair condition at St. Mary's Medical Center in Duluth following a car accident Sunday, July 8, at the intersection of Itasca County Road 57 and Highway 7 in Itasca County. Three men may have earned state life saving awards for their heroic efforts to save Holtan from the fiery accident.

According to Itasca County Sheriff Pat Medure and comments prepared by Marty Dehen for John Blumach of Coleraine and Itasca County Commissioner Mark Mandich, Blumach and Mandich were relaxing at a campsite near the intersection of County Road 57 and Highway 7 when at about 1:15 a.m. on July 8 they heard the sound of a crash.

Blumach and Mandich ran to the accident scene to see if they could help. Jesse Clausian and others were already on the scene and attempting to pull Holtan from the now burning wreck, but Holtan's broken legs were pinned under the dash. The doors were locked and buckled in from the impact and the fire was threatening Holtan's life.

Mandich smashed out the back door window with his elbow and found the door still immoveable. Mandich and Blumach then peeled down the door frame and bent it out of the way. With the fire growing, the men knew it was now or never. Mandich found the strength to break the seat loose and Blumach reached around Holtan to pull him free.

Holtan is a large man and it took Mandich, Blumach and Clausian to pull Holtan, who was in severe pain, out of the vehicle. They then laid him on the ground a short distance from the wreck. Fearful that the gas tank might explode, Blumach laid between Holtan and the burning car.

"Had anyone other than John and Mark attempted to rescue Holtan, the result may have been tragic," said Dehen, who is a friend and a fellow Post 476 American Legion member.

Holtan is currently being treated at St. Mary's Medical Center. Reports say he soon may be transferred closer to his home and family in Thief River Falls.

Paula Adamson and Greg Delly, members of a band from Redeemer Lutheran Church, were among the individuals and groups who performed in the bandshell at the Pennington County fairgrounds on Tuesday, July 17.

Visitor to share stories of riding living on road

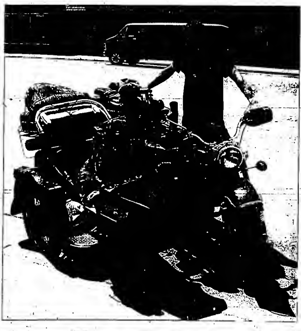
The many opportunities to meet and interact with strangers have given Segalla the time most people only long for to simply talk with someone new and listen to their story. The open road and lack of obligations have also given him time to read and reflect on life. One writer Segalla admires is Jon Krakauer, author of "Into the Wild," a haunting, true-life account of the life of a young traveler who made an impression on the people he met on his journeys before dying alone in the Alaskan wilderness. Segalla said that the book has inspired in him a sense of adventure and a desire to live life to it's fullest.

Another book Segalla carries with him is the Bible. He said he likes to read through it and think about its message. He is particularly drawn to the accounts of the apostles and how they went out into the world with an "unpopular" message. He likes the idea of being good to strangers and has adopted the sentiment, although he has described his sense of faith as more spiritual than religious.

"I once heard someone say that religion was for people who don't want to go to hell and spirituality was for people who have already been there," Segalla said.

He said he's been through a lot of rough spots in his life and it's more of a sense of spirituality that guides him. For Segalla, that particular kind of faith has been the driving force behind his adventures. He said that following his dream has taught him many valuable lessons.

"It's not about havin' balls," Segalla said. "It's about havin' faith. I'm grateful everyday for the smallest things. It's been a tremendous transformation."



John Sagalla and Ruckus stopped through Thief River Falls during their two-year adventure across the continent. They stop through many towns like Thief River Falls, visiting the towns' citizens and taking in the diversity of the surroundings. "Every town has its own flavor," Sagalla said.

Area teachers participate in lignite class

Four area teachers participated in a seminar in Bismarck, N.D., June 13-15, that was sponsored by the Lignite Energy Council and the American Coal Foundation. In all, over 110 teachers learned about lignite production and use, energy economies and the environment at the seminar entitled "Lignite - Our Regional Resource: Energy, Economies and Environment."

"The amount of manpower and machines used at the plants and mines is amazing," said Eric Mickelson, a Goodridge School teacher. The three other teachers participating in the seminar were Barbara Sorenson of J.A. Hughes School in Red Lake Falls, Sandy Bertilrud of Hughes Elementary school in Red Lake Falls, and Angel Mickelson of Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig school in Cass Lake. Each of the teachers was sponsored by Minnkota Power Cooperative of Grand Forks.

Seminar activities included classroom presentations on lignite production and use, energy economics and the environment, and a session where teachers learned how to integrate lignite education materials into the classroom. Teachers also toured the Center Mine, Milton R. Young Station and Great Plains Synfuels Plant.

Barbara Soranaon, a teacher at J.A. Hughes School in Red Lake Falls, Sandy Bartilrud, a teacher at Hughes Elementary School in Red Lake Falls, Angal Mickalson, a teacher at Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig School in Cass Lake, and Eric Mickalaon, a teacher at Goodridge School, participated in a tour of the Center Mine near Center, N.D., while at a seminar entitled "Lignite - Our Regional Resource: Energy, Economics and Environment."

Unemployment in Minnesota falls in June

Minnesota Department of Economic Security Commissioner Earl Wilson announced recently that Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for June was 3.5 percent. The June rate was down by four-tenths percent from May but up slightly from last year.

Nonfarm employment increased by a seasonally adjusted one-tenth percent in June, the same monthly growth rate as last month — an addition of 3,500 jobs. All sectors except mining, manufacturing, and retail trade added jobs. Construction rebounded from May's downturn, gaining 2,900 jobs for the month.

The state's unadjusted unemployment rate was 3.9 percent in June, up by two-tenths percent from a year ago.

"Minnesota has recovered well from past slowdowns," said Governor Jesse Ventura. "In the face of the current national economic uncertainty, the state's unemployment rate remains low, and we are still adding jobs."

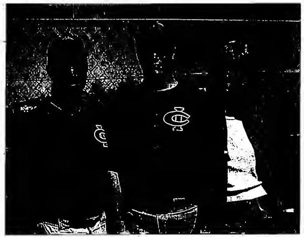
The TIMES



Visiting Irv Wilson Field in Thief River Falls for Sunday and Monday baseball games were Rocky, Darrin and Becky Wilson of Cambridge. It was a specially-arranged trip that allowed Rocky to coach, Darrin to play, and Becky to watch games at the fairgrounds diamond named in honor of Rocky's father and Darrin's grandfather, Irv. The Cambridge-Isanti Mickey Mantle 15-16-year-olds played the Stephen-Argyle Legion 17-18-year-olds Sunday and the Thief River Falls VFW 16-year-olds Monday. Rocky, an assistant on the Cambridge-Isanti staff, is a former Thief River Falls Legion head coach.

Irv Wilson Field has special visitors

Cambridge-Isanti Mickey Mantle 15-16-year-olds baseball team made a special trip north for Sunday-Monday games that allowed Darrin Wilson to play for the first time on Irv Wilson Field – a diamond named in memory of his grandfather; a ball park with a long history but an uncertain future.

Darrin's dad and Irv Wilson's son, Rocky, is an assistant coach for the Cambridge-Isanti squad that played a Sunday doubleheader against the Stephen-Argyle Legion 17-18-year-olds and a Monday twinbill vs. the Thief River Falls VFW 16-year-olds. Rocky coached the Thief River Falls Legion baseball team from 1971 to 1974. His 1973 squad won a sub-district title and reached the Ninth District tournament finals before losing to Breckenridge 2-0.

Located on Pennington County Fairgrounds property, the long-time home of Thief River Falls baseball will be supplanted by new facilities at the Multi-Events Center beginning next spring.

Dedication ceremonies held June 20, 1989 gave the facility a name: Irv Wilson Field in memory of the active sports booster and community leader who died as a result of an automobile accident in 1988.

The field will come down when, and if, the fair board decides the time is right to exercise its authority to take over the property. But until that decision is made, the diamond will remain available to the various baseball programs within the city – high school, Legion, VFW, and Babe Ruth.

TRFAHA salutes achievements

■ Justin Klinkhammer, Dewey Worker recognized

Stick Salutes, designed by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association to recognize special achievements, were presented in June to Justin Klinkhammer and Dewey Worker.

Klinkhammer, along with Thief River Falls teammates Aaron Bendickson and Tyler Bettin, were among 240 players statewide given the opportunity to be part of the 2001 Select-15 hockey program.

From that group, 102 were invited to participate in the Select 15 Summer Festival in St. Cloud. Klinkhammer and Bendickson were on the list, although a broken collarbone kept Bendickson from playing.

Klinkhammer also advanced to the next level by being named one of 20 players to represent Minnesota at the National Select 15 tournament in St. Cloud Aug. 3-9.

It it believed to be the first time a TRFAHA player has been selected to participate at the Select national level.

In conjunction with his selection to the national event, Klinkhammer was invited to attend the Dave Peterson goalie camp. The camp, sponsored by USA Hockey at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Spring, Colo., is named in honor of the former Minnesota high school coach who went on to coach two Olympic teams.

Second Stick Salute for June went to Dewey Worker, a product of the TRFAHA program and a 2001 Lincoln High School graduate who recently received an appointment to the United States Coast Guard Academy and reported for the start of summer training in June.

Located in New London, Conn., the Coast Guard Academy is one of the most selective college programs in the country, having less than a six percent acceptance rate for its 284 incoming freshmen.

Post 2793 splits final regular season twinbills...

TRF VFW starts District 9 play

A first round match-up against Detroit Lakes Friday at 5 p.m. awaits the Thief River Falls 16-year-olds at the 2001 District 9 VFW baseball tournament in Fergus Falls.

Top-seeded Fergus Falls and second-seeded Moorhead receive first round byes in the six-team, double-elimination event. Detroit Lakes is the No. 3 seed, followed by Perham, East Grand Forks, and Thief River Falls. A seventh district member, Bemidji, was unable to field a line-up for the tournament.

A Thief River Falls win over Detroit Lakes would produce an 11 a.m. Saturday match-up with Moorhead. A first round Thief River Falls loss would result in a 4 p.m. next-day contest against the Perham-East Grand Forks loser.

Play continues through the weekend, and into Monday, if needed.

Friday on the Northland Community and Technical College diamond, Post 2793 split with Bemidji, losing the first game 11-10 before winning the second contest 7-6.

"We definitely had our opportunities to win the first game," said Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "We did a good job at the plate, but defensively we struggled. Against good teams, you can't let that happen."

Thief River Falls had a tough time of it on defense again in the second game against Bemidji, admitted Zutz. "But we came up with some big two-out hits and hung in there," he explained. "Ben (Weigelt) pitched very well, and Josh (Langlie) came in and shut the door in the seventh to give us a chance to score the winning run."

Another split in the regular season finale Monday against Cambridge-Isanti at Irv Wilson Field found Thief River Falls losing a 12-5 Game 1 decision, but bouncing back for a 10-0 Game 2 victory.

"We weren't ready to go in the first game," said Zutz. "We didn't make adjustments against their pitcher. They came out and beat us."

But again, things turned in Thief River Falls' favor in Game 2. "We hit the ball very well," noted Zutz. "We got off our front foot and stayed back and drove the ball. Josh (Langlie), Reid (Sjaaheim) and Dane (Kjono) all pitched well. It's tough for teams when we throw those three lefties out there."

Thief River Falls will take a 13-19 record into post-season play.

"Our record doesn't quite reflect how we have played lately," offered Zutz. "We have had a tough summer, with kids being injured, attending camps and gone on family trips. We are coming around at the right time."

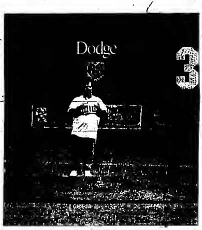
A pick-off throw by Thief River Falls VFW pitcher Ryan Swenson and a swiping tag attempt by first baseman Josh Langlie nearly caught Cambridge-Isanti runner Zeb Anderson leaning the wrong way during the first game of Monday's baseball doubleheader at Irv Wilson Field.



Darryl Tveltbekk of Thief River Falls had the opportunity to pitch at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis when, in his role with the Knights of Columbus state organization, he was called upon to throw out the ceremonial first pitch prior to the Minnesota Twins July 8 game against Cincinnati. It was part of the pregame ceremony for the annual Nun's/Clergy Day at the Dome. After delivering the pitch to T.C. Bear, Tveltbekk posed with the Twins mascot. Tveltbekk said he enjoyed the experience, but admitted being a little nervous when he walked out to the mound in front of the large crowd to make the throw – without the benefit of warm-up time in the bullpen. "I was afraid I would throw the ball over his head," he said. Instead, it was a little low, bouncing in front of the plate, but into the mascot's glove.

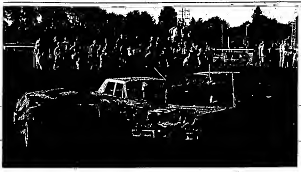
Experts discuss spread of exotic species

Latest methods of controlling Eurasian watermilfoil were among the topics considered at the 41st annual meeting of the Aquatic Plant Management Society July 15-19 in Minneapolis. Members of the society come from many states where they deal with problems caused by Eurasian watermilfoil and a host of other harmful exotic aquatic plants.

While milfoil is the most prominent exotic plant that has infested Minnesota in recent years, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and others are very concerned about a number of other harmful exotics now found in North America.

Species, such as water chestnut, hydrilla and European frog-bit could cause problems in Minnesota lakes and rivers if these plants were to be introduced into the state, according to Chip Welling, DNR Eurasian watermilfoil coordinator.

"It is important to learn about exotic plants that have not yet reached Minnesota," Welling said. "We need to know the best strategies to help us delay or prevent these harmful plants from reaching Minnesota." These strategies were discussed at the meeting.



The Damolition Derby was held on Sunday, July 22, at the 2001 Pennington County Fair in Thief River Falls. Many drivers competed in the event, which attracted a large crowd on Sunday.

Numerous spectators were in attendance at the Damolition Darby at the 2001 Pennington County Fair on Sunday, July 22. The first place winner of the Feature Event was Tim Sergeant of Ade, Minn., pictured here in the front car numbered 48.

Demolition Pickups division was a huge success again this year at the 2001 Pennington County Fair on Sunday, July 22. Top winners of the pickup division were Jerry Nelson, first place; Corey Peterson, second place; and Nathan Riepe, third place.

Minnesota DNR announces 2001 hunting dates

Minnesota's 2001 hunting and trapping seasons were announced recently by Department of Natural Resources Commissioner Allen Garber. "The outlook for Minnesota deer hunters this fall is great, with the second highest number of antlerless permits ever offered," Garber said. "But grouse and pheasant hunters will likely find tougher hunting due to a cool, wet nesting season that hurt chick production and survival."

Deer populations in most areas continue their rapid rebound from the effects of the severe winters of 1995-96 and 1996-97, despite a slightly harsher than average winter last year. "Deer populations have fully recovered; near record numbers of antlerless permits are available throughout much of the state," Garber said.

Garber also noted that, while Minnesota continues to produce strong breeding populations of waterfowl, the potential for significant improvement in fall migrations and hunting success will depend on weather patterns and the longer-term effects of new plans and initiatives to improve fall waterfowl migration habitats and hunting.

Locally breeding giant Canada geese are abundant but did show declines in some areas. However, the migratory geese that travel through western Minnesota from Canada in the fall are not faring as well as their locally breeding cousins. These Eastern Prairie Population Canada geese, which nest near Hudson's Bay and migrate through western Minnesota, have declined somewhat from last year. One encouraging note is that they appear to be having a good production season due to an early spring on their northern Manitoba breeding grounds.

Though relatively restrictive regular goose season rules are likely to continue in important western Minnesota goose hunting areas, Minnesota will be vigorously pursuing a longer season in the Lac qui Parle Zone, Garber said.

Ruffed grouse are now in the decline phase of their approximate 10-year population cycle, so hunters will spend more time walking between flushes. Black bear and wild turkey populations remain at all-time highs. Pheasant populations have likely been hurt by deep winter snows and a cool, wet nesting season, which is hurts nest success and chick survival.

More details about waterfowl and upland game populations will be available in late summer, when summer wildlife production surveys have been completed.

Garber advised Minnesota hunters to be aware of several new laws and regulation changes in effect this fall. They include changes to the trespass law language relating to Conservation Reserve Program and Reinvest in Minnesota program lands; an increase in the bear limit; resumption of moose hunting in northeastern Minnesota; elimination of site-tagging for fisher, marten and otter; and changes in criteria for issuing disability permits to shoot from a motor vehicle.

Waterfowl regulation changes will be announced later this summer.

Trespass Laws

The 2001 Minnesota Legislature clarified that trespass rules apply to most lands enrolled in CRP and the RIM program. By statutory definition, planted native or introduced grassland or hayland, and short-rotation woody crops, are defined as agricultural land for purposes of the outdoor recreation trespass law. This means permission is necessary to enter these lands, whether the lands are posted or not.

As always, the DNR encourages hunters to respect private property and ask first before entering private land.

Deer

Firearms deer season will open Nov. 3, archery deer Sept. 15, and muzzleloader deer Nov. 24. The 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook, including regulations, quotas and special hunt information, will be available at license agents by the second week in August.

Deer hunters seeking to obtain antlerless or special area permits will apply through terminals at Electronic Licensing System agents again this year and are encouraged to apply early.

Application deadline for antlerless and special hunt permits is Sept. 6. Hunters interested in these permits may apply at any of the 1,700 ELS license agents throughout Minnesota, beginning in early August. They may also apply by ELS-Telephone by calling 1-888-MNLicense (1-888-665-4236) and paying a convenience fee of $3.50.

Despite a slightly harsher than average winter in 2000-2001, Minnesota's deer population continues to increase. A total of 284,210 permits will be offered this fall, an increase of 22.3 percent from 2000. This is the second highest number of antlerless permits ever offered, exceeded only by the total of 322,030 available permits in 1992.

Antlerless permits allow hunters the opportunity to harvest a deer of either sex, and they are the main way that DNR wildlife managers control deer numbers throughout the state.

In Zone 1 (northeast), quotas increased from 50,070 in 2000 to 71,850 in 2001 (up 43 percent). Only one permit area in the state, permit area 116 in the Arrowhead Region, remains restricted to bucks-only hunting.

In Zone 2 (a transition band from the northern Twin Cities area to Lake of the Woods), permit numbers increased 27 percent, from 69,100 to 87,975. Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge (permit area 203) will be restricted to a limited number of antlerless permits available only to youth under age 16 during the firearms season. All other hunters in this permit area will be restricted to bucks. Intensive harvest permits (which, combined with regular and management tags, authorize hunters to take up to a total of five deer per year) are available in four permit areas.

In agricultural areas of Minnesota, permit quotas increased slightly overall. There were some small decreases in quotas in parts of south-central and southwestern Minnesota, where deer populations were affected by last winter's deep snow and cold temperatures.

In Zone 3 (southeast), antlerless quotas increased 12 percent, from 33,500 to 37,500. Most permit areas will continue to have intensive harvest permits available in the late 3B (either-sex) season.

Quotas in Zone 4, which includes the extreme western and southwestern parts of the state, increased nearly 9 percent, from 79,775 to 86,885.

Intensive harvest permits will be available in seven permit areas during both the Zone 4A and Zone 4B hunt, primarily in northwestern and west-central Minnesota.

Antlerless permit quotas zones for 2001 include:

- Zone 1 - (2000) 50,070, (2001) 71,850; an increase of 21,780 (43.5 percent).
- Zone 2 - (2000) 69,100, (2001) 87,975; an increase of 18,875 (27.3 percent).
- Zone 3 - (2000) 33,500; (2001) 37,500; an increase of 4,000 (11.9 percent).
- Zone 4A (2000) 48,175; (2001) 52,030; Zone 4B (2000) 31,550; (2001) 34,855, total Zone 4 increase of 7,610 (9.6 percent).

Deer ELS Registration

ELS registration of deer will be pilot tested in several areas of Minnesota this year. For hunters in those areas, it will make little difference in how registration occurs, but the tag will be printed by the ELS terminal and attached with string or wire just like the site tag.

There may also be some changes in actual registration station locations in these areas due to availability of stations with ELS terminals.

Disability Permits

New criteria for qualifying for disability permits to shoot from a stationary motor vehicle took effect on Jan. 1, 2001, when all permits issued before the new effective date have automatically expired under the new law.

Anyone who had a permit before Jan. 1, 2001, must reapply. The new statutory criteria include inability to step from a vehicle without aid of a wheelchair, crutches, braces, or other mechanical support or prosthetic device; or inability to walk any distance because of a permanent lung, heart or other internal disease that requires the person to use supplemental oxygen to assist breathing.

The permanent disability must be verified in writing by a licensed physician or chiropractor. In addition to providing the medical evidence of permanent disability, the applicant must possess a valid disability parking certificate or license plates.

Permit applications and additional information are available through the DNR Information Center or the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Bucks-Only/Youth Only Permits

Bucks-only hunting in effect this fall is limited to Permit Area 116 (in the area of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness).

Permit Area 203 (Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge and Elm Lake and Eckvoll wildlife management areas) will have youth-only antlerless permits; all other hunters, including archers and muzzleloaders, will be limited to bucks-only.

In that area, only resident hunters under the age of 16 who apply for and receive a special youth-only antlerless permit will be allowed to take antlerless deer during the firearms season.

Party hunting is not allowed for youth-only permits; the youth must shoot and tag the antlerless deer.

Management Permits

Deer management permits allow hunters to take a second deer in designated areas. The additional deer must be antlerless. These permits are available for one-half the cost of a regular license.

Archery and muzzleloader hunters should consult the deer hunting regulations available the second week of August for availability of these permits. Firearms hunters should indicate their interest in a management permit, if available, when they submit their antlerless permit application.

Intensive Harvest Permits

Intensive harvest permits allow hunters to take up to a total of five deer (three antlerless deer in addition to one deer each on a regular license and a management permit) in areas with high deer populations. This year, intensive harvest permits will be authorized in much of southern Zone 2 in and near the Twin Cities metropolitan area, most permit areas in Zone 3 in the southeast, several Zone 4 permit areas in the northwest and the Otter Tail County area, and in several special hunts.

Camp Ripley ELS Application

This year, for the first time, archers interested in participating in the Camp Ripley hunt will submit applications through the ELS license agents or ELS-Telephone system by the Aug. 17 deadline. Details on this new procedure will be announced separately.

Other Special Deer Hunts

A total of 33 special hunts are planned for parks and other areas where hunting is not normally allowed except as necessary to manage deer populations.

Application deadline for most firearms, muzzleloader and archery special hunts is Sept. 6. Exceptions are the Camp Ripley archery hunts (applications must be received by Aug. 17), and city of New Ulm archery hunt (applications must be postmarked by Sept. 1).

Bear, Moose, Elk

Details of the bear season were announced previously. The bear season again opens about a week earlier than the traditional Sept. 1 opener – Aug. 22. The season limit has been increased to two bears per hunter. Bear baiting can begin Aug. 10.

Moose season in northeastern Minnesota has been resumed for 2001. Moose numbers in northwestern Minnesota remain low, so the season will remain closed there.

There will be no elk hunt again in 2001 because the small northwestern Minnesota elk population remains within the goal range.

Wild Turkeys

Fall wild turkey hunting information was announced earlier.

Fall seasons are Oct. 17-21 and Oct. 24-28. The deadline for submitting applications through ELS is July 27.

Spring wild turkey hunting application information for the 2002 season will be available in November. The application deadline will be Dec. 7.

Hunting hours for the spring of 2002 will be extended to 5 p.m. Currently, spring wild turkey hunting hours end at noon.

Resident hunters interested in this season will again apply through the ELS system.

Woodcock

Restrictive federal frameworks on the hunting of American woodcock continue in response to a long-term population decline. Minnesota DNR is cooperating with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the University of Minnesota on a multi-state research project to study the effects of hunting on declining woodcock populations.

The three-year study, which will begin this fall, will use radio-tagged birds to investigate woodcock populations in areas that are hunted and not hunted. As part of the study, the recently acquired Four Brooks Wildlife Management Area in Mille Lacs County will be closed to woodcock hunting for three years. This Wildlife Management Area will be open for all other types of hunting, including ruffed grouse hunting.

Woodcock hunters are reminded that they need to be certified for the Harvest Information Program to legally hunt these birds. The woodcock season is Sept. 22 through Nov. 5, with a daily bag limit of three.

Pheasant and Gray Partridge

Pheasant survival and production have likely been hurt by the deep snow that blanketed agricultural areas of Minnesota for much of the winter, and by cool and very wet weather in many areas during the early part of the nesting season. However, more recent warm and dry weather may help renesting success by hens that failed to successfully produce broods earlier.

A better indication of fall pheasant and gray partridge numbers will be available after the DNR assesses production following completion of roadside counts in late August.

Pheasant season will be Oct. 13-Dec. 16.

Gray partridge season will be Sept. 15-Dec. 31.

Ruffed Grouse

Ruffed grouse have entered the downward phase of their roughly 10-year population cycle. Minnesota's ruffed grouse drumming counts declined last spring for the second year in a row.

Statewide, drumming counts were down 40 percent compared with 2000. The northeast, north and central hardwoods regions all showed similar declines of 45 percent, 42 percent and 46 percent respectively. Grouse drumming dropped in the northwest region by just 13 percent, but that region had seen a substantial drop (35 percent) from 1999 to 2000.

The only zone showing no decline was in the southeast, where counts were low but stable.

While drumming counts primarily give an index to breeding populations, the wet and cold late spring, when hen ruffed grouse were on their nests, does not bode well for chick production and survival this summer.

The ruffed grouse's population cycle will likely continue dropping over the next few years.

Despite the decrease, there still should be some excellent grouse hunting in better habitats throughout most of the grouse range this fall, according to Garber. "Even with the decline, Minnesota will continue to have higher ruffed grouse populations than any other state in the country," Garber said.

Ruffed grouse season will be Sept. 15-Dec. 31.

Sharp-Tailed Grouse

After nearly a half decade of slight population increases, sharptail numbers dropped 37 percent range wide. Observers looking for male sharptails dancing on the bird's traditional mating areas, called leks, noted 43 percent fewer in the east-central range and 30 percent fewer in the northwest range.

Late winter conditions likely contributed to the decline in sharptails. Sharp-tailed grouse need open brushland habitats.

In recent years, the DNR has increased prescribed burning and shearing that keeps trees from overtaking the open brushlands that sharp-tailed grouse need to survive. Recent funding increases will allow continuation that accelerated management to continue.

Sharp-tailed grouse season will be Sept. 15-Nov. 30.

Other Small Game

Squirrels and rabbits have benefitted from the lack of severe winters the past few years. Populations of these species should generally be good. Snowshoe hares traditionally exhibit an approximate 10-year population cycle, similar to that of ruffed grouse. Snowshoe hare counts on spring grouse surveys were the highest since 1990, indicating that hares may not yet have reached their cyclic peak.

More information on upland game populations will be available following completion of August counts. Rabbit, hare and squirrel seasons will be Sept. 15-Feb. 28.

Furbearers

There are a few changes for taking furbearers this fall.

Site-tagging for fisher, pine marten and otter has been repealed by the Minnesota Legislature for the next two years, but registration within 48 hours after the close of the season will still be required.

Opening date for fisher, pine marten and bobcat is being standardized to always fall on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, which means that those seasons will open Nov. 24 this year.

Muskrat, mink, beaver and otter seasons open statewide on Oct. 27.

Ducks, Geese

All licensed migratory bird hunters, including waterfowl hunters, are reminded that they must be certified for the Harvest Information Program to legally hunt these birds.

To become certified, anyone intending to hunt migratory birds must identify themselves as migratory bird hunters when they buy a license and have the "HIP Certified" evidence of compliance printed on their electronically issued license.

Early Canada Goose Season

The DNR will again hold an expanded early September Canada goose hunting season this year.

Hunting on or near water will be allowed in the West Goose Zone for the entire early September season. Controlled hunt zones will be open at Talcot Lake and Thief Lake for the early September Canada goose seasons, subject to controlled hunt regulations.

Early Canada goose season will open Sept. 1. The season in the Northwest Zone will close Sept. 15.

The season in the remainder of the state will run approximately three weeks, with the specific closing date announced after the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announces the final proposed late season waterfowl framework dates. Daily bag limit will be five geese per day in most of the state and two geese per day in the southeast and northwest zones.

These seasons are intended to increase the harvest of locally breeding giant Canada geese by timing the harvest before the migrant Eastern Prairie Population geese arrive in the state from Canada.

"We continue to do everything we can within the allowable federal frameworks to manage the population of locally breeding Canada geese and to provide as much hunting opportunity as possible," Garber said.

Ducks

Based on duck population status and duck regulations packages proposed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the duck season this fall should be similar to last year's 60-day, six-duck daily bag limit season.

Tentative opening date will be Sept. 29, but the final date will not be announced until the final late-season framework proposals are announced.

Special youth waterfowl hunting day is planned for Sept. 15. Although the Fish and Wildlife Service now offers states two days for this hunt, Minnesota plans to continue with the one-day hunt. Results of the Minnesota waterfowl hunter survey and comments from public meetings held around the state continue to indicate solid public support for this hunt, but there is a significant level of concern expressed by some waterfowl hunters who believe it is affecting their success in the regular seasons.

General waterfowl season dates and bag limits will not be official until the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announces the federal framework within which states must select their regulations. The framework includes the earliest opening date, bag limits, and the maximum numbers of days allowed for hunting.

Minnesota's breeding duck populations this spring were similar to those of last year. May pond numbers in Minnesota increased almost 50 percent compared with the number recorded during the much dryer conditions last year. Total May duck populations were unchanged.

Mallard breeding population in Minnesota this spring was estimated at approximately 321,000, similar to the 2000 count. Mallards have been above 300,000 since 1992, and remain 55 percent above average since the current waterfowl survey began in 1968.

Blue-winged teal numbers declined 24 percent compared with 2000, and were 39 percent below the long-term average. Blue-winged teal numbers were high in Minnesota in the late 1980s and early 1990s, but have been below average in recent years. Blue-wings do not "home" (return to the same nesting site) as readily as mallards or many other duck species do, and they tend to change breeding sites according to better habitat conditions. Continentally, recent blue-winged teal counts have been at or near record population levels.

Geese

Canada geese are becoming one of the most abundant breeding waterfowl in Minnesota. Current resident Canada goose breeding populations are estimated at approximately 300,000.

Resident goose numbers declined 16 percent compared with 2000, but remain well above long-term averages. This was the first decline in the breeding population since 1992. Most of the decline occurred in southwestern Minnesota, where dryer conditions were present last breeding season. This year's late spring and flooding in some areas will likely reduce production of Canada goose young in some portions of the state.

Because the May waterfowl survey is timed too late to provide the best survey of nesting Canada geese, the DNR began a new helicopter survey of Canada geese this year that should provide for improved monitoring of resident Canada goose populations in the future.

Breeding population surveys for the Eastern Prairie Population Canada geese, which breed in northern Manitoba and migrate through western Minnesota, declined 22 percent from 275,000 last year to 215,000 this year. However, the number of singles and pairs declined only 6 percent. Singles and pairs are a better indicator of Eastern Prairie Population numbers because the geese in larger groups are primarily molt migrants from other areas.

An early spring on the breeding grounds and an early hatch could boost production this year. With good production, a fall flight of birds similar to last year is expected.

General goose opener is expected to be Sept. 29, except in the West-central and Lac qui Parle zones, where the season will likely open at least one week later. A 10-day special December Canada goose season will be open statewide again this year, except in the West-central and Lac qui Parle zones.

Status of North American waterfowl populations will be discussed by the Mississippi Flyway Council, an organization of waterfowl biologists and administrators representing 14 states and three Canadian provinces, at its late-July meeting. This group will develop recommendations on waterfowl hunting regulations to be presented to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in early August in Washington, D.C.

The DNR will make final decisions on Minnesota's regular goose and duck seasons later this summer, after consultation with the Mississippi Flyway Council and in compliance with U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service frameworks.

"We will know more about the status of ducks and geese and predicted fall flights in late July, when more waterfowl population and production data are available," Garber said.

Crows

Crow season is March 1-March 31 and July 15-Oct. 15. The current 124-day crow season is the maximum allowed by federal law.

Additional Information

Additional information about fall seasons will be available at ELS license agents or from the DNR in the 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook, available in early August, and the Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement, available in early September.

Garber said that hunters should check the actual regulations in the Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook and in the Waterfowl Regulations Supplement before going afield. Additional information will be posted as it becomes available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Safe and Sober helps Minnesotans buckle up

The Minnesota State Patrol participated in the Safe and Sober seat belt enforcement wave, June 28 through July 7, ticketing and warning 181 drivers and passengers in the Bagley, Thief River Falls, and Crookston area.

Officers from more than 350 local law enforcement agencies and every State Patrol District put in extra hours enforcing the law, which requires front-seat occupants to be buckled regardless of age, children under 11 to wear seat belts in the back seat, and those under the age of four to be properly restrained in a safety seat.

The Safe and Sober program is sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, Office of Traffic Safety and the National Traffic Safety Administration.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in Northwest Minnesota has kept this family busy out in the hot sun many hours this past week. On Thursday morning we were surprised to see the garden flattened and metal siding on the lawn. At first I thought it had been brought by the tornado that damaged buildings in the Pembina-Hallock area the night before. Later we learned it was from the back side of our own garage and fixed it. When Roy put it together, he fastened it so well that it won't come off except if the whole garage goes with it.

There were over 100 dahlia plants just beginning to bloom that lay twisted on the ground. Robert Thompson brought 25 steel fence posts and we gently raised them and staked them to the posts and piled the soil around them. Some were broken off by the corns and had to be thrown away. I tried putting them in a bucket of water but they just wilted. Most of these plants are from stock at the International dahlia shows in Kalispell, Mont. This fall when we dig them, of those that were lost, we can copy the numbers off the planted corns and replace them. It could be the ones we really wanted. Today Isaac brought more posts and we can finish staking the tomatoes, [illegible] fortunate we were not in the direct path of the tornado.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday and celebrated an early birthday for Iris Berggren. The visitors were Wally and Palmer Rud, Cookie Kujava, and Judy Larson. The regular members are Elphie Adlis, Helen Jacobson, Iris Berggren, Evelyn Kujava, Delephine Bratt and Evelyn Kline. This Thursday they are going to play bingo.

Tuesday morning Isaac and Betsy Thompson received a telephone call that Betsy's brother, William LaDoux of Ashford, Wash., had passed away Monday evening. He was 86 years of age and had served with the U.S. Navy over 20 years on the aircraft carrier U.S. Wasp as a chief gunner's mate. His wife, Maxine survives him, and our condolences go to her and other relatives.

Glad to report that Elsie Lefrooth is feeling better and is busy having friends and relatives enjoy coffee and goodies again. On Saturday, Peter and Pearl Thompson were there and on Sunday Shirley Lefrooth brought her some fresh walleye right out on the lake and Gloria Renstrom was there checking on Elsie's health. We are happy to have Gloria and her years of medical experience to call on when we don't feel the best.

Elphie Adlis is busy getting the Strandquist seniors going before this summer is over. Yesterday her daughter Joyce and her husband George Wikstrom visited her.

To celebrate the birthdays of Judy Kleinvachter and Joan Gerhls, Marie Steffen of Argyle took them and June Kasprowicz, Lois Kleinvachter, Tracy Folland, Kay Turnwall and Matt Hammer to Mentor, to a fancy "bed and breakfast" restaurant to dine. On the way home it began to storm so badly that they waited in St. Hilaire at Key's place until the worst part was over.

Other visitors at Judy Kleinvachter's home this week were Pat Larson and Rebecca, Sara Kleinvechter, Kelly Lefrooth, June Kasprowicz, Marie Steffer and Dennis Kleinvachter of Arizona. That kept the coffee pot humming.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson attended the memorial service Friday forenoon in Roseau for Olive Olson.

Sonny and Janet Sands called us on Sunday and visited about an hour. Richard and Carol Thompson of Red Lake Falls had been out there visiting last week. [illegible] Carol's father Elmer Holmstrom of Newfolden wasn't very well.

Sonny said that the one-legged chickadee that lay on his side to get a hold on his sunflower seeds out of the feeder turned out to be a mother bird. She is teaching her little ones to do the same way she does, but they sit and watch her and go right ahead and eat like normal birds.

Winning a grand champion award at the 2001 Pennington County Fair for his art was Dillon Dahl of rural Newfolden.

OPINIONS

David Hill
Editor

Editorial opinion published under this heading is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Unless specified otherwise, the editorials are written by Editor Dave Hill and do not represent opinion of other staff members. Opinions in items from other publications may not coincide with the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

From our perspective, it was an important story to residents

We aren't disappointed that men and women of the National Guard units from Thief River Falls and Crookston won't be placed in harm's way in Bosnia. We aren't disappointed that family, friends and businesses won't experience the hardship that a "relatively" long absence could impose on loved ones, and employers. While I'm sure that some members of the guard units are disappointed, we are only disappointed that we couldn't convince others that this was an important story.

"It's just one of those things. We don't know why. There's no story."

At least that's what was emphasized to reporters at The Times and Northern Watch when we questioned a a story that had appeared in the Grand Forks Herald announcing that National Guard units from Thief River Falls and Crookston would not be going to Bosnia as previously announced.

Staff at The Times/Northern Watch includes some former military men, so we understand that troop assignments (tasking) change frequently, and that those changes often involve "thousands" of men. We also understand that changes are based on numerous factors, such as need, training, and public policy. We understand that it's important to make the best use of manpower and resources. When dealing with such big decisions I'm sure it's natural, I suppose, for state and national representatives to ask, "what's the big deal?"

The "big deal" is that they forget that we live in a small community. Each one of the 180 or so men and women who would have gone to Bosnia on assignment from this region is significant, more so because we know just about every single individual personally, but also because of a tight labor market.

Don't take this editorial as a heavy-handed reprimand of the National Guard. We still support and strongly believe in the necessity of having a well-equipped and trained militia. This editorial is more of an explanation to readers about the difficulty in relating to different perspectives, and communicating with, and obtaining information from a bureaucracy. If we are disappointed in anything, it's that we were unable to convince others of the importance of the story from our perspective.

Be Patient!

TRF is building for the future

Clearly, the fact that we're almost half-way through the construction season is the most positive aspect of the current situation. Because this next phase of construction will try the patience of many people, it is important to focus on the positive. Think of it this way: it will be a good opportunity to practice relaxation techniques, so remember to breath deeply and think pleasant thoughts.

To be honest, pleasant thoughts were not on my mind when I called Public Works Director Ron Lindberg. About half-way through my list of concerns, such as the detour to Eighth Street, impact on downtown business with Phase I still under construction, placement of four-way stops. . . when Ron said you know, "we're almost half-way through the construction." The fact that he was obviously steering me toward focusing on the positive instead of the negative did make me laugh though, and the point was well taken.

OK, chalk up one for Ron. Let's focus on the positive instead of the negative:

- The Davis Avenue to Eighth Street to Highway 32 detour will last only 14 days. Any longer and the contractor will be paying penalties.
- The rough railroad crossing next to the Depot will be replaced.
- The CP Railroad is aware of the detour and that blocking traffic at that intersection could cause significant traffic problems.
- Four-way stop signs will be placed strategically along the detour so that traffic will flow more smoothly.
- Local motorists, especially truckers, are intelligent enough to realize that First Street is a busier street, but it's still a much faster detour route.
- There are many alternate routes savvy motorists can use.

Regardless of whether we can still smile, when the construction is done, we'll have nice, smooth streets. My bet is that a couple weeks after it's done, most of us, excluding downtown business owners, will probably have forgotten all about the hassles we experienced during construction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Was it necessary to cut this tree down?

To the Editor:

I have recently learned about the sewer line replacement project that is taking place on some of the streets of Thief River Falls this summer. One of those streets is Spruce Avenue. I grew up in a home on Spruce Avenue. My mother, Joan Harris, still lives in this home. She was very upset to lose a tree during this construction. She told me other town residents were upset about losing trees as well. Her story prompted me to write the enclosed piece about the tree that she lost and what it meant to her and our family. I am sure there are other people with stories of attachment to trees they lost and who will identify with this piece. I wanted to express to the town council that a tree is frequently more than just a tree.

Sincerely,
Mary Jo Harris

The Murder of a Cottonwood

by Mary Jo Harris

My favorite smell of green is that of cottonwoods — in the cool of an early morning breeze, on a hot summer day, and especially after a cooling rainfall. I have just realized why. It is a smell out of my childhood, growing up in northern Minnesota.

The town council decided new sewer lines were necessary on Spruce Avenue. Since the street was to be dug up it was decided to "improve" the street by widening it a foot on either side. So the huge cottonwood in the front yard of the corner house, the maroon one with white trim, had to come down. This faithful giant had grown ever more lush and full, ever taller with each passing year for the past 48 years.

The old woman living in the house remembers when her family brought the tree home. The house was new then. She and her husband moved to town in 1953 and bought the house when the children were small — two, four and seven years old. I was the two-year old. On summer Sundays our family loved to pile into the '48 Plymouth and go for aimless rambles up quiet country roads. Sometimes we discovered a deserted farmhouse to explore. Sometimes we found berries to pick. We always had a picnic lunch before heading home from our adventuring. On one of our Sunday rambles dad dug up a cottonwood we found growing in a ditch. It was only a foot tall. Dad planted it in the front yard of our new home near the road. Mom remembers how my oldest brother took flying leaps over the tree and its little wire fence as he came and went, running home from playing with friends or running off to spend a nickel at the "little store."

The tree grew and so did we. A baby sister was born. Several summers after the tree was planted the town dug up the dirt road in front of the house to put in then-new sewer lines, paved the street and put in curbing. The tree and we children watched as workmen dug a trench down the middle of the road. My brother set up a lemonade stand next to the tree and sold gallons of mom's fresh-squeezed lemonade to the hot, sweaty men. In the evening after the men left with their machines the children on the block played imaginary games of all kinds in the hills and valleys of the trench.

The tree grew and so did the children. The tree no longer needed a fence to protect it from children and lawn mowers. Soon it was strong enough to climb and the younger children were big enough and strong enough to climb it. In fall my oldest brother would rake all the leaves fallen from the cottonwood and other trees and build a huge bonfire in the garden behind the house.

After dark he and his teenage friends lit the bonfire and told ghost stories to the neighborhood kids that gathered 'round.

The tree continued to grow and so did the children. A fifth child, a baby brother was born. By the time he was old enough to climb trees the branches of the cottonwood were beyond his reach. The older children were growing up and leaving home, moving on to build their own lives. It became the job of the youngest to mow the law and rake the leaves. He had a power mower, a luxury his older brother had not had. Our father died. The tree our father had planted kept growing. A sister, the fourth child, graduated, went off to college and a job. Only my youngest brother and mom were left at home. They became great pals and had adventures together. Then this youngest brother was killed, a victim of a drunk driver.

The maroon house became still and lonely. It no longer rang with the sounds of children's feet running up and down stairs, the slamming of doors, the squabble of kids. Its children and grandchildren lived far away and came less and less often to visit as their lives became busier and busier.

The cottonwood kept growing. It stood during the windstorm that twisted the top of a nearby blue spruce down onto the house. It continued to grow while other trees died from disease and had to be felled.

Several weeks ago workmen with a cherry picker came and, starting at the very top, began cutting down the cottonwood. After the ninth truckload of tree was hauled away mom could watch no longer. When a workman came to her door to talk about the tree she burst into tears, and slammed the door in his face. Did he think the old woman was crazy to cry about a tree? Did he have any idea how the memories of her family growing up were linked to the tree he was helping to chop down and tear from the ground?

When she was 17 Mom had stood boldly in front of a grove of cottonwoods on her family's farm and told a crew cutting trees for new power lines that they would only cut down those cottonwoods over her dead body. She saved the trees that time. Now Joan is 80 and without the energy or spirit to fight. So she lost her tree.

And the town? What has it gained? An extra foot of street for cars to park on?

We learned a lot in Costa Rica

To the Editor:

I recently traveled to Costa Rica in a group of 27 Spanish students from Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls. We traveled across the country for eight days doing various activities like taking an aerial tram through the rainforest canopy, watching the sea turtles lay their eggs, and going whitewater rafting.

Although we had our share of problems, once we got over the excess of chicken and rice, and bad plumbing, I think we all took a lot away from this awesome experience. By being in another country, we were forced to notice all the differences between it and the United States, and believe me, there are a lot. But at the same time, I think we all realized how much alike people are, no matter what language they speak.

The differences in lifestyle were clearly evident. Costa Rica is not a particularly wealthy country, but the Costa Ricans live up to their slogan, Pura Vida, which means Pure Life. They make the best out of what they have, and they all seem happy and satisfied.

The issue of language was not as much of a barrier as most of us would have expected. Because one of the main purposes of our trip was to learn the language, many of us tried to speak Spanish whenever possible. However, the trouble was that while we wanted to practice our Spanish on them, many of the natives wanted to practice their English on us!

I don't know who in their right mind would want to take 27 teenagers to a foreign country for eight days, but for some reason, three women accepted the challenge. I want to take the time to thank our chaperones, Diane Paulson and Vicki Svedarsky, for volunteering their time and not getting too sick of us. I also would like to thank Sheryl Novacek, our Spanish teacher at Lincoln, for making this trip happen. Even though we drive her crazy, she always seems to stick with us! Thank you so much, Ene!

During the course of our trip, I think we all learned a lot. The differences between Costa Rica and the United States were overwhelming, but so were the similarities. By recognizing them, we learned the most, not only about Costa Rica but about ourselves.

Sincerely,
Kate Levinson

Farmers join President on trade issues

from the Republican National Congress

State representatives from the American Farm Bureau Federation met at the White House recently to discuss the Trade Promotion Authority and how it affects U.S. farm exports. President George W. Bush, Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman and U.S. Trade Representative Bob Zoellick participated in the meeting.

The Executive Branch has not had Trade Promotion Authority since 1994, and America's competitors have taken advantage of this lack of leadership. There are over 130 preferential trade agreements in the world today, and the U.S. is a party to only two.

Free trade is good for American workers. When American workers compete on the world stage, American families and workers win.

- Twelve million U.S. jobs depend on exports — these jobs pay 13 to 18 percent more than other jobs;
- One in three U.S. farm acres is planted for export, and 25 percent of gross farm income comes from exports;
- North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and the Uruguay Round have generated increased annual income of $1,300 to $2,000 for the average American family of four.

Free trade is good for Minnesota's agriculture. Minnesota is one of the leading producers of agricultural products and a major exporter. The state's farm cash receipts totaled $7.1 billion in 1999. Minnesota ranked seventh among all 50 states in 1999 with agricultural exports estimated at $2.2 billion. These exports help boost farm prices and income, while supporting about 33,400 jobs both on the farm and off the farm in food processing storage, and transportation.

Free Trade Benefits Minnesota:

- Under the NAFTA agreement, U.S. corn exports to Mexico have nearly tripled since 1994, reaching 197 million bushels valued at $486 million in 2000.
- Limits set on subsidized wheat exports because of the Uruguay Round agreement resulted in a 3-million-ton increase in the European market, half of which is supplied by the United States;
- Under the NAFTA agreement, average annual U.S. wheat exports to Mexico have more than doubled, from 20 million bushels to nearly 50 million bushels.

Notice a difference in mail service?

To the Editor:

Has anyone else noticed a difference in our local mail service? We certainly have. The turnaround time has increased from 1-2 days within the state of MN to 5-7 days. This only seems to be happening to mail sent from Thief River.

A lot of our business has previously been conducted through the USPS. We work with a company in Sauk Center who tests our product for resale. These tests are crucial to our buyers and also help determine the price we receive for our product. We would normally receive the test results via e-mail or fax the next day because our package was delivered in one day by regular mail. Since the sorting has been moved to Grand Forks we don't get any results for 5 to 7 days. We also receive payments by mail and not only have we experienced a significant delay, but also lost mail. We have recently started using another delivery service.

Wasn't there a promise of a test period this winter before the sorting operation was moved? Wasn't there a promise that our mail service wouldn't be changed and perhaps even improved? We have always received extremely good service from our local postal employees, so this is in no way a criticism of them. However, it seems that a strong protest to this move was made and promises were given that have not been honored. The sorting was moved and now it's a done deal. What gives?

Sincerely,
Mollie Ose

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER — JULY 25, 1901
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

WHO PAYS?

Attorney General Gives His Opinion.

"Attorney General Douglas gives the following answers asked of him, which will be of interest to the city authorities, who are now allowing numerous bills of the care of smallpox patients:

1. Is the county liable for expenses incurred by the board of health in control of infectious diseases in a town or village, when such expense was incurred prior to April 11, 1901?

2. In any case under the new law, would the county be liable in case the patient was able to pay such expense?

3. Would the county be liable in case the person had not gained a legal residence in the county under the statute?

"To the first query, the attorney general has grave doubts about the constitutionality of the law, but rules that the towns and villages would have to pay expenses incurred between 1895 and April 11, 1901, and since that date the county would have to pay the bills incurred by local boards of health in control of contagious diseases in their jurisdiction.

"In answer to the second question, he rules that, if able, the patient should pay for all supplies used by him, medical attendance, nurses and medicines and the county is not liable for these unless the remedy against such person has been exhausted. But the expense of preventing the spread of disease by the board of health is chargeable to the county.

"In answer to the third query, he replies that if the person is a bona fide resident of the county and not a pauper, although unable to pay, the county would be chargeable."

News Items

"Fresh crushed fruit with ice cream at Duntley's.

"A few cases of diphtheria are reported from Wyandotte.

"Miss Katie Whaley went to Red Lake Falls Monday where she has accepted a position in the new steam laundry.

"Ex-Editor Smiley of Thief River Falls came down Sunday with the ball-tossers and went home Monday on the train.

"A new fine bell for the village hall arrived Monday and will be placed in position as soon as the new tower for its accommodation can be constructed. It is a dandy and weighs in the neighborhood of 500 pounds.

"The bowery dance given by the band Saturday evening was a decided success and netted the boys a good sum. The attendance was large and the article of music furnished was voted by all to have been strictly first-class.

"A party of ladies consisting of Mrs. Julius Pleth, Mrs. J. K. Hannay, Mrs. F. Miller and daughter, and Mrs. John Kemp and daughter left Friday for a pleasure trip to the Red Lake Agency via the steamboat route. They got home Sunday evening very much delighted with the scenery and somewhat disgusted by the greediness of the mosquitoes.

"Adam Zeh is platting a townsite at Plummer's and will name the place Clearwater Falls. The townsite is located on the northwest quarter of section 17 on the west side of the Clearwater river [Emardville township]. A dam is being constructed at that point which will furnish water power. Clearwater Falls is about 11 miles northeast of Red Lake Falls and about 14 miles southeast of St. Hilaire."

SUNDAY'S BALL GAME

"The people of St. Hilaire and vicinity were treated to a fine exhibition of the national game on Sunday. The Thief River Falls team, being composed of a lot of jolly fellows, came down to show us what a good ball team looked like and they did. They weren't after blood nor money, they simply came here to entertain us by playing a game with nine picked up locals. But the game developed into more than a pleasure trip and was really one of the best games played in this county in a long while.

"S. C. Knouf umpired the game and, as a general thing, his rulings were satisfactory. There was a little howl started a couple of times but the umpire would never give in, which is one of the best traits in an umpire.

"The game was hotly contested and ended up with a score of 8 to 6 in favor of the picked up nine of St. Hilaire. Yes, it's a fact, the Indians [the Thief River Falls team] got scalped when they didn't expect it. They put up a game fight but couldn't gain the victory. The batteries were: for Thief River, Nason and Murphy; for St. Hilaire, Wall and O'Neill.

"All of the boys played well but the special features of the game were the batting of Wall, O'Neill and Lachapelle for the locals. Wall made three three-baggers. O'Neill landed one home run and a two-base hit. Lachapelle made two of the latter.

"O'Neill skipped over the third base without touching it when he made his home run and was called out. That was one time when the umpire heard some kicks. One of the visitors was called out at second and got hot and quit the game. Then there was another uproar. But such things will happen and it don't seem just right for folks to get mad over trifles like that when there is nothing at stake [no cash purse].

"Taken all in all the game was a fine one and the visitors not only played good ball but proved that they are first-rate fellows."

INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT #564
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA
June 25, 2001, 6:00 p.m.
S.O.S.C. Conference Room A

A Regular Meeting of the Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, June 25, 2001, in the Conference Room of the District Service Center. Vice Chair Carl Clark called the meeting to order at 6:00 p.m.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Barb Kalinoski, Mike Spears, Randy Twistol and Mike Berry. Treasurer Randy Twistol established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by M. Spears and seconded by M. Berry to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

Carl Clark recognized the TRF United Way for their donation of $2,500 to the Family Advocacy Program. This is the first half of a total donation of $5,000 to the program.

Mary Forney and Carol Ihle updated the Board on the changes taking place at the ALC. Mary discussed the report from the Department of CFL. The ALC is making major changes in their curriculum and structuring of programs. The students need a structured setting to promote their own individual success in the program. Mary discussed site visits to other area ALC programs in Wadena, Bemidji, and Cass Lake. The ALC will be extending their summer program. They currently have 29 students on their waiting list to attend summer classes.

Carl Clark updated the Board on the negotiations meeting with the Education Association. They had a very productive meeting. Language items were discussed. The Negotiating Committee presented a list of language items for negotiations. No financial items have been presented at this time.

Harry Nelson reviewed the nursing contract for the 2001-2002 school year. The district has been very pleased with the service that they have been receiving.

The lunch prices for the upcoming school year were reviewed. They are the same as the previous year, with the exception of the ala carte prices, which may change.

The district will be demolishing a house at 223 Zeh Street at a cost of $6,000. Funding for the demolition will come from Health & Safety funds.

Harry also reviewed the 2001-2002 and c/ year budget.

Barb Kalinoski updated the Board on the MECC meeting. The concessions trailer is in. They will be pouring a concrete slab for the trailer and putting in water and sewer connections for the trailer. Everything should be in place for the football season. Railings at the MEC Center have been replaced. The track is now open on Tuesday and Thursday from 4-9 p.m. at a cost of $2.00. Tim Olson attended the meeting and presented a list of items they feel are still needed at the track. These items are being presented to the architects and the MEC Center will pick up the costs.

A motion was made by B. Kalinoski and seconded by R. Twistol to approve the minutes of the June 11, 2001 regular board meeting as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by B. Kalinoski and seconded by R. Twistol to approve the bills as submitted and on file in the School District Business Office. Motion carried unanimously.

Roseau Co. cow died of anthrax

Minnesota Board of Animal Health recently reported that a beef cow from a Roseau County farm died of anthrax. The anthrax case is the first in 2001 for Minnesota, although the disease was found in cattle on seven northwestern Minnesota farms last summer. After confirmation of the disease, the animal's carcass was incinerated.

Anthrax is an infectious disease caused by Bacillus anthracis bacteria. Experts believe cattle can contract the disease by eating contaminated soil while grazing. Until last year, no cases of anthrax had been reported among cattle in the northern third of Minnesota since the state began keeping records in 1909. In rare cases, humans can contract anthrax after handling or eating infected products. The last reported human case of anthrax in Minnesota was in 1953.

In light of this latest case, State Veterinarian Bill Hartmann is advising Minnesota farmers to contact a local veterinarian if they have any cattle that die unexpectedly. If the death looks suspicious, the veterinarian will take a blood sample for testing. With early diagnosis, it is possible for the farmer and veterinarian to take steps to prevent further cases in the herd.

"We haven't seen many cases of anthrax in Minnesota over the past few decades, but we still need to be cautious," Hartmann said. "Farmers should keep an eye on their livestock and contact a vet if they notice one of their animals has died unexpectedly."

Hartmann urges livestock producers in the area to keep an accurate count of their herds, especially if tilling or excavation work has been done on their pasture, or if their land has been flooded recently. Those kinds of events can bring dormant forms of B. anthracis to the surface, where livestock can be exposed to them.

As an added precaution, Hartmann recommends that farmers in the area should assume any unexpected deaths among their herds are due to anthrax until the disease can be ruled out. Suspect carcasses should not be cut open, because that can allow anthrax to spread. If anthrax is confirmed, the carcass should be burned, and the ashes should be buried on site.

Farmers or others with questions about anthrax can contact their local veterinarian or the Minnesota Board of Animal Health at 651-296-2942.

Skate park ready to roll

■ Thief River Falls' new skate park is ready to go after much cooperation from community and business organizations

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

It's been a long summer for the new skate park at Franklin Middle School. The trendy new, and yet to be named park has been under construction since January and now will open to the public on Friday, August 3, 2001 at 1 p.m.

After a series of tentative opening dates, the paperwork and construction efforts have come together so the park may officially open, giving area youth a place to enjoy skating on ramps, jumps, and rails of all sorts. It will also provide a limited supply of safety equipment, such as helmets and knee and elbow pads, for a daily rental fee. The helmet will be $1 and the protective gear will be $1 for rental. The safety equipment is required to use the park. Water and pop will also be for sale at the park.

Until further notice by the Community Education Department, the park will remain open from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week. Park admission is $2 per day or $25 for the remainder of the season. A family pass can also be purchased for $50.

Parents and park patrons should also know that anyone under the age of 18 will be required to have a parent accompany them to sign a hold harmless waiver before they will be admitted. Mike Lindholm, park supervisor, will also be on hand anytime the park is open.

Bicycle track

The park is open to in-line skaters and skateboarders until the construction of the BMX bicycle track is completed. Currently, much of the construction equipment needed to complete the track is being utilized in summer construction projects in and around the city, which take priority for now.

Another part of construction not yet complete is the main building in the center of the park. It will house the bathrooms and an equipment storage room, as well as a place for the park supervisor to run the park from. It is scheduled to begin the week of August 13, 2001.

A community effort

The new skate park is the product of a huge collaboration on the part of much of the Thief River Falls community. The funding for the park initially came from a grant from the Department of Children, Families, and Learning (CFL). From there a Roller Park Committee was formed and they set out to raise more funds for the park. They are still looking for donations today, as equipment is not fully funded and new equipment for the BMX bicycle track is needed. Interested donors are invited to call the Community Education Department at 681-8711, ext. 244.

"Part of the magic here is that dozens of people and organizations came together for this," Terry Demars, a committee member, said.

The list of donors is long and many have vowed to assist the park. Among the major donors are the CFL Construction Grant ($40,000), Hartz Foundation ($12,500), Thief River Falls Rotary Club ($7,500, plus a two year pledge of support), Pennington County Family Services Collaborative Board ($5,000), Lincoln High School Student Senate, Franklin Middle School Student Senate, Lutheran Brotherhood, Aid Association for Lutherans Branch #9813, Westside Motors, Lee Plumbing, St. Hilaire Supply, Eagle's Club, Davidson Ready-Mix and Construction, Fynboh Construction, Inc., and Kiwanis.

Donors for the raffle include Arctic Cat, Inc., Purdy's Shoe Store, Brodin Comfort Systems, and Lyle Hanson. Park committee members are astounded by the show of support and proud to offer the community a real recreational outlet.

"It's been an incredible exercise in a common goal," Lyle Hanson said.

Andrew Kalsnas, 14, Thief River Falls, launches off one of Thief River Falls skate park's new jumps. The park is scheduled to open Friday, August 3, 2001 at 1 p.m. Protective gear is required and a $2 entry fee must be paid to enter the park. Children under the age of 18 must also have a parent sign a waiver. For patrons without gear, safety equipment will be available for rental.

City council hears report on Minn. tax bill

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

As the city winds down from the county fair and traffic is further disrupted this week by construction, the Thief River Falls City Council returns to business as usual.

There were no major discussions undertaken at this week's city council meeting, however the council did hear from one of its biggest lobbying partners, the Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities (CGMC). The CGMC, which is made up of about 65 rural communities in Minnesota, updated the Council on the recent state legislature sessions and briefed them on the final tax bill and CGMC goals.

According to representatives from the CGMC, the final tax bill raises Local Government Aid (LGA), a form of city aid, 8.5 percent for 2002 from 2001. The CGMC's goals in regards to property tax reform are to preserve city property tax relief funding (LGA) and distribute most of city funding through a needs-based LGA formula. They also hope to prevent increases in tax rate disparities between cities and towns and oppose limits on local government authority, such as levy limits and reverse referenda.

Detours discussed

Questions were raised by several Council members concerning the number of stops on the construction detours route around downtown Thief River Falls and the design of the route itself. The route originally included stop signs at the railroad tracks and stops at each block, but they were removed to ease traffic flow. One council member expressed frustration, stating that there were still too many stops.

4th annual 'National Night Out' planned for Tuesday, August 7

Reporter

The City of Thief River Falls and the Thief River Falls Police Department are set to celebrate their fourth annual "National Night Out," a crime prevention event to promote police and community partnerships, safety, and neighborhood unity.

The evening begins at 5 p.m., Tuesday, August 7, 2001 in Floyd B. Olson Park. Hot dogs, beans, chips, ice cream, and beverages will be prepared by Kiwanis and served by the City Council until 6:30 p.m. There will be face painting and other kids events from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Miss Thief River Falls, Kelsi Holland, and other musical entertainment will also be on hand from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Crime prevention, safety and community booths, and displays with be set up throughout the park during the evening and citizens are invited to visit the booths and sign up for door prizes. Drawings will be held at 7:15 p.m.

Citizens are also invited to join police patrol bikes and the DARE super car in a "Walk Against Crime" at 7:30 p.m. In case of bad weather, National Night Out will be held in the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

The City of Thief River Falls will be joining approximately 9,600 other cities across the United States to celebrate "National Night Out." The event is designed to heighten crime and drug prevention and awareness, generate support for and participation in local anti-crime programs, strengthen neighborhood spirit and police-community partnerships, and send a message to criminals letting them know that neighborhoods are organized and fighting back.

Block clubs

Neighborhood "block clubs" are groups of neighbors committed to working together to watch out for one another. They witness and report to the police concerning issues that affect their block. They also provide an opportunity for citizens to meet and form a relationship with law enforcement in their area. The annual anti-crime event is organized through the City's Strategic Planning Steering Committee along with community leaders and neighborhood block captains.

While contemplating the future of their club, members of the Thief River Falls Archery Club realized long ago that youth would be the key to longevity.

This weekend, the club will celebrate its first 50 years at its annual outdoor 3-D tournament. The event will be held at the club's field range located south and west of the Thief River Falls Regional Airport.

Preceding the tournament, special archery camps are currently being held for area Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and 4-H members.

Due to the damp weather, Girl Scouts alternated their time Monday and Tuesday between the outdoor range and the club's indoor facility above the Old Arena in Thief River Falls. Boy Scouts are taking their turn today and tomorrow, and 4-H'er's will converge on the range on Friday.

Youth enjoying the outdoor facility have had the first opportunity to use the new benches that were constructed especially for the event by Boy Scout Scott Woodruff.

Building the benches will help Woodruff earn his Eagle Scout award, the highest award of the Boy Scouts of America. Scott is a member of Troop 57 at St. Bernard's Catholic Church and the son of Rick and Nancy Woodruff. He will be a junior this fall at Lincoln High School.

The idea for the project, Scott said, came up during a conversation between him, his dad and Dana Klos, president of the Thief River Falls Archery Club board of directors. Klos mentioned that the club would be needing seating for its upcoming tournament activities, and Scott saw that need as an opportunity.

He discovered the plans for the project on the Internet. A unique feature of the bench is that fact that with the removal of a bolt or two, the back folds down and, when combined with another bench, forms a picnic table. Scott shared his idea and the plans with Klos, and the project was a go.

While the archery club financed the project, Scott and his dad visited the local lumber yards, pricing materials and getting the best possible deal for the club. The treated pine and hardware used to construct four four-foot benches and six six-foot benches cost under $400.

Scott's fellow Scouts and several friends who are not Boy Scouts joined him in constructing the benches in the Woodruff garage before they were delivered to the outdoor facility in time for this week's activities.

Scott also did some work at the range, clearing a wooded area and building several bow racks which are sure to come in handy this weekend and in the years to come.

Many of the archery experiences Scott has enjoyed as a Cub Scout and Boy Scout have been due to the local archery club's involvement with area youth. For many years, the club has set up targets and provided bows and arrows for the District 12 Scout Exposition held annually at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

Scott has also participated in archery during the school year, first as participant in the After School Enrichment Program through the Community Education Department of School District 564 and this year as member of a league team. Scott's dad, Rick, has also caught the archery fever and deer hunted with a bow for the first time last year.

The Woodruffs and a host of others are expected to take in the archery club activities this weekend. According to Dana Klos, over 1,000 shooters are expected to register for the event.

In conjunction with the tournament, several other special events are planned.

More than 20 retailers and manufacturers have committed to setting up booths and displays in the commons area at the outdoor range, and a number of food vendors will be on hand to provide nourishment for hungry archers and spectators.

Jay Barrs, the 1988 Olympic gold medalist in men's archery, will present a shooting demonstration and will face Rob Rusnov, Canada's current national champion, in a head-to-head match.

On Sunday, Kelsi Holland, the reigning Miss Thief River Falls, will be on hand to present the 75-plus trophies which will be given away beginning at 5 p.m.

In addition to Woodruff's contribution, preparation for the event has involved the work of many of the club's members who are eagerly anticipating the weekend.

"We can control everything but the weather," one board member was overheard telling a St. Cloud archer who called for directions to the outdoor range. So far, the weather forecast is favorable as is the future of the Thief River Falls Archery Club.

Spectators and interested parties are invited to check out the action August 4 and 5 at the outdoor range. For more information about the event or the Thief River Falls Archery Club, contact Klos at 681-7592 or 681-5816 (work).

Boy Scout Scott Woodruff of Troop 57 at St. Bernard's Catholic Church helped members of the Thief River Falls Archery Club prepare for their tournament and anniversary festivities by building benches which convert into picnic tables. The woodworking project will help Woodruff earn his Eagle Scout badge.

The only thing you should have to consume at your Favorite restaurant is your favorite food.

Levels of second hand smoke in smoking sections of restaurants are about 1½ to 2 times higher than those in typical office environments.

A study of 15 cities with smoke-free restaurant ordinances found that the ordinances do not adversely affect either restaurant or bar sales.

Next time you're eating at your favorite restaurant, ask the owners why they allow smoking and see if their answer is as profound as this.

Minnesota Ag Statistics 2001 Book offers intriguing farm numbers

New report shows Minnesota tops in turkeys; soybeans now state's leading crop

The latest publication from the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service (MASS) shows that for the first time ever, soybeans have surpassed corn to become the crop of choice for the state's farmers. It also shows that Minnesota has regained its status as the nation's leading turkey producer.

Published last week, the 2001 Minnesota Ag Statistics Book summarizes farm sector data through the end of 2000. The data show that in 2000, Minnesota farmers planted 7.3 million acres of soybeans and 7.1 million acres of corn. In addition to being the most common crop, soybeans also proved to be the biggest moneymaker for farmers in 2000. Soybeans accounted for $1.5 billion or nearly 20 percent of total cash receipts for farm marketings. Milk and other dairy products came in second at $1.4 billion (18 percent). Corn placed third at $1.3 billion (17 percent).

Minnesota also regained its status as the top turkey-producing state in America, a position it last held in 1980. According to the Ag Statistics Book, Minnesota farmers raised 43.5 million turkeys in 2000. That translates into over a billion pounds of turkeys.

The state also retained its national prominence in several key areas, remaining the top state for production of sugarbeets, oats and green peas for processing. The state ranked second in production of spring wheat, sweet corn, canola, and wild rice, and third in soybeans and hogs. The state also retained its #5 ranking for milk production, although many industry watchers believe Idaho will soon surpass Minnesota in that category.

The Ag Statistics Book also shows the state continues to lose about 1,000 farms each year. According to MASS, Minnesota now has 79,000 farms (down from 80,000 in 1999), and the average size of those farms increased from 360 acres in 1999 to 362 acres in 2000. According to MASS Director Mike Hunst, these figures reflect a trend that has been in place since the 1930s.

"The number of farms in Minnesota peaked at 204,000 in 1935," Hunst said. "Since then, productivity increases and societal changes have combined to bring that number down steadily."

Dayton Supports Legislation to Elevate EPA agency to Cabinet-Level Status

Senator Mark Dayton today backed bi-partisan legislation to elevate the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to cabinet-level status, ensuring that the agency's mission to protect human health and safeguard the environment can be executed at the highest levels of the federal government.

Dayton said he has signed on as a cosponsor of the "Department of Environmental Protection Affairs Act," authored by Senators Susan Collins (R-ME) and Barbara Boxer (D-CA), which would elevate the EPA to a cabinet-level department and rename it as the Department of Environmental Protection Affairs. The Bush Administration also backs efforts to elevate the agency to cabinet-level status.

Dayton said that change in status will help the EPA more effectively carry out its mission, and better communicate to other nations the United States' commitment to a clean, safe environment around the world. Currently, the United States is one of only 10 out of 198 nations that do not maintain an agency at the ministry or cabinet level devoted to the environment.

"Since the EPA was created in 1970, it has been a major force in protecting the health and well being of both our citizens and our environment," Dayton said. "This step will help ensure that the EPA can more effectively continue those efforts."

Dayton said that promoting the agency to cabinet-level status would require the President to include the EPA in all administrative decisions. In addition, Dayton noted that the agency's oversight responsibilities would be bolstered by the promotion, allowing the head of the EPA to more effectively ensure that the environmental goals of the nation are not overlooked by other departments.

"Elevating the EPA to the cabinet-level position is widely supported and formalizes our nation's commitment to a clean, safe environment," Dayton said. "We need to make sure that the health and safety of Americans and people around the world gets the same attention as other important issues that are central to the nation's well being."

Getting writing back on the right track

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

What do you remember about your own learning experiences when it comes to writing?

"I hated it," "I had to write for quantity, not quality," and "there were a lot of rules" are just some of the answers Tim Ternes, a fifth and sixth grade loop teacher in St. Cloud, evokes from participants in his "6 Traits of Writing" course.

"The message of what makes good writing good has not been getting through," Ternes said.

According to Ternes, the course is designed to help teachers develop a common philosophy and language in regards to responding to children's writing. He said it's about involving students in the evaluation and revision of their own writing.

"Assessment is not something we do to kids," Temes said, "but something we do with kids."

'I never learned any traits'

The 6 Traits model is credited to the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory and consists of the following traits: ideas, organization, voice, word choice, sentence fluency, and conventions. Ideas are "the heart of the message, the content of the piece, the main theme, together with the details that enrich and develop that theme." Organization is "the internal structure of a piece of writing, the thread of central meaning, the logical and sometimes intriguing pattern of the ideas." Voice is "the heart and soul, the magic, the wit, along with the feeling and conviction of the individual writer coming out through the words." Word choice is "the use of rich, colorful, precise language that moves and enlightens the reader." Sentence fluency is "the rhythm and flow of the language, the sound of word patterns, the way in which the writing plays to the ear-not just to the eye." And last, conventions are "the mechanical correctness of the piece–spelling, grammar and usage, paragraphing, use of capitals, and punctuation."

Each trait is intended to be introduced and utilized in a classroom according to appropriateness and applicability. The course teaches that students can be expected to write more effectively and more enjoyably if they understand the difference between revision and editing and learn the criteria for good writing, as well as the conventions, such as punctuation and grammar.

"What's different here is that you make kids equal partners in the discussion and development of what makes good writing good," Ternes said. "It's the heart of what we've been missing in writing development."

Into the classroom

Temes learned about the six traits in the mid-90s and has been using them in his classroom for about the last seven years. He said he's definitely seen improvement in his students' writing because of the traits.

The program was first introduced to School District 564 last year after a group of 3rd grade teachers had the training and highly recommended it. A Best Practice Grant was obtained to fund this year's speaker, according to Curriculum Coordinator Carol Ihle.

Sara Olson, a teacher of the gifted and talented for School District 564, attended the course last week at Challenger elementary school. She was pleased with the course and believes it offers a way to look at how students are developing with their writing and a common terminology for all grades, kindergarten through 12th grade.

"It offers a way to be consistent as a specialist on what's happening in the classroom," Olson said.

Lisa Semanko, a 10th through 12th grade english teacher at Lincoln high school, found that the traits may not be as applicable at the high school level, but they do provide ways to explain some of the techniques of writing.

"It gives us a different way of teaching it," Semonko said. "It enhances it."

Tim Temes, a 5th and 6th grade teacher from St. Cloud, teaches on the development of writing with a group of teachers from School District 564 last Tuesday at Challenger elementary school. The course, "6 Traits of Writing" is more of a mentality, Temes said. It is intended to help teachers make learning to write more effective and fun for their students.

It was one of those "Good Grief!" moments for Charlie Brown as he listens to Snoopy boast about the champion dog he's going to be in the musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Ralph Cox plays Charlie Brown and Dave Swenson assumes the role of Snoopy in the Thief River Falls Community Arts Council production that opens Wednesday, August 8, at 7 p.m. in the theater at Northland Community and Technical College. Nightly shows will continue through Saturday, August 11, with tickets available at Kazar Music.

Minnesota GED Test Requirements to Change in 2002

Adult students who are working toward a State of Minnesota General Educational Development (GED) diploma have until December 31, 2001 to complete their testing requirements, according to the Department of Children, Families & Learning (CFL). After that time, GED students will have to take new GED tests with a greater emphasis on applying what they have learned. GED students who have not completed current testing requirements by the end of 2001 will need to retake all five tests. Their old scores will not carry over to the new tests.

"The new tests our GED students will take beginning in 2002 will be a better measure of how well they can succeed in higher education, business and the community," said state education commissioner Christine Jax, Ph.D. "GED students, no less than our public high school graduates, need the skills and abilities these tests measure to make the best futures for themselves."

GED tests scheduled for release in 2002 will ask learners to interpret materials such as editorial cartoons, graphs and business correspondence that cut across traditional classroom subject areas. They will bring the GED curriculum up to date while continuing to ensure GED graduates achieve at the same level as public high school graduates in reading, writing, social studies, science and mathematics, the same five areas measured with the old set of GED tests. Other changes due in 2002 introduce both non-multiple choice questions and the use of calculators, in line with common high school practice, on the GED math test.

Current GED students who are planning to take the old tests must begin doing so by December 1, 2001 and complete their testing requirements by December 31, 2001. After that time, they will need to meet GED testing requirements with the new tests. For more information about the GED program, contact Pat Rupp at (651) 582-8437 or visit the website at http://cfl.state.mn.us/ged/ged.htm.

Fogarty completes U.S. Army Ranger School

William Fogarty Jr., age 23 and son of William and Katherine Fogarty of Thief River Falls, recently graduated from the U.S. Army Ranger Course in Ft. Benning, Ga.

Fogarty, who completed the Army ROTC program at St. John's University, was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant in the Active Army on August 31, 2000. He then completed a 17-week Infantry Officer Basic Course at Ft. Benning on April 18, 2001. Fogarty was then eligible for and recently completed the Army's most demanding training– Ranger School.

Ranger School consists of 61 days of leadership training under stressful mental and physical conditions. The course is made up of three phases. At Ft. Benning, soldiers are challenged physically through water survival, road marches, small unit tactics, and verbal assault from veteran instructors. The second phase was located in the mountains of northern Georgia where the soldiers learned to utilize equipment and techniques necessary for mountainous terrain. During the second phase, the focus switched from smaller squad-sized elements to platoon-sized units. The third phase included two airborne jumps into the swamps of northwest Florida. This portion of the course simulated the jungle conditions of heat, humidity, and hazards such as poisonous reptiles and thick, entangled vegetation.

Fogarty will use these skills to develop and motivate infantry soldiers in his first duty assignment, 7th Army Training Command, located in Hohenfels, Germany.

Couldn't you just have book sales all the time? It would make it easier to remember. Answer: We have been asked this question many times. We simply don't have the space to devote to an ongoing book sale. Many libraries do this, but they have more available space than we do unfortunately.

ACTIVITIES

Footprints In the Sand

The next time you are at the lake or beach, go barefoot in wet sand and discuss the following: How does the sand feel? Does it feel different from bare feet on grass or cement? What are the differences? Make footprints, toe prints, and heel prints. What size are the prints? Make a left footprint and a right footprint. Is there a difference between the left and right? Jump in the sand. How deep are the prints? How far is it between the footprints?

The following is a fingerplay to use when walking in the sand.

In the sand I shovel and dig.
I make two holes very big.
(show two fingers)
I make a tunnel between the two.
(make an arch with arms)
For my cars and trucks to travel through.
Varoom! (move hand swiftly)

Good Moods, Bad Moods

Preschoolers can sometimes be moody when things don't go their way. A child's mood can change quickly from joy to anger, for example, if someone doesn't pay attention to her or if she can't make a toy work the way she wants. Often you may not even know why she's upset. She may have some idea inside her head of what she expects. When her expectations aren't met, she might pout or stomp about without ever letting you know why.

Try to put yourself in her shoes. See if you can figure out the problem. "I'll bet you're mad because you got tired of waiting for me to get off the phone." Be sympathetic, even if you think her reason for being in a bad mood is not important. If she feels you understand, she'll get over her moodiness more quickly.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Try to put into words what you think your child is feeling or thinking. A young child needs your help to understand her own emotions.

Eric Bergeson

Livingston, Montana is infamous for its truck-flipping gusts. When the winds pick up, the stretch of I-90 which passes through the town becomes truly hazardous, particularly to top-heavy semi-trailers.

Livingston sits just north of the grand Paradise Valley. Through the middle of the valley runs the Yellowstone River. In the valley on either side of the river are pasture and irrigated fields of alfalfa. The movie "A River Runs Through It" was filmed there.

Some of the grandest snow-capped peaks in Montana surround the enormous valley. It is no wonder that amongst the cows, alfalfa, rustic barns and farm homes, new mansions for movie stars and retired ballplayers pop up almost weekly.

This child of the prairie found the wide open spaces and crops of the Paradise Valley to be a comfort. The narrow mountain gorges in other parts of Montana make me claustrophobic. I can enjoy a mountain range more when it is set behind about a thousand acres of round bales, or maybe a quarter section of wheat.

Livingston is at 4500 feet. It seems that at such high elevations, the sky becomes a darker blue, the colors are more vivid, and you can see double the stars, all without the benefit of mood altering substances. Elevation alone can be a natural high.

Paradise Valley is twenty to thirty miles wide and about sixty miles long. At its north end, the broad valley narrows into a small gap through which runs the Yellowstone River.

Hence the wind in Livingston, a little town perched just north of that small gap. The gentle breezes from the valley gain frightening force as they funnel through the small aperture at the valley's northern end, blasting Livingston and the transcontinental truck traffic on I-90.

Perhaps the wind is why Livingston has remained relatively undiscovered. Few travelers exit the freeway long enough to check out the charming town and the astounding valley to the south.

Downtown Livingston is refurbished and charming, filled with bookstores, art galleries and good restaurants. Yet a room at the Livingston Super 8 costs no more than the same room might in Jamestown or Glendive.

Meanwhile, the price of a room at the Super 8 in trendy locations like Jackson, WY, or Glacier Park, or West Yellowstone, can run up to $150, even if you are a VIP member of every discount club known to man.

So, I immediately fell for Livingston, despite the wind. The town is civilized enough so you can get a Sunday paper and a good greasy breakfast, but after that you can hike in the wild mountains of the Absoraka Range without driving more than fifteen minutes.

The crowds have not yet arrived. For the next ten years or so, Livingston should remain a hidden treasure just off the beaten path.

Local church hosts successful blood drive

United Blood Services congratulates Kathy Lofgren and Evangelical Free Church for organizing a very successful community blood drive in Thief River Falls July 2-3.

A total of 200 people volunteered to donate, and 172 were able to give. These numbers also include 25 donors who gave blood for the first time.

"Traditionally, summer, in combination with the Independence Day holiday, is a particularly difficult time for blood centers so all of those who provided the 'gift of life' as donors and volunteers are appreciated," said Rhonda Ellefson, community relations representative for United Blood Services. "Because of the overwhelming turnout, our apologies to the donors who had a longer wait than usual. We hope it will not prevent anyone from donating in the future. The people of Thief River Falls should feel proud of their concern for patients who need blood."

To: All Staff and Patients
From: Administration
RE: Hospital Costs

In an effort to reduce costs this year, the following are effective immediately. Please share this information with your patients and physicians as soon as possible.

12. Plant Operations and Engineering are being eliminated. The hospital has subscribed to the Time-Life "How to..." series of maintenance books. These books can be checked out from administration and a toolbox will be standard equipment on all nursing units. We will be receiving the series at a rate of one volume every other month. We already have the volume on Basic Wiring, but if a non-electrical problem occurs, please try to handle it as best you can until the appropriate volume arrives.

13. Cutbacks in the phlebotomy staff will be accommodated by only performing blood-related lab tests on patients who are already bleeding.

14. Physicians will be informed that they may order no more than two x-rays per patient stay. This is due to the turnaround time required by Walgreen's photo lab. Two prints will be provided for the price of one, and physicians are being advised to clip coupons from the Sunday paper if they want extra sets. Walgreen's will honor all competitors' coupons for one-hour processing in emergency situations, so if you come across coupons from other vendors, please clip them and send them to the Emergency Department.

15. In light of the extremely hot summer temperature and the high air conditioning bills that we received last summer, our new policy is to have fans available for sale or lease in the hospital gift shop. For those patients who do not wish to use electric fans, the old reliable hand-held cardboard fans on a stick are free upon request.

16. The cost of hospital gowns continues to escalate, so patients are asked to bring their own pajama top which nurses will be happy to slit up the back for you. Pajama bottoms are not permitted on patient units.

17. On the way to the hospital, please stop by Target or Wal-Mart and pick up two sets of twin bed sheets. Should you require extra linens during your stay, coin operated washers and dryers are available for patient use.

18. Administration is assuming responsibility for grounds-keeping duties. If an Administrator cannot be reached by calling the Administrative Offices, it is suggested that you walk outside and listen for the sound of a lawn mower, weed-whacker, etc.

If you have any questions regarding these cost-cutting measures, please let your Managed Care Company assist you.

Kayaking The Thief

Saturday, July 28, 2001–sunny skies, puffy, white cumulus-clouds lazily floating overhead, just a hint of a breeze-perfect day to explore another of northwest Minnesota's waterways. Today's trip would introduce me to the Thief River-or Ditch 83 as it is also referred to depending on which side of a controversial petitioned "improvement" project you may be on. I was curious to see what this river/ditch looks like here and now.

Officially, the Thief River's headwaters begin at the outlet on the southwest corner of Thief Lake, proceeding south through Mud Lake on the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge and then traveling approximately 30 river miles to its confluence with the Red Lake River at Thief River Falls. Actually, the Thief River's 959 square mile watershed encompasses the Moose River flowing from the east into Thief Lake and Mud River also coming from its eastern drainage basin into Mud Lake and onward into the Thief River.

With car shuttling arrangements taken care of, I launched my kayak at 11 a.m. from Marshall Co. Rd. 7 on the southwest edge of the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Recent rains provided good depth and current for comfortable passage. Shortly after launching a red tailed hawk screeched as it swooped downstream to a perch directly over the river, which I shortly drifted under as it stayed put watching me move on. Promising start.

Rounding another bend just downstream I was greeted with a whoosh of mighty wing beats parting the morning's calm as a mature bald eagle took flight from its perch on the east bank, sweeping low across the water, topping the tree line to the west and quickly disappearing from sight. Great blue herons were also lazily flying from riverside perches, following the river corridor as they disappeared around downstream bends.

Streamside vegetation was lush, green, and varied. Some areas had dense shrubs along the banks with mature 80 foot plus trees behind providing dense canopy to the riparian corridor. Immense cottonwoods anchored the banks in several areas with telltale scars from spring ice flows. Poplar, box elder, and oak were among other tree species providing a nice mix of contrast and habitats along this waterway, in some areas providing a canopy allowing dappled sunlight to filter through and dance with hundreds of water spiders energetically skimming the surface.

Ferns and horsetails or equisetum often found along a river's edge were not seen, though very impressive stands of arrowhead were common. The riverbank in most areas was quite muddy presenting a challenge for taking a break. Also a challenge for livestock that appeared to access the river in several spots for drinking. Several deer were seen, one doe lying along the bank, calmly staying put as I quietly floated by, our eyes locked in mutual recognition of each other's presence. At one break, as I was standing along the bank, a mink came bounding down the shoreline, stopped in front of me and started to come towards me until I stepped back and it bounded off.

Birds were plentiful–several eagles, an osprey, unidentified owl, the aforementioned great blue herons and red tailed hawk, robins, great crested flycatcher, bluebird, wrens, gray catbirds, song sparrows, chipping sparrows, wood ducks, mallards, Canada Geese, belted kingfishers, red headed woodpecker, spotted sandpipers, blue jays, gold finch, yellow warbler, kingbird, phoebe, cedar waxwings, and many more unidentified small birds flitting among the grasses, shrubs and trees at river's edge.

There were some tree-snags in the river, but none that covered the entire channel–all easily navigated around. A few rocks occasionally stuck up above the surface with a couple riffle areas hinting of rocky reaches during lower flow conditions. Some bank sloughing in a few areas. The least interesting area of the day's trip was nearing Thief River Falls as the tree lined banks gave way to houses with lawns mowed down to the river and a golf course with wide open spaces. Definitely less wildlife along this stretch.

All in all, an excellent river segment to explore. Quite, peaceful, intimate. I paddled up to the boat landing on the Red Lake River at about 4:45 p.m.–25 river miles in about five hours 45 minutes, a fine way to spend a beautiful summer day in northwest Minnesota.

Farm bill passed through House committee

Congressman Collin Peterson announced Friday that the House Committee on Agriculture completed its initial work on a new farm bill and passed it out of committee by a voice vote.

"We worked across party and regional lines and put together a bill that makes improvements in farm policy," Peterson said. "There's still a lot of work to do as we move the bill through the House of Representatives and the Senate, but I believe we are in a strong position."

According to Peterson, a senior member of the committee, the bill would authorize and direct farm policy for the next ten years. The current farm bill, set to expire in 2002, has been heavily criticized for its lack of a "safety net" for farmers. Peterson and others had urged the committee to begin this year so that a rewrite of farm policy could be finished by next year.

"I believe that we need to develop a new farm bill built around sound, rational, agriculture policy, sooner, rather than later," he said. "Our actions today showed the resolve of the House Committee to get this work done."

The committee considered several amendments over the course of the two-day drafting of the farm bill. Peterson worked with the committee leadership to improve language for grains, livestock, dairy, and other commodities. He also led a coalition to create a strong conservation section of the bill. Both the commodity and conservation titles of the farm bill reflect this work and include significant increases in funding.

"I didn't get everything I wanted, but I'm pleased with the general direction," Peterson said. "There will be more opportunities as we move through the process to make additional improvements designed to help Minnesota farmers and all of American agriculture."

The timing of any Senate action will be difficult to predict, but Peterson said he hoped they would try to "catch up" with what the House has been doing.

Beef Industry Zeroing in on Quality Issues

Minnesota and Wisconsin beef and dairy producers can learn how to zero in on quality beef production during a meeting at Central Livestock in South St. Paul on Thursday, August 23rd.

Beef and dairy producers will learn effective strategies to maximize profit potential from their cattle. "Our goal is to provide consumers with an enjoyable eating experience every time they choose beef," says Ron Eustice, executive director of the Minnesota Beef Council. "By following Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) guidelines and recommendations, beef producers can increase the value of their calves and help strengthen consumer demand for beef and beef products," adds Eustice.

Representatives of the Minnesota Beef Council, Cooperative Resources International, the Wisconsin Cattlemen's Association and University of Minnesota Extension Service will show producers how to add value to their calf crop and market 'Beef Quality Assured' calves by following a series of Best Management Practices. "By paying attention to proper injection site administration, careful handling to avoid bruising, feed supply management and following label instructions for pharmaceutical products, producers can raise calves of optimum quality," adds Eustice.

Producers who attend the workshop and become BQA certified are qualified to be Minnesota Quality Assured Beef Producers and are eligible to market calves at Central Livestock Association's Quality Assured Calf Sales.

There is no charge for the meeting which begins promptly at 12:45 p.m. in the Cow Arena at Central Livestock Association in South St. Paul. Representatives of Cooperative Resources International and the Minnesota Beef Council will serve a complimentary luncheon at 12:00 noon featuring Huisken BeSure electronically irradiated beef patties. All beef and dairy producers are encouraged to attend. No reservations are necessary. Producers who have questions about the Beef Quality Assurance program may phone Mark Johnson (CRI) at 651/451-1844, Ron Eustice (Minnesota Beef Council) at 952/854-6980, or John Freitag (Wisconsin Cattlemen's Association at (608) 527-5747.

The Minnesota Beef Quality Assurance program is funded by the $1 per head beef checkoff and administered by the Minnesota Beef Council in cooperation with the Minnesota State Cattlemen's Association, the University of Minnesota Extension Service and the Midwest Center for Dairy and Beef Quality Assurance.

Our Saviour's to celebrate 50th anniversary

On Sunday, August 5, Our Saviour's Lutheran Church of Thief River Falls will celebrate its 50th anniversary together with former pastors, interns and friends of the past.

A picnic fellowship hosted by the men of the church begins on Saturday night at 7 p.m. in the church fellowship hall. Sunday morning at 10 a.m. AFLC President Rev. Robert Lee will present the morning message followed by a noon meal. The afternoon program will begin at 2 p.m. where charter members will be recognized, special music will be presented, and greetings will be shared. Rev. Eugene Enderlein and Rev. Les Galland will bring messages as former pastors of Our Saviour's.

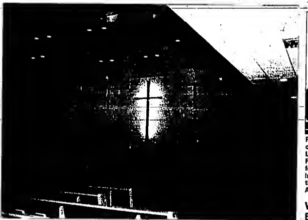
Our Saviour's Church began on September 7, 1951, when a group of Christian believers met at the Northern Lutheran Mission located on Dewey Avenue in Thief River Falls to consider organizing a city church that would affiliate with the Satersdal Parish. They called the Rev. Jonas Helland to serve as pastor. Immediately they began Sunday morning worship services, Sunday School, mid-week prayer service, Luther League, and Women's Missionary Society.

On April 1, 1957, the congregation voted to purchase the former St. Johns Lutheran Church at 401 St. Paul Avenue South and joined the Satersdal Parish in 1958. The church building was enlarged and remodeled in 1972, and the west parking lot was purchased.

Our Saviour's congregation hosted the organizational meeting of the Association of Free Lutheran Congregations in October, 1962. AFLC Annual Conferences have been held at the church in 1966, 1974, and 1997.

Our Saviour's has been served by the following pastors: Rev. Jonas Helland, Rev. Lynn Luthard, Rev. Marius Haakenstad, Pastor Melvin Walla, Rev. David Molstre, Rev. Eugene Enderlein, Rev. Les Galland, and Rev. Terry Olson.

In October 1998, the congregation moved to its present location on Highway 59 South. Pastor Terry Olson serves the congregation as pastor. The regular worship service begins each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. followed by a coffee fellowship time. Bible study is held Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m., and a radio broadcast is presented Sunday mornings at 8 a.m. Sunday School for all ages begins again this fall on Sunday mornings at 11 a.m. and Kids Klub on Wednesday at 6 p.m. also begins again this fall.



The inside of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls is being prepared for the 50th anniversary celebration on Sunday, August 5.

WIC promotes Breastfeeding Awareness Month

August is Breastfeeding Awareness Month. At WIC, the ongoing theme for breastfeeding promotion is "Loving Support Makes Breastfeeding Work."

In that spirit, WIC recognizes many of the local companies that offer a support system. WIC, too, helps support a child's nutrition from the very start by emphasizing that breast milk is the best milk for a baby.

The theme sponsored by the World Alliance for Breastfeeding Action (WABA) this year is "Breastfeeding in the Information Age." This theme underscores the importance of getting the facts on breastfeeding through all available means of communications, including the Internet, radio, television, video, newspapers and more.

Quin County WIC has three certified breastfeeding counselors, Connie Hagen, RN; Tammy Conn; and Donna Johnson, RN (Roseau county), to help women receive accurate information regarding breastfeeding.

For more information, call Quin County WIC at 1-800-223-1591 or your local county nursing service.

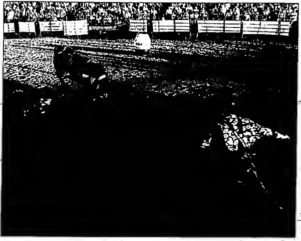
This cowboy wasn't able to stay on long. For most of the rodeo the bulls seemed to have the upper hand. In the background Butch, the rodeo clown, and the audience look on.

A cowboy has lots of friends to help him saddle up in the chute, but once that gate opens it's just him and his bull. Good thing he has lucky number-13.

"Mission Control. We have lift-off." This bull seems to be taking off. Some of the cowboys participating in the Thunder on Hooves professional bull riding event drew some tough bulls like this one. The bull rider pictured above, was unable to hang on for an eight-second ride.

Bull riding can be a dangerous sport. Sometimes, as in the picture above, the bulls come after the bull riders. This young bull rider was able to get up and walk away from his encounter.



Bullfighters may look pretty silly in their cut up jeans and colorful rags, but their jobs are as serious as it gets. They distract the bulls from the bull riders, often running, ducking, dodging, and jumping over the fence.

This young bull rider got caught up on the bull for a few seconds and it took everything out of him. Here he rests against the fence moments after being tossed aside by the bull. Yep, he probably looks as bad as he feels.

State Fire Marshal warns about voluntary fire sprinkler recall

State Fire Marshal Thomas R. Brace said that the State of Minnesota is taking an aggressive stance regarding the announcement today by the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) concerning the Central Sprinkler Company's voluntary replacement program for their Model "GB" fire sprinklers.

"Minnesotans have a right to know that fire protection equipment installed in their homes, office, schools, hospitals and other buildings will function correctly," Brace said.

Brace said he has drafted a plan that will call for building owners, building officials, local fire marshals and deputy state fire marshal inspectors to document the names and addresses of properties that have the Central model "GB" fire sprinkler heads installed and send this information to the State Fire Marshal Division of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety. A form for on-line or paper reporting of this information will be available on the State Fire Marshal Web site at www.dps.state.mn.us/fmarshal/CentralRecall/CentralSprinklerRecall.html.

Building owners should contact the Central Sprinkler Company at their hotline number (1-800-871-3492) or on their Web site at www.SprinklerReplacement.com If they suspect they have model "GB" sprinklers in their facilities. If confirmed, they should follow the instructions from Central Sprinkler Company to get the sprinklers replaced.

Affected model numbers may be obtained at the CPSC Web site located at www.cpsc.gov by clicking on "Central Sprinkler Recall." Photos may be viewed on the Central Sprinkler Web site.

MN awarded $6.6 million for Food Stamp Program accuracy

Minnesota is receiving $6.6 million in additional federal funding because of the state's high level of accuracy in operating the Food Stamp Program.

"This bonus, the second the state has received in three years, shows that low-income Minnesotans are receiving excellent customer service from the state and counties. We are ensuring that taxpayer money is used efficiently," said Governor Jesse Ventura.

Human Services Commissioner Michael O'Keefe said county and state human services staff deserve recognition for the state getting the additional money. "These workers are making sure that Minnesotans who are eligible for food stamps receive them in a timely and accurate way," O'Keefe said.

From October 1999 to September 2000, the most recently completed federal fiscal year, Minnesota had the second lowest error rate for food stamps among the states. The state's error rate was 3.58 percent, meaning workers accurately issued food stamp benefits over 96 percent of the time. Only South Dakota had a lower rate. The national rate was double Minnesota's at 8.91 percent.

About 92,000 Minnesota households or 198,000 people used food stamps in an average month during 2000. Each household receives about $150 a month. Food stamps are a federally funded program for low-income families and individuals, administered by the states. The U.S. Department of Agriculture, which oversees the program, monetarily sanctions states with high error rates and rewards those with lower rates.

Ramona Scarpace, director of the Department of Human Services' Program Assessment and Integrity Division, said state and county human services staff have worked together to continually improve food stamp program policies, training, computer systems and fraud prevention techniques.

The state's welfare reform effort, the Minnesota Family Investment Program (MFIP), has also helped increase payment accuracy, according to Scarpace. "Cash assistance and food stamps are combined under MFIP so workers and families receiving benefits have one set of rules for both programs," said Scarpace, whose division evaluates state public assistance programs.

The 2001 Legislature appropriated $1.6 million of the bonus to pay for food benefits for legal noncitizens who are not eligible for federal food stamps. Of the remaining $5 million, counties will receive 75 percent, or $3.75 million of the bonus money, with the Department of Human Services receiving $1.25 million.

In 1999, Minnesota received a similar performance bonus of $4.5 million. Counties used the funding for client services, outreach efforts, training and equipment. The state is devoting most of its share for outreach to encourage families and individuals who are eligible but not using food stamps to apply for the program.

■ DNR programs part of license requirements

People who will need a certificate showing completion of hunter safety training before hunting this fall should sign up for a class now, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Instructors from throughout the state are calling in now to set up classes, said Minnesota DNR hunter education coordinator Capt. Jeff Thielen. "Instructors are gearing up for the late summer rush, so right now is the time to make arrangements for a class."

In Minnesota, hunters born after Dec. 31, 1979, must take a DNR safety training course and receive a certificate of completion before purchasing a license for big or small game.

"Every year we have hopeful hunters who wait until the last minute to make sure their hunter safety certification is in order," Thielen said. "Usually we are able to work them into a class somewhere, but every year there are a few who simply cannot hunt because they do not have hunter safety certification."

Also, hunters frequently encounter problems when they hunt out of state. Many states have more stringent requirements when it comes to mandatory hunter education requirements. Colorado requires a hunter education certificate for those born after Jan. 1, 1949. Neighboring states such as North Dakota and Iowa have requirements for those born after 1961 and 1967, respectively.

Hunters who have lost their certificate or have questions about certification from other states should get a certificate in hand so they don't miss the opportunity to hunt, Thielen said.

Hunter education classes are taught by volunteer instructors who are also hunters. "It is sometimes impossible to find a class just before or during the deer season because the instructors are avid hunters," Thielen noted. "DNR safety education classes fill up fast, so people shouldn't wait to enroll."

Statewide information is available by calling 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367). Class information is also available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

MARL Program Charter Class Completes First Year

The charter class of the Minnesota Agriculture and Rural Leadership (MARL) Program completed the first year of its two-year program cycle with a session held in the Bemidji area July 18-20.

The MARL Program is a dynamic leadership education experience designed for current agricultural and rural leaders in Minnesota. The program mission is to develop the skills of Minnesota agricultural and rural leaders so they may maximize their impact and effectiveness in local, state, national, and international arenas. Two-thirds of the MARL class members are involved in production agriculture, and one-third are other types of rural leaders (ag lenders, agribusinesspeople, educators, etc.).

The July session was headquartered at Bemidji State University (BSU). It began Wednesday afternoon with a keynote presentation by Dr. Robert Terry, leadership author and educator. Terry's presentation was based on his soon-to-be-released book, "The 7 Views of Leadership." In the evening, Bob Bergland, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture and current University of Minnesota (U of M) regent, from Roseau, was a dinner guest and spoke to the participants and their families about volunteerism, politics, and his diverse leadership experiences.

The final event of the evening was the announcement of the destination of the international study tour for the charter class – Spain and Morocco. Dr. Gene Allen, executive director of the U of M Office of International Programs, made a presentation to the group on Morocco and Spain. Allen explained some of the deep ties the U of M College of Agricultural, Food, and Environmental Sciences has in Morocco. The ties will be used to enhance the tour.

Participants and their spouses took to the road for the second day of the session. The first stop was a wild rice farm owned by State Representative Rod Skoe of Clearbrook. The group then traveled to the Red Lake Indian Reservation where the group was hosted by Tribal Chairman, Bobby Whitefeather. They received a presentation on the history of the Red Lake Nation, Native American culture, and current issues facing the reservation.

Following lunch at Red Lake, the group linked with Bruce Cox, Clearwater County land commissioner and forester, and traveled to logging sites. In addition to seeing the logging process, they discussed the timber industry, one of the largest industries in rural Minnesota. The day closed at Itasca State Park with a presentation by Dr. Jon Ross, U of M program director and researcher, regarding research efforts in the park, management of natural resources, and related issues.

Following the presentation, participants and their families had a barbecue at the park.

The Bemidji session wrapped up Friday morning on the BSU campus. Jody Horntvedt, of the U of M Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs and Extension Service, talked to participants about the Red River Valley Emerging Leaders and Minnesota Political Leadership programs. Finally, Horntvedt, and three U of M Extension Educators – Peg Braaten, Al Rasmussen, and Will Ylinlemi, conducted a training session on using storytelling to improve verbal communication.

The MARL Program curriculum consists of a series of nine two-day in-state sessions, a one-week national study tour to Washington, D.C., and a two-week international study tour. Four in-state sessions were conducted from November, 2000 – February, 2001 (St. Cloud, Mankato, St. Paul, and Marshall). The national study tour to Washington, D.C. was held in March.

The Bemidji session is the only summer session. The group will not meet again until November, when monthly in-state sessions begin again. Those sessions will be held in Faribault, Moorhead, Rochester, and Duluth. The international tour will be held in March, 2002 in Spain and Morocco. Class I will conclude with an in-state graduation session in April, 2002.

Each session focuses on different aspects of leadership development and skill-building. In addition, the group receives exposure to the unique attributes, successes, challenges, and current issues of the area where sessions are held.

Members of the MARL Program charter class were selected from a larger group that submitted written applications and participated in personal interviews. The 30-member group completes the two-year class cycle. The charter class cycle began in November, 2000. The MARL Program is a public/private partnership. Organized within the Southwest State University Foundation, the program has a board of directors and is privately funded. Southwest State University administers the program, and the University of Minnesota Cooperative Extension Service develops and coordinates the delivery of the curriculum. The majority of the program costs are paid with donations from individuals, businesses, and foundations. Participants pay $2,000 each in tuition.

Applications for MARL Class II will be available August 1. For more information about the MARL Program, visit the website: www.marlprogram.org or call Tim Alcorn, MARL Program executive director, at (507) 537-6280. The MARL Program is an equal opportunity program.

Milk inventory management measures urged by farm organization

As concern over milk price volatility takes hold in America's dairyland, support for a milk supply management program is gathering steam. The Class III milk price has risen from $8.57 per one hundred pounds (cwt.) in November 2000, to $15.02 per cwt. in June. But worries are rapidly rising that producer milk pay prices may be headed south.

Several key dairy market indicators suggest the current economic situation is similar to that of the summer of 1998, at which time a disastrous milk price fallout occurred to under $11. This year, as a precursor, market analysts are suggesting producers begin considering supply management as a tool to minimize dairy price declines.

"Many dairy producers were forced out of business because of disastrous prices last fall, as well as in 1998, and I don't want to see that happen again," said Leonard Vandenburg, Acting Dairy Department Director for National Farmers Organization. "The nation's dairymen and women must see current price levels maintained, and the best way to do that is for all producers to become involved in a supply management program."

Cull cows are a vital part of a strong supply management program, and Vandenburg urged dairy producers to cull at least one percent of their herd. "That is a very inexpensive investment to maintain a $16/cwt. milk price," he emphasized.

In addition to producers culling cows, National Farmers Organization is working with several dairy Marketing Agencies in Common (MAIC) to pool resources, including generic trucking and creating new efficiencies by using common test laboratories, all of which lowers operational overhead.

"We will continue to utilize collective bargaining to maintain and drive milk prices in a positive manner. Our national dairy goal, as an organization, remains the same," Vandenburg concluded.

Minnesota exports expand in first quarter despite signs of slowing economy

Minnesota manufactured exports grew by 7.3 percent to $2.4 billion between the first quarters of 2000 and 2001, surpassing the national growth rate of 4.8 percent over the same period. State exports continued their strong performance in major international markets, adding $166 million in value despite weakening in manufacturing jobs in the state.

Exports grew strongly to most of Minnesota's top 20 markets, fueled in large part by sales of computer components and electronics – which increased by 17 percent and represent 41 percent of all manufactured exports. The greatest export gains in the first quarter were in China (41 percent), Mexico (36 percent), the United Kingdom (21 percent), and Japan (19 percent).

"Minnesota's first quarter growth reinforces the state's strategy to focus on those countries and industries offering the greatest export potential," Rebecca Yanisch, Commissioner of the Department of Trade and Economic Development, said. "With Minnesota exports to China growing at more than double the national rate, Governor Ventura's fall trade mission couldn't be coming at a better time."

Yanisch also noted the state's recent report ranking Minnesota second in personal income growth highlights the important link between foreign trade and high quality jobs.

Dynamic first quarter gains in the Chinese market were based on demand for computer products and electronics ($30 million gain) and industrial machinery ($10 million gain). China, Thailand, Taiwan, and Korea demonstrated the strongest growth in the Asian-Pacific region, where exports gained about $82 million in value.

Outside of Asia, Mexico is one of the state's fastest growing markets, with exports growing by 36 percent to $93 million. Most of the first quarter gains in Mexico were based in sales of machinery, food and electrical products, as well as computer and electronic products, which soared 71 percent to $33 million. Solid growth in computer, electronics and machinery offset declines in other exports to the United Kingdom and Germany. High-growth markets for machinery exports in the United Kingdom, China and Germany offset losses in Japan and France.

Street instead of Sixth Street the answer was that the Minnesota Department of Transportation wanted to keep traffic flow as close to businesses as possible, since they are already inconvenienced in terms of customer access.

Consent agenda Items

Items on the City's consent agenda were approved Tuesday night. Items included the approval of a salary progression raise for Teresa Martison, patrol officer and Mike Finnelly, part-time public works maintenance/airport. They also included the approval of Change Order Number One for the 2001 Improvement Project which consisted of a decrease of $9,848 in contract price.

Lease adjustments with Mesaba

A one-year lease with Mesaba Airlines was approved for terminal rent and landing fees. The contract lease rates proposed for the office, baggage, and storage areas represent a 3 percent cost of living adjustment and the one cent increase in on-line revenue equal to what is currently being charged to commercial freight haulers.

Variance request hits snag

The Planning Commission's recommendations for approval of a certificate of survey for Michael W. Thygeson, Monty S. Thygeson, Bruce K. Thygeson, and James E. Amundgaard went through, as did approval of the final plat for Walter and Johanna Raedel's first addition.

The Council next heard the Planning Commission's recommendation to deny a shoreland variance request by Harold and Gayle Waale. A motion for denial of the request failed upon a four to four Council vote and the matter was tabled and will be taken up again at the next City Council meeting. The mayor expressed concerns that the Council was not consistent in its granting of variance requests, though the Planning Commission felt the denial was warranted.

The TIMES

TRF is host to Ninth District Legion baseball tournament

First round games were scheduled to be played today (Wednesday) in the 2001 Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball tournament at Irv Wilson Field.

It's an eight-team, double-elimination format that will send its champion to the state tournament Aug. 9-12 in Rochester.

First round tournament matchups are determined by regular season finishes in the Ninth District North and South Divisions. Play will follow the double-elimination bracket the rest of the way.

Order of finish in the North included East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Roseau-Greenbush, and Crookston. In the South, the seeding positions started with Perham, followed by Fergus Falls, Moorhead, and Detroit Lakes.

Today's draws features Crookston vs. Perham at 11 a.m.; Thief River Falls vs. Moorhead at 1:30 p.m.; Roseau-Greenbush vs. Fergus Falls at 4 p.m.; and East Grand Forks vs. Detroit Lakes at 6:30 p.m.

Games continue in both the winner's and loser's bracket Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Championship game could come Saturday at 5 p.m., but if a second title showdown is needed in the double-elimination format, it would occur Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

Daily admission will be $5 for adults and $3 for children.

Winner of the Ninth District tournament will receive the Shorty Oekko Memorial traveling trophy, presented by American Legion Post 505 in Gary that is given in memory of Melvin (Shorty) Dekko for his many years of service to Legion baseball.

Moorhead is the two-time defending Ninth District Division I champion. Fergus Falls won the title in 1998 and Detroit Lakes took it in 1997.

At 38-14, East Grand Forks is considered the tournament favorite.

Host Thief River Falls brings an 18-12 record into the tournament, which includes back-to-back doubleheader sweeps on the road against Roseau-Greenbush and Crookston last Wednesday and Thursday to close out the regular season.

Post 117 did not play first round tournament foe Moorhead during the regular season. In Ninth District play, Mike Wienen-coached team was 4-1 vs. Roseau-Greenbush, 3-1 vs. Crookston, 2-3 vs. East Grand Forks, and 1-3 vs. Detroit Lakes.

Early success in a double-elimination format is the key to your title chances, according to Wienen. "Winning the first game is important," he said. "If you win the first two, you're in real good shape. Otherwise, you have to fight your way back through the loser's bracket, and you can end up playing a lot of games."

Wienen likes his team's chances. "East Grand Forks is the team to beat, but we've beaten them a couple of times. We feel good about our chances. If we're at the top of our game we can beat anybody."

The team's strength heading into post-season play is the pitching staff, said Wienen, who can call upon John Marben, Caleb Crupeau, Justin Skjerven, and Jeremy Lian, along with Josh Langlie, who has been added to the staff after having a successful summer with the VFW 16-year-year-olds. "We've got a lot of arms to go around," he pointed out. "We should be in good shape as far as pitching goes. If we score five-six runs a game, we should win."

Thief River Falls is looking for it's first Ninth District title since 1992.

The Ninth District split into two classes beginning in 1983. From 1983 through 1989 the two winners squared off in a state tournament-qualifying playoff. That contest was eliminated starting in 1990.

Division II Ninth District tournament will be played in Ada this week. First round games today include Red Lake Falls vs. Parkers Prairie, Warroad vs. Breckenridge, Fertile vs. Dilworth, and Win-E-Mac vs. Barnesville.

TRF VFW team 2-2 in District 9

Wins over Detroit Lakes and Moorhead were followed by losses at the hands of Fergus Falls and Perham for the Thief River Falls 16-year-olds at the 2001 District 9 VFW baseball tournament in Fergus Falls.

The 2-2 finish in the six-team, double-elimination event ended a 15-22 season for the Shane Zutz-coached Post 2793 squad.

Both Thief River Falls wins came Saturday – 3-1 over No. 3-seeded Detroit Lakes and 6-0 over No. 2-seeded Moorhead.

Top-seeded Fergus Falls knocked sixth-seeded Thief River Falls into the loser's bracket with a 10-1 decision Sunday and No. 4-seeded Perham eliminated Post 2793 Monday, 13-4.

Perham and Fergus Falls were the tournament finalists.

Thief River Falls' 2001 season, pointed out Zutz, included a 6-16 record against district opponents; a 2-4 finish in the Thief River Falls American Legion Wooden Bat Invitational; a 2-2 showing at the Grand Forks Invitational; a 3-1 effort against non-league teams; and the 2-2 district performance.

"Our record might not indicate success, but this is a group of kids who gave up their summer for baseball," noted Zutz. "We didn't have many days off this summer, and they showed up every day to learn and moved their skills to a higher level."

That work ethic should pay dividends, according to Zutz, who is the Thief River Falls head coach during the spring high school baseball season. "You get better by playing in the summer," he explained. "A few of these kids played varsity ball in the spring, and they know what it takes to play at a high level. Others stepped up and have put themselves into position to be starters next spring."

Zutz sees a bright future for Thief River Falls baseball. "Baseball is moving upward in Thief River Falls, and these kids need to push it higher," he said.

There were a number of people who offered volunteer help with the VFW program, noted Zutz, who gave special thanks to Terry Wiseth, Jamie McEnelly and Wayne Rahlf.

Thief River Falls	3
Detroit Lakes	1

A two-run fourth inning snapped a scoreless tie and carried Thief River Falls to a first-round 3-1 win over Detroit Lakes.

Reid Sjaaheim began the inning with a double and scored on a single by Mitch Pribula, who advanced on an errant pick-off throw and scored on a base hit by Dusty Gagner.

Another inning-opening double in the fifth, this time by Dane Kjono, led to a 3-0 lead when Josh Langlie came through with a one-out RBI single.

"Defense and pitching – the absolute keys to this game," said Zutz. "This was a total team effort. Josh (Langlie) once again showed why he is one of the best pitchers in the area. He shuts people down."

Reid Sjaaheim and Dane Kjono combined on a six-hit shutout as Thief River Falls blanked Moorhead 6-0 in Round 2. Sjaaheim pitched the first six innings for the win; Kjono worked the seventh in relief.

"Reid tied them up and kept them off-balance with his breaking stuff," explained Zutz. "Dane came in and shut the door. Out of the 21 innings we have played Moorhead this year, we shut them out for 18 innings."

Middle of the Thief River Falls defense, handled by Kjell Johnsrud and Dusty Gagner, helped preserve the shutout by turning three double plays.

"Again, defensively we stepped it up," said Zutz, "and Reid threw extremely well. Moorhead hasn't been able to touch him this year."

It was a scoreless game until the fifth inning when Mitch Pribula had a two-out single, advanced on a pair of errors and scored on a base hit by Chris Lian.

Thief River Falls wrapped it up with a five-run seventh on an RBI single by Gabe Carlson, a run-producing sacrifice fly by Lian, a run-scoring error, and a two-run double by Ben Worker.

Fergus Falls limited Thief River Falls to three hits en route to a 10-1 win in a match-up of tournament unbeatens.

Only Thief River Falls run crossed the plate in the fourth on a single by Josh Langlie and a double by Ben Weigelt.

"Fergus Falls, without a doubt, is a terrific club," said Zutz. "It was a better game than the score might indicate. Defensively we had a couple of plays that we didn't finish. Offensively, we had some runners with walks, but the balls we hit on the nose were run down in all parts of the field by Fergus Falls. They play all facets of the game extremely well."

Perham	13

Perham scored in every inning and ended Thief River Falls' season with a 13-4 decision.

"We just didn't have it today," reported Zutz. "Perham has a nice club with some great hitters. We hit the ball pretty well, but again, defense and pitching wins."

Thief River Falls trailed 6-0 before getting on the scoreboard in the fourth inning on doubles by Ben Weigelt and Gabe Carlson.

A double by Chris Lian and a single by Kjell Johnsrud scored a fifth inning Thief River Falls run.

Dane Kjono and Johnsrud had sixth inning RBI singles to complete the Post 2793 scoring.

Hockey fund-raising golf tournament will be played August 10

Fourth annual Thief River Falls hockey fund-raising golf tournament will be held Friday, Aug. 10, at the Thief River Golf Club.

Registration will take place at 11 a.m. A shotgun tournament start is planned for 11:30 a.m.

Entry fee is $35 per person, which includes green fees, tournament hat and a meal.

The tournament is open to the public. All current, future and former Thief River Falls hockey players, parents and supports are encouraged to participate in the event.

The tournament is one of two fund-raisers conducted each year by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association. There are approximately 250 players in the TRFAHA youth program and 60-70 who are part of the Prowlers' boys and girls high school teams.

You do not have to be a skilled golfer to participate in the tournament, explained organizers of the event. The tournament will feature four or five divisions, including seniors, scratch, handicap, youth, and if enough hockey moms participate, a women's division.

Additional $15 tournament games and prize packages are also available that includes a shirt and two mulligans. The games are offered on every hole, with prizes including a set of irons, chances at winning free skates, and cash/gift certificates.

To enter, or for additional information, contact Scott Bergland at 681-3512 as soon as possible. Those who cannot attend the event but would like to help support the programs are invited to call Bergland to be one of the tournament sponsors.

Pioneers sign four area girls to letters of intent

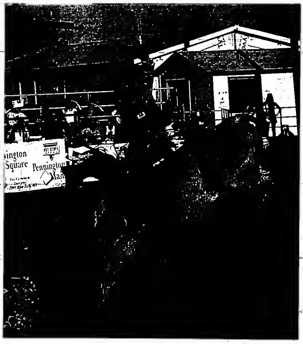
WELCOME BULLRIDE FANS
Altru

Bull riders may be risk takers, but some precautions are taken to ensure their safety. Bullfighters distract the bulls after the cowboy's ride is over and vests worn by the cowboys protect them from being gored.

The bull really comes to life once that gate swings open. This cowboy looks more like a "blur" rider than a bull rider.



When the audience hears the names Dog Face or Countdown the announcers aren't talking about the cowboys or the anticipation in the crowd. They're talking about the names of the bulls. Many have unique, sometimes threatening, always interesting names.

Eight-time World Champion bull rider and professional announcer Don Gay joined the Pennington County Rodeo for the second year in a row to treat audiences to play-by-play announcing.

Every sport has its fans. Bullfighters signed autographs after Saturday night's "Thunder on Hooves" show.

A good glove, a strong rope, and a tight grip are more than important in bullriding. Cowboys psyched themselves up and held on tight just moments before letting loose from the chute.

Free DNR nature, fishing seminars...

Northwest Minnesota hosts youth program

Kids who want to have fun while learning about fishing and the outdoors are encouraged to attend a nature program that will be offered in four northwest Minnesota communities Aug. 14-17.

Sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and local partners, "A River Runs Through It" will be held in Thief River Falls, Roseau, Warroad and Baudette. Each event will feature practice casting, fishing from shore, pond study, boat and water safety, forestry and wildlife, and other practical outdoor learning activities.

"Our goal is for the kids to have fun while learning about our environment," said Linda Bylander, DNR education specialist. "In addition to fishing, there will be a series of mini-stations where children can do activities with DNR conservation officers and forestry, wildlife and fisheries experts."

The free event is aimed at children ages 8 to 14. Fishing rods and tackle will be provided. Kids should bring their own lunch, except at Roseau and Baudette where lunch will be provided.

Parents must sign a consent form for their children to participate.

"The events in northwest Minnesota are unique because children get to learn from DNR staff with expertise in everything from what lives at the bottom of a lake to what birds fly high in the sky," said Bylander.

"River Runs Through It" events are part of the DNR MinnAqua program, which provides aquatic education on ecology, natural resource management and conservation.

Schedule

- Tuesday, Aug. 14 - Thief River Falls, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Red Robe Park. Contact Madeline Vigen, 681-2519.
- Wednesday, Aug. 15 - Roseau, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Roseau City Park. Contact Eric Rob, 463-1538.
- Thursday, Aug. 16 - Warroad, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Warroad City Park. Contact Becky Lein, 386-1304.

Lake Bronson Park to be part of Prairie Day activities during Aug.

Imagine a sea of grass swaying in the wind to the horizon. See brilliant wildflowers, singing birds, billowing clouds and butterflies? You are imagining the prairie ecosystem that once covered 18 million acres of Minnesota. Today only small remnants remain, but people can still experience a first-hand glimpse of Minnesota's prairies.

Prairie Day, an annual event, provides an opportunity to learn about prairies through hands-on activities, presentations, field demonstrations and nature hikes.

This year's Prairie Day events stretch out over three days and two countries. The celebration, highlighted by the International Prairie Tour, is the third time Manitoba, Minnesota and North Dakota have hosted this three-day event, which runs Friday, Aug. 10, through Sunday, Aug. 12.

On Aug. 10 at Minnesota's Lake Bronson State Park, tours will be offered at Norway and Lone Dunes with The Nature Conservancy, beach ridge archeology, and a special evening program "THE PLAINSMAN."

At the Manitoba Tall Grass Prairie Preserve Aug. 11, offerings include an early morning bird walk, a program about research on the Tall Grass Prairie Preserve, and entertainment by Ukrainian dancers.

Sampling of activities at North Dakota's Icelandic State Park Aug. 12 includes a presentation about wild prairie edibles, geology of the region, and tours of the mosasaur dinosaur fossil site and Pembina Gorge.

Celebrations will also be held in other corners of Minnesota – Aug. 10 at the new Northern Tallgrass Prairie National Wildlife Refuge near Luverne; Aug. 11 at the Katharine Ordway Natural History Study Area in Inver Grove Heights and Sibley State Park near Willmar; and Aug. 12 at Great River Bluffs State Park near Winona.

Resource management agreement...

DNR, White Earth work on plan

After hosting three public input meetings in May, officials with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the White Earth Band of Chippewa have recently agreed to take the next step toward a negotiated natural resource management agreement by announcing their intent to hire a professional facilitator to help scope out issues that need to be addressed in a potential agreement.

"The next step is to issue a request for proposals to solicit bids," said DNR Operations Manager Laurie Martinson, who has been spearheading the project for the department. "There are agencies and individuals who specialize in public issue resolution – professional facilitators who act as an impartial third-party to help define and identify what issues are most important, and then facilitate discussion of those issues."

"We would use these facilitated sessions to lay out all of the issues and concerns relevant to an agreement, and hopefully proceed, with additional facilitated talks, to negotiate terms that both sides can agree to on each issue," explained Martinson. "At various points along the way, we would seek to keep the public informed about the progress of the negotiations."

Back in May, the DNR and White Earth tribal officials hosted three open-house meetings, attended by about 120 people, in Ponsford and Mahnomen on the reservation, and in St. Paul. The meetings and a follow-up comment period resulted in more than 250 written comments, which were then jointly reviewed by DNR administrators and White Earth Tribal Council officers and natural resource managers.

"We went into the process with an open mind and no preconceived ideas of what should or shouldn't be on the table," explained John Annette, director of natural resources for the White Earth Reservation. "We heard a lot of ideas and concerns from all sides on a number of issues, but we view the negotiations process, and a potential agreement, as an opportunity to address those concerns and issues."

Some major issues identified at the public meetings and in the written comments included the setting of seasons and limits for game and fish and for the harvest of wild rice; trespass concerns, both on tribal lands and on privately owned land within the reservation boundaries; public safety and enforcement issues; solid waste management; recreational issues including snowmobile and all-terrain vehicle use, trail development and water recreation; and concerns about how annual payments from the state to the White Earth Band - an estimated $1.2 million per year - would be used.

"A joint, natural resource management agreement would seek to preserve the rights of White Earth Band members, non-band hunters and anglers, and local landowners, while enhancing the future sustainability of natural resources," explained Ron Valiant, White Earth Tribal Council deputy executive director for governmental affairs. "It is also the position of the White Earth Tribal Council that any proposed agreement will be put to a referendum vote among the White Earth tribal membership."

"We want to emphasize again that nothing has been decided yet," Martinson said. "The band and the state intend to negotiate in good faith. However, both sides understand that their interests need to be met before agreement can be reached.

"As the comments we received at the open houses indicate, the natural resource issues and interests are complex," Martinson said. "We will need to proceed slowly and, throughout the negotiations process, continue to evaluate whether progress is being made."

Legal basis for a natural resource management agreement started more than 20 years ago. Following a Minnesota Supreme Court decision in 1980 that upheld tribal hunting, fishing and gathering rights within the White Earth Reservation, the 1980 Minnesota Legislature passed a law allowing the DNR to enter into an agreement with the White Earth Band similar to the 1973 agreement with the Leech Lake Band. In exchange for a formal agreement, the 1980 legislation authorized an annual payment from the state general fund equal to 2.5 percent of statewide license sales of hunting, fishing and trapping licenses.

Leech Lake Reservation currently receives a general fund payment equal to 5 percent of license sales. That 28-year-old agreement precluded the commercialization of the Leech Lake fishery, and set the stage for a variety of cooperative management efforts between the state and tribal resource managers.

"The Leech Lake agreement has worked very well," said Capt. Craig Backer, DNR regional enforcement supervisor for northern Minnesota at Grand Rapids. "There's been good cooperation among government agencies, tribal members, sportsmen, area residents, resource managers and the business community in the tourism industry.

"It's pretty much a seamless operation, with band members and non-band members, area residents and tourists, being able to hunt, fish and gather as appropriate, each within their own set of seasons and bag limits," Backer said. "There are two sets of rules, but people understand that they have to abide by the rules, and the resources are protected.

"I think the negotiations process will develop its own set of issues and priorities for the White Earth Reservation," Backer said, "but a good joint agreement can provide peace of mind in the community, and good protection and good management for natural resources."

Wildlife lake management appointments announced

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has filled three vacant positions critical to the improved management of waterfowl migration and wetland habitats in Minnesota, according to Ray Norrgard, Wetland Wildlife Program leader in the DNR Wildlife Division.

Nicole Hansel-Welch is the new wildlife lake specialist senior, filling the position vacated by Norrgard when he took the statewide program leader position.

Hansel-Welch most recently worked as an aquatic ecologist for the DNR Division of Ecological Services. She studied shallow lake management on Lake Christina near Ashby for her masters' degree in Zoology from North Dakota State University, where she specialized in shallow lake ecology.

Two new intermediate level specialist positions for wildlife lake management were also filled. Both will work under the direction of Hansel-Welch and Norrgard. One will specialize in wildlife lake habitat evaluation and management. The other will focus on use and management of habitat data for guiding wildlife lake management actions and decisions.

Steve Piepgras has accepted the position focused on data management, and will also be assisting other shallow lake program efforts. Piepgras holds a master's degree in biology from the University of North Dakota, and a graduate certificate in Geographic Information Systems from St. Cloud State University. He has previously done a variety of GIS work for the DNR, supporting both forest wildlife and waterfowl management efforts with his computer mapping, database and spatial analysis skills.

Rounding out the new wildlife lake team is Ann Geisen, whose position will focus primarily on habitat evaluation of shallow lakes. Geisen has a wildlife management degree from the University of Wisconsin-Steven's Point, with a minor in water resources. She previously worked at Wisconsin DNR's Big Muskego Lake Wildlife Area, where she conducted feasibility studies, waterfowl hunter bag checks, waterfowl surveys, prescribed burns and education programs.

In addition to augmenting existing wildlife lake management efforts, this team will play a key role in the shallow lake management success of the new Wildlife Habitat Corridor Project funded by LCMR, as well as in the Wildlife Division's plans to improve waterfowl habitat and fall migration use of the state's wetlands, Norrgard said.

The wildlife lake specialist team, which should be fully operational in early August, will work statewide from the Regional Wildlife Office in Brainerd.

Boaters often do not meet life jacket laws

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources conservation officers and county sheriff's water patrol deputies are noticing a jump in the number of boaters who aren't carrying enough life jackets on board their boats.

Minnesota law requires that there be a U.S. Coast Guard approved wearable personal flotation device on board and readily accessible for each person. Boats 16 feet and longer also need one Type IV PFD, which often comes in the form of a boater's seat cushion.

"Looking through the officer's weekly reports, most mention that they are finding more and more boaters who don't have enough life jackets; some don't have any on their boats at all," said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist. Besides being very unsafe, the boater can be fined for not having enough life jackets.

Officers are also noticing a disturbing trend in the number of boats where the lights are improperly displayed at night. The law requires that boaters have their lights turned on and totally visible between sunset and sunrise.

DNR Conservation Officer Joel Heyn stopped a boater who didn't have his 360-degree white stern light on while running up river. "When I talked to him, the light was lying on the floor of the boat," Heyn said. "He had taken the light down because he said there were too many bugs. What if there was another boat on the water with its light off because there were too many bugs?"

DNR recommends that boat owners take a look at their boats from a distance to see if the white stern light is visible from 360 degrees and isn't obscured by the passengers, motor, the boat's canvas top or other equipment.

Bow lights are another common problem, according to Smalley. The way some red and green combination bow lights are made, it is possible to switch the colored lenses from one side to the other. "When you are on the water on a dark night and you see a green light and a white light, you assume you are seeing the right or starboard side of a boat," Smalley said. "If the boater has inadvertently switched the red and green lights, you may actually be looking at the other side of the boat and it may be crossing your path."

For more information about life jackets, boat lights and other boating safety information, boaters can call toll-free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367), or e-mail info@dnr.state.mn.us and request the Minnesota Boating Guide.

Deer hunters group is concerned about DNR forest policies

Minnesota's deer herd has fully recovered from its crash during the winter of 1996-97, according to officials with the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, who note that hunters will be granted the most antlerless permits this fall than any year since 1992.

Hunters in northeast Minnesota will see the greatest change, it was pointed out, with over 20,000 additional permits in Zone 1. Cooperative weather and quality habitat has hastened the recovery.

However, hunters in parts of permit areas 168 and 175 may see other changes in the coming months and years that could impact local deer herds, both positively and negatively.

Eight townships in Itasca County and four townships in St. Louis County constitute the 28,000-acre Demonstration Forest recently designated by Department of Natural Resources Commissioner Allen Garber. The contiguous block of land encompasses an area southeast of Effie, southwest of Cook, and north of Hibbing. Portions of the George Washington and Sturgeon River State Forests, Superior National Forest, and all of McCarthy Beach State Park are located in the designated area.

Both Itasca and St. Louis County own forest lands in the area, as well as several industrial forest companies, and hundreds of smaller private landowners.

While specific plans are not yet in place, the intent of the Demonstration Forest, according to the Deer Hunters Association, is to practice forestry techniques that promote more pine, spruce and fir species and less upland hardwood species such as aspen.

To achieve these goals, they say, techniques generally considered to be positive for deer habitat such as clear cutting will be altered, and more intensive management activities will be promoted.

"We are trying to get hunters and small landowners in the area to get involved in the process," said MDHA Operations Manager Ryan Bronson. "The people that own 20, 40 or 100 acre pieces have not been adequately represented thus far in the Demonstration Forest. A lot of those landowners have bought and managed their land specifically for deer and deer hunting, and could be affected by changes made in forest management techniques."

Bronson says, "thinning is a process that could hurt or help deer populations, depending on how it is practiced. Northern deer depend on conifer stands for winter thermal cover, but if a stand is thinned it can lose its effectiveness," he said. "Rotating thinning activities and protecting wintering yards on both private and public land can have a big impact on the northern deer herds."

Despite concerns about some forestry techniques, the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association supports forest management and harvest, both as a sustainable financial resource and an important wildlife habitat management tool.

Minnesota's aspen forests are a direct result of timber harvest, and provide habitat for a white-tailed deer and a multitude of other species.

Landowners who are located in the Demonstration Forest area, or individuals that hunt in the affected area are urged to contact the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association or the DNR to get involved with the planning and monitoring process for the Demonstration Forest. Call MDHA at 1-800-450-DEER for more information.

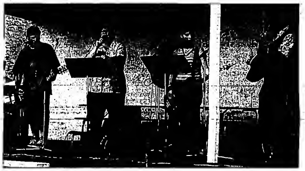
While the hot weather was not conducive for a costume contest, a few got into the spirit of Frontier Day Friday at the Pennington County Fair. Contest winners included (from right) Lorraina Dallmann, first place; Norma Hanson, second place; and Lorraina Staigar, third place.

Clarica Gaillhar was honored as one of Pennington County's Outstanding Senior Citizens during an afternoon program on Friday at the Pennington County Fair. Clarica is pictured with Mike Sortaberg, president of the fair association, Minnesota Senator LaRoy Stumpf and County Commissioner Bud Comstock. Kannath Poole, who was also one of this year's honorees, was unable to attend the program. In addition to a commendation certificate from Governor Ventura, a plaque from the county and gifts from the fair association and Minnesota State Senate, Gaillhar and Poole will have the opportunity to represent Pennington county at the Minnesota State Fair. The program, which was organized by Norma Hanson, was emceed by Art Heinze.

Marcoux Corner was among the popular bandshell entertainment that performed during the Pennington County Fair. The volunteer who was drawn to the stage happened to be a woman from London who, while visiting a friend in Thief River Falls, had the opportunity to take in the county fair.



A variety of bands and individuals performed in half-hour intervals from the bandshell to an appreciative crowd during Gospel Night at the Pennington County Fair on Tuesday, July 17.

The Thief River Falls City Council didn't hold out long against the Pennington County Fair Board in Sunday's tug-o-war matches. It took the Fair Board between 3 to 5 seconds to pull Mayor Mark Borshalm and his crew into the mud pit. Nice day for a swim though!

MARCOUX CORNER

Chris Leach (right) and Jason Blakely wowed the crowd and, more importantly, the judges with an original song and took first place in the adult division of the talent show at the Pennington County Fair Saturday afternoon. In addition to winning a $100 cash prize, Leach and Blakely will have the opportunity to represent Pennington county at the Minnesota State Fair next month.

New Arrival

Congratulations to Kerry and Griffin Newland of Thief River Falls, on the birth of their second son. He was born on Monday, July 23 at Northwestern Hospital, weighing 8 pounds and 4 ounces. His older brother is Derick and the little guy is Jarin Reese. Grandparents are Rick and Arlene Froiland of Plummer and Dolly Newland of Thief River Falls. Great-grandparents are Art and Avis Froiland of Plummer, and Julia Stenseth of Thief River Falls.

Ruth Wilkens visited with Charlotte Olson of Red Lake Falls on Monday.

My husband Burnel and I returned on Monday from a trip to Iowa, where the tall corn grows. We drove down on Friday to daughter Elaine Palmer's home in Coon Rapids, Iowa, and spent the weekend there, attending the funeral in Panora on Saturday for brother-in-law Clyde Wood of Panora, who had wintered in Texas close by us.

On Sunday there was an 80th birthday party for his sister Doris Chaloupka of Panora, so it was a weekend of reminiscing and visiting with many family members. Iowa was even hotter than Minnesota and thunder rumbled, but no severe storms hit while we were there. We'd driven in heavy rains in Central and Southern Minnesota, wondering if there'd been crop damage here at home. We were happy to see them still looking good on our return. On the way home we had short visits with Melissa Vigstol of Gaylord and Dorothy Brockoff (niece) at Arlington, and had dinner and a longer visit with brother Willis and Mabel Byer of Norwood. As we drove, I compared other small towns with Plummer, and most had their own special beauty. Ours is the best, of course, with the creamery and elevator complex, but especially our beautiful park as you enter town! Come and visit us.

Dakota Trip

It was a well-earned vacation for Lloyd and Wavell Sorenson, as they left on July 16 for a trip that took them first to Nome, N.D. to visit Lloyd's cousin, Arlys and Kermit Sarby, over dinner. Coffee guests were cousin Iverne Birkild, Karl, Brittney and Lindsay Bunn, Jason and Jordan Sorby, Wesley and Alice Horsager and Myrtle Jensen. They were all supper guests; also Lloyd and Wavell were overnight guests. The next morning they were breakfast guests of Richard, Iverne, Robert and Eugene Birkild. Later, they went on to Lisbon, N.D., to see Lester, Olive, Terry and Jill Loomis. These are Wavell's relatives whom she had not met before. Terry runs the radio station at Lisbon. They were dinner guests at the Senior Center there. Later they visited with Wesley and Alice Horsager at Kathryn, N.D., and Myrtle Jensen of Valley City.

On Wednesday they toured the Badlands and Mount Rushmore in South Dakota, which took about six hours. They were caught in a terrible storm at Bowman, N.D., where they spent the night.

On Thursday they breakfasted in Bowman where Lawrence and Drusilla Reisenhower's son Bernard lives, and his wife Lori was waitress. The Reisenhowers are former Plummer friends. Then Lloyd and Wavell headed for Dickinson, N.D. to see Gert Marty, and found her looking pretty good. She sent greetings to all her Plummer friends. They also met a nurse who was a best friend of Larraine Fisher, their neighbor, and attended the Medora Musical that night, which is always good.

On Thursday they headed for West by Montana to visit Cindy, Eric, Taylor, Brett and Katie Nielsen and were coffee guests there, enjoying a fun visit. Their next stop was at Crosby, N.D., for the 32nd threshing show, noted for the most steam engines. Lloyd even pitched a few bundles of oats! There was a good talent show both evenings they were there. The emcee had a son who married the daughter of Otto and Ethel Johnson of Oklee. Also, good friends. On Sunday they toured the Peace Gardens and went on to Cavalier, N.D. to visit Lloyd's cousin, Dorothy Stamm. From there they went on to Roseau and were overnight guests of son Russell. On Monday they went on to Warroad to visit Mill and Janice Peterson and were supper guests there in the afternoon they had gone to International Falls to see Bert Johnson and had a great visit. They also went to Forest Hill Cemetery to view Wavell's father's grave and that of Aunt Mary. After another night with Russell of Roseau they returned home to much cooler weather – much appreciated. Quite a trip — glad you're back, folks!

Amie Kvasager of Oklee was a Tuesday morning visitor of Arlan, Gerda and Dean Koskela.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jesme of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Don Bergerson of Yuma, Ariz., were Wednesday supper guests of Lorna and Merle Jesme.

Janice and Earl Mojvie of Thief River Falls were Wednesday supper guests of Kern and Alice Tillman.

Strandquist Community News

The weather in Northwest Minnesota is what the weatherman calls "active." That must be that he has to keep a close eye on it, as it changes so often and the report must be correct. Today it was so foggy that the windshield wipers had to get "active" also.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday with three guests: Wally Rud, Marlys Brolf and Gula Stromgren. Iris Berggren served lunch and they played bingo. They began going over their material for quilting, as they have those who would like to have quilts again. Even though there are a few doing the quilting it is surprising how many they can finish each season.

Mike and Betty Johnson of Warroad visited Elphie Adlis this week. Joyce Wikstrom has been out helping Elphie this week, as Elphie is recuperating from surgery. Hope you will be okay soon.

Kristopher Anderson celebrated his 25th birthday on Saturday, July 28. Supper guests were Morris and Hazel Anderson, Eva Bernard, Bill Nelson, Kendrick Anderson, Mark and Brian Kleinvachler, Andrew Thompson, Joshua Britten and Cory Berberich. Dusty Swenson and Cory Wollin stopped by later in the evening. Happy Birthday, Kristopher, and many more.

Those who came to visit and help Judy Kleinvachler while she is recuperating were Kay Turnwall from St. Hilaire, Tracy Folland, June Kasprowicz, Joan Gorhis from Inkster, N.D., Claudia Berggren, Jessie and Kali from Wannaska, Marie Stollen of Argyle and Angeline Bothum. Glad to hear Judy is feeling fine.

Sunday, to celebrate Isaac Thompson's birthday, dinner guests were Robert, Cathy and Andrew Thompson, Nelson LeDoux of Thief River Falls, Elsie Lofrooth, and Walter Thompson. Later, Peter and Pearl Thompson and Hazel Anderson came for coffee. Cathy took Elsie and Walter home for their afternoon siestas.

Visitors at Elsie Lofrooth's this week were Mary and Donna Renstrom, Chris Corrice and Ruth Hagen and Peter and Pearl Thompson. On Thursday evening, Steve and Kendra Metcalf and children from Maryland, who were visiting the Vagles and Johnsons this week, visited Elsie.

Friday evening Isaac and Betsy Thompson enjoyed supper with Pearl and LeRoy Lundell at the Best Western in Thief River Falls. Pearl and LeRoy and many other Lundell families enjoyed a family reunion at the Phil Bengtson farm. There were over 100 in attendance.

Saturday evening, LeRoy and Pearl, Tom and Mary Lou Lundell from Edina, Jim and Tracy, Samantha and Joshua Lundell from Orono, had "kumpa supper" at the Isaac Thompson home.

We had about 4 inches of rain poured out on the sandridge over the weekend. It was okay for it here but the farmers are beginning to harvest and rain is something they can do without at this time. The dahlias are blooming and we need to spray them again. We are wishing for some of that hot weather we had a couple of weeks ago instead of so much moisture, but I guess everybody can't have the wished-for stuff because we don't wish for the same all the time. There are a few more dahlias that need propping up or they will not make it, as the soil splashes on the leaves.

Top 10 things to do with your federal rebate

After some discussion we came up with the Top 10 things to do with your federal rebate:

Warning: This material contains sarcasm and may be unsuitable for some gentle readers.

10. Set it aside for next year's taxes.

9. Buy an air conditioner for the one week of summer that occurs every year during the county fair

8 Buy enough heating fuel for two weeks for our nine months of winter.

7. Fill up our gas guzzling SUVs and light trucks.

6. Buy inexpensive school clothes made in Nepal.

5. Take a trip to Canada to buy cheap prescription drugs

4. Put a tracer on a letter that was sent to Crookston but ended up in Hawaii.

3. Buy the city another stop sign, and a dozen more orange cones for the Highway 59 detour.

2. Buy a six-pack of beer, a blaze-orange cap and a plaid shirt for deer hunting camp.

1. Buy lotto tickets and pray that you don't have to go to work on Monday.

The survey says:

Voters narrowly support cell phone legislation

The last poll we had on our web site (www.trftimes.com) asked visitors whether talking on a cell phone while driving should be illegal. As of Wednesday, July 25, 155 votes had been cast, 89 voters, or 57.42 percent said Yes, while 66 voters, or 42.58 percent said No.

The numbers of those in favor of cell phone legislation appear to be growing. Legislation regarding cell phone use and driving is pending in Minnesota. A CNN state-by-state survey shows that cell phone legislation has either passed, is pending, or stalled in all but eight states.

Stories about cell phone use and driving have also been in the news. The latest story involved a survey conducted by the federal government. A story written by Julie Vallese, CNN consumer editor, reports an estimated 3 percent of American drivers are talking on hand-held cell phones at any given time, according to the first-of-its-kind survey conducted by the federal government.

According to the CNN story, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) said recently that "about a half-million drivers are holding a phone to their ears at any given time throughout the week. The survey found that rates of use can double during times outside rush hour."

Also included in survey findings, but not quite as well known, indicate that:

-- Drivers of vans and SUVs used their cell phones the most.
-- Use by drivers was highest during times outside rush hour.
-- Females use their cell phones more then men -- in the case of SUV drivers it was almost twice as high.
-- Senior citizens use cell phones less than any other age group.
-- Pickup truck drivers use cell phones less than drivers of other vehicles.
-- Cell phones are used more during the week than on weekends.

New Poll

After considerable discussion, we've come up with a new poll. I suspect that this one will generate some letters as it regards our senior citizens and their driving skills The question may very well be unfair. As far as I'm concerned, the cutoff age for mandatory driving tests could be any age. In my opinion, maybe we should consider requiring all citizens to take driving tests every so many years. The question may also play unfairly on our stereotypes and prejudices, as suggested in a story printed Thursday, July 26, in the Grand Forks Herald.

In any event, the next question on our Web site poll is: Should the State require mandatory driving tests for people over the age of 78?

Cast your vote at www.trftimes.com. If you're so inclined, send us a letter telling us what you think of the issue.

Extension Service works to bring University resources to communities

Minnesota communities that will thrive in the future must take advantage of the abilities and contributions of a diverse and changing population. They must foster a business climate that can add jobs to their economy. They must have active leaders and involved citizens. And they must be able to take advantage of new technology and the opportunities of the Information Age

The University of Minnesota Extension Service can help the state's communities succeed in these areas, says Dick Senese, the head of that organization's new Community Vitality capacity area. "We have this incredible jewel of a resource, the University of Minnesota, that has outreach as a core part of its mission," says Senese. "We can connect university resources with the day-to-day problems and issues facing Minnesota communities."

Senese is enthused about the opportunity to work with communities across the state, but has a special place in his heart for the Iron Range. He grew up in Buhl, Minn., in St. Louis County and attended Mesabi Community College in Virginia, Minn. for two years. He completed a bachelor's degree in psychology and political science in 1985 at the University of Minnesota, Duluth, where he was vice president of the UMD Student Association.

He went on to complete a master's in counseling at UMD and in 1997 completed a Ph.D. from the U of M in the Twin Cities in counseling and psychology.

Senese brings a background in education and public affairs to his new role at the U of M. He previously served as an assistant dean in psychology at Capella University, an on-line university headquartered in Minneapolis. He designed courses and degree programs for the school and was responsible for faculty and staff hiring and development. He also taught psychology for six years at St. Olaf College in Northfield. In addition, he has taught courses at Metropolitan State University in St Paul, St. Scholastica in Duluth and UMD.

Senese served as chair of the Minnesota State DFL Party from 1997-1999. He has also worked for Sen. Paul Wellstone as a campaign manager and in Wellstone's offices in Washington, D.C and St Paul.

Senese feels the role of the University, working through Extension's Community Vitality capacity area, is to assist local leaders and their communities to deal with issues and take advantage of opportunities. "In Community Vitality we believe that the best leadership and the best solutions come from within the community," he says. "The local Extension advisory committees really help direct our arena of work. Our job is to assist local leaders in defining and addressing local issues. I don't believe in 'one size fits all' programming."

The Community Vitality capacity area that Senese leads includes 59 field educators spread across the state and 35 campus-based faculty. The faculty on campus are in several colleges and departments, including the Department of Applied Economics, the Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs, the Tourism Center, the 4-H Center, the Department of Landscape Architecture and the College of Liberal Arts.

One area in which Extension's Community Vitality capacity area can assist local communities is in understanding and adjusting to rapid demographic changes. "We have a Census 2000 project through which we will be able to provide a pretty, sophisticated analysis of census data, so that community leaders can use that in their decision making," says Senese. This information can be useful to such people as educators looking at teacher needs, employers looking for workers, and entrepreneurs looking for markets, he points out.

As a resource for helping communities improve their economy, Senese cites Extension's Business Retention and Expansion Strategies Program. "BR&E works with communities to conduct economic and business climate assessment, and develop and implement a plan to capitalize on the opportunities identified," he says.

"And we support that like we support all our programs, with a research base. We don't just go on anecdotal evidence We collect data and research in conjunction with community people to really figure out what's going on."

In the area of citizenship and leadership, Senese points to the Minnesota Political Leadership Program. "Extension co-sponsors a conference for the Minnesota state legislators," he says. "We present information about the future issues facing Minnesota. We provide the results of non-partisan research on public issues."

Minnesota communities also need to be able to take advantage of new communication technologies, says Senese. He cites Access Minnesota Main Street, an Extension program to help small businesses with e-commerce activities such as Web sites and business-to-business Internet relationships.

Another Extension program in the Community Vitality area is the Master Internet Volunteer Program. "We train people to be able to go into their communities and teach others how to take advantage of the Internet," says Senese.

Senese is excited about leading Extension's Community Vitality outreach effort. "Growing up on the Iron Range, with the tradition and history of community involvement that you find on the Iron Range, has really instilled in me the fire to do this work," he says.

Senator Mark Dayton says trips to Canada will continue

"Rx Express" bus trips successful as seniors save thousands

Senator Mark Dayton said today that the first "Rx Express" bus trip to Canada this week allowed dozens of Minnesota seniors to buy drastically cheaper prescription drugs than they can currently get in the United States, saving participants hundreds, even thousands of dollars.

Dayton, who has donated his Senate salary to the Minnesota Senior Federation to organize the trips, said the significant savings are a vivid demonstration that seniors in Minnesota and across the country — many on fixed incomes — are having their economic and emotional well-being threatened by the high cost of needed medicines in the United States. He said the trips to Canada are not the answer to the problem, but will keep attention focused on the high cost of U.S. prescription drugs until the issue is addressed by Congress.

"There is no question that seniors in Minnesota and across the country are paying the highest prescription drug costs in the world," Dayton said. "This first Rx Express bus trip allowed seniors from several Minnesota communities to travel to Canada to get more affordable medicines. But for each person on the trip who saved hundreds — even thousands — of dollars, there are many more across the state and across the country who can't travel to Canada to buy cheaper prescription drugs. We need to act in Congress to deal with this problem."

Dayton said that the more than 30 Minnesotans who traveled to Winnipeg this week all saved from 30 to 70 percent on the medicines they bought. One man saved several thousand dollars on his prescriptions, with several others saving hundreds of dollars on a three-month supply of medicines.

"New Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle announced that the Senate Finance Committee will complete work on a prescription drug bill and bring it to the Senate floor right after the August Congressional recess," Dayton said. "I hope the House and the President will join this effort so that seniors in Minnesota and across the country don't have to travel to Canada to get affordable prescription drugs."

Winnipegers find hospitality, shelter in TRF

To the Editor:

This is a letter of appreciation to the owners and staff of the Evergreen Eating Emporium and Pine Cone Pub and the local law enforcement of Thief River Falls. Late in the evening of Wednesday, 18 July, a severe weather warning was declared for the area of Thief River Falls. Our family and many others staying at the Tourist Park on Oakland Park Rd. and Highway 32 South were awakened by the local law enforcement staff. Going from campsite to campsite in the pouring rain, thunder and lightning, they advised us of the tornado warning just as the town siren went off. They recommended we take shelter in the basement of the nearby Pine Cone Pub, whose staff had been requested to shelter us. Between 20 and 30 wet and bedraggled campers, their 10 dogs and one cat descended on the pub. We were made welcome in the basement reception area; towels were found, and hot tea and coffee served up. A portable TV was brought in so that we could keep up to date on the weather warnings. If you ever have to weather out a storm, I can't think of a better place to do so than in a pub. Although the bar closed on time, the building was kept open until the "all-clear" was given on the TV.

Many Manitobans have told me how much they have enjoyed camping at Thief River Falls. The town's hospitality, easy accessibility and reasonable camping fees all contribute to making us and our families feel welcome. You have a very beautiful community, and are very willing to share it. I found your town Web site extremely informative and very well organized.

Many thanks to your local community organizations, law enforcement people and the staff of the Pine Cone Pub.

Sincerely,
Joyce, Art & Ruby

Mail service in TRF is getting worse

To the Editor:

I read the article (a letter) on differences in mail service. Well, you got that right — lost mail and longer time.

I sent a letter July 20 with a $100 Money Order in it to Carol Stream and it hasn't arrived to this date and it never come back and was not cashed. Where did it go? Now I have to fill out a form to try and get my money back, which costs $12. Now we have to register our important mail, which costs extra and we shouldn't have to do that, but we have no choice. We didn't have all these problems until our mail was changed to Grand Forks. They said the mail service would be the same as before, but it's worse than before. I'm not the only one complaining about our mail service.

Sincerely,
Ina Mickelson

Thief River Falls - Badly Hurt

"A couple of serious incidents happened in this county last Sunday. They could hardly be designated as accidents as the disastrous results would seem to indicate that the diabolical deeds had been perpetrated with malice aforethought. The Thief River Falls baseball players and their backers were the victims and they got horribly mashed. The first disaster happened right here in St. Hilaire. They played a game of ball with the Red Lake Falls Selects and got beat. Score 16 to 18. Then the Selects accompanied them home to their own grounds and repeated the dose, only more so. The score in the second game was 7 to 1. Red Lake Falls won both games, easy.

"Thief River Falls had a battery imported specially from Minneapolis for the occasion. Red Lake Falls had scoured all over the reservation for players and succeeded in capturing one long geared individual who gave his name as Olson and a smaller one who meekly lisped that his name was Bailey as addition to their old star team.

"Well, the story is short. The Minneapolis battery failed to batter but battered all over the field in both games while Olson and Bailey picked up in the wilds battered the other batters to a batter.

"The following final scores shows that the Thief River outfit didn't play very fast ball.

"1st game: Hits, Red Lake Falls 24, Thief River Falls 14; Errors, Red Lake Falls 3, Thief River Falls 9; Struck out by Thoele 18, by Clark 4. Bert Mitchell umpire.

"2nd game: Hits Red Lake Falls 12, Thief River Falls 2, Struck out by Olson, 17, by Clark 13. Errors: Red Lake Falls 7, Thief River Falls, 3. Karl Hanson umpire."
